HELP FOR GIRLS WHO WORK

Mrs. Lodic Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Tyrone, Pa.—"A friend told my husband how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped his wife, so my husband bought me a bottle because I was so run-down, had a nervous weakness, no strength in my body and pains in my left side so bad that I could hardly do my work. Before I was married I used to work in the factory, and I had pains just the same then as I have had since I have done my housework. I would not be without a bottle in the house now. It has stopped the pains all right and I have found out that it is a wonderful body builder, as it has made me well and strong. It is going to be the 'old reliable' with me hereafter, and I am always willing to tell other women how it has helped me. You can use this letter as you wish as I can honestly say that my words are true."—Mrs. M. Lodic, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 40, Tyrone, Pa.

Letters like this bring out the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Spirit of Lincoln's Birthday—1923

Underwood & Underwood

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

Lincoln's memorial in Washington is the center where will focus the American people's annual tribute on February 12 to Abraham Lincoln. This memorial is worthy the man and the day, so far as human hands can express the thoughts of human minds and hearts. In a few generations it will doubtless have a worthy rival, which in time may surpass it—the Lincoln highway, a national road across the continent lined with memorial trees, beautiful with roadside planting, busy with the traffic and travel of the nation which he saved.

Today the Lincoln memorial in Washington stands supreme among memorials to Abraham Lincoln—perhaps among memorials to any man or woman in all the world. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," and this is a thing of beauty. To look from the Washington monument down the long Mall and see the simple, massive white marble Greek temple, its stately Doric columns reflected in the waters of the quiet lagoon, is a sight to stir the appreciative to ecstasy. What a trinity—the Capitol, Washington's monument, the Lincoln monument—with Arlington near by!

Lincoln's memorial in Washington stands today a completed and perfected national shrine for a people's homage on February 12. It was officially dedicated last year—on Memorial day. This year it will be rededicated on Lincoln's birthday in the hearts of the American people.

In briefest words, here is how the Lincoln memorial was created and what it is:

February 1, 1911, congress authorized the expenditure of $2,000,000 for a national memorial to commemorate the life and character of Abraham Lincoln. In 1913 plans were approved. Work was begun February 12, 1914. The cornerstone was laid February 12, 1915. Henry Bacon of New York designed a simple and massive Greek temple of white Colorado marble, erected on a granite rectangular base. The memorial consists of a central memorial hall, containing a colossal seated statue of Lincoln by Daniel Chester French, and two smaller rooms containing memorials of Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address and his Gettysburg Address. There is a colonnade of thirty-six Doric columns, symbols of the United States in 1865. Above these are forty-eight festoons in high relief representing the forty-eight states.

The memorial has cost almost exactly $3,000,000 to date. The total height of the structure above grade is 122 feet. Each column is 44 feet high and 7 feet 5 inches in diameter at the base. The colonnade is 188 feet long. The statue of Lincoln is 21 feet high and weighs 21 tons; its height, with pedestal and base, is 30 feet. The visitor enters the memorial to gaze from a distance of seventy feet at this gigantic Lincoln, represented as the great war President. Over his head is inscribed:

In This Temple,
As in the Hearts of the People
For Whom He Saved the Union,
The Memory of Abraham Lincoln
Is Enshrined Forever.

As to the spirit of Lincoln's Birthday in America in 1923, no truer words can be said than were spoken by President Harding when he received, in behalf of the American people, the Lincoln memorial from the Lincoln memorial commission appointed by congress in 1911, with William Howard Taft for chairman. President Harding said, among other things:

"It is a supreme satisfaction officially to accept on behalf of the government this superb monument to the savior of the republic. No official duty could be more welcome, no official function more pleasing. This memorial edifice is a noble tribute, gratefully bestowed, and in its offering is the reverent heart of America; in its dedication is the consciousness of reverence and gratitude beautifully expressed.

"Somewhat my emotions incline me to speak simply as a reverent and grateful American, rather than one in official responsibility. I am thus inclined because the true measure of Lincoln is in his place today in the heart of American citizenship, though half a century has passed since his colossal service and his martyrdom. In every moment of peril, in every hour of discouragement, whenever the clouds gather, there is the image of Lincoln to rivet our hopes and to renew our faith. Whenever there is a glow of triumph over national achievement, there comes the reminder that but for Lincoln's heroic and unalterable faith in the Union, these triumphs could not have been.

"Here was the great purpose, here the towering hope, here the supreme faith. He treasured the inheritance handed down by the founding fathers, the ark of the covenant wrought through their heroic sacrifices and builded through their inspired genius. The Union must be preserved. It was the central thought, the unalterable purpose, the unyielding intent, the foundation of faith. It was worth every sacrifice, justified every cost, steeled the heart to sanction every crimsoned tide of blood.

"He knew, of course, before the assassin robbed him of fuller realization, that the end was bringing him out all right. He knew when swords were sheathed and guns laid down, that the Union he saved was riveted anew and made forever indissoluble. He knew that in the great crucible of fire and blood the dross had been burned from the misdirected patriotism of seceding states and the pure gold restored to shining stars in dear Old Glory again. He knew he had freed a race of bondmen and had given to the world the costly proof of the perpetuity of the American Union. But I cannot restrain the wish that he might somehow know of the monuments to his memory throughout the world, and that we are dedicating today, on behalf of a grateful nation, this matchless memorial, whose forty-eight columns, representing forty-eight states in the concord of union, testify that the 'end brought him out all right.'

Washington inspired belief in the republic in its heroic beginning. Lincoln proved its quality in the heroic preservation. The old world had wondered about the new-world experiment, and was quite ready to proclaim its futility when the Civil war was threatening, but Lincoln left the Union unchallenged for all succeeding time. Not only was our nation given a new birth of freedom, but democracy was given a new sanction by that hand of divinity itself which has written the rights of humankind and pointed the way to their enjoyment.

"Fifty-seven years ago the people gave from their ranks, sprung from their own fiber, this plain man, holding their common ideals. They gave him first to service of the nation in the hour of perils, then to their Pantheon of fame. With them and by them he is enshrined and exalted forever.

"Today American gratitude, love and appreciation give to Abraham Lincoln this lone white temple, a Pantheon for him alone."

Herewith is reproduced a new photograph of Lincoln cathedral in faraway England. Why—what is the connection between Abraham Lincoln and a cathedral across seas that was built long before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock?

For one thing, this "blood is thicker than water" and "hands across the sea" business is not all buncombe. There's considerable in it, after all. England gave us the Lincolns, when all is said and done. England gave us the Lincoln blood. America made it run richer. Doubtless it was Providence, rather than England or America, that raised up Abraham Lincoln.

For another thing, it is a safe guess that Abraham Lincoln had his beginnings beneath the shadow of Lincoln cathedral. "Lincoln" is a place name. The Lincolns of England and America took their name from Lincoln, the capital of Lincolnshire, which is an old, old city—Lindum Colonia of Roman times. And the name is old, too. Why, Hugh Lincoln is the subject of the "Prioress' Tale" in Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales."

There were Lincolns early in our American history. Abraham Lincoln is descended from Samuel Lincoln, who came to Massachusetts from England in 1637. And the Lincolns were a sturdy family. There was Maj. Gen. Benjamin Lincoln (1733-1810), who received Lord Cornwallis' sword in surrender at Yorktown. Enoch Lincoln (1788-1829) was governor of Maine, 1827-9. Levi Lincoln (1740-1820) was United States attorney general 1801-5. Another Levi Lincoln (1782-1868) was governor of Massachusetts 1825-34 and member of congress 1835-41.

Abraham Lincoln's immediate ancestors chose to go pioneering. New England was too settled for them. They were of the type of American pioneer who moved on as soon as he saw a neighbor's smoke or heard his dog bark. In the depths of the wilderness, ever working westward, they became what the world calls poor and obscure. It should be remembered, however, that poverty and obscurity are one thing in the city and entirely a different thing in the wilderness. A pioneer with a rifle and ax, a roof over his head and a crop in the ground is neither poor nor obscure.

Lincoln cathedral is one of the finest in England. It is in process of erection from 1075 to 1501. It is of early English architecture and is 524 by 82 feet, with a matchless central tower 271 feet high. The cathedral's famous bell, "Great Tom of Lincoln," weighs about 5½ tons. The north gate of Lindum Colonia still stands and is the only Roman gate in Britain still in use. Not far away is Boston, the mother of our Boston.

What Lincoln and Lincoln's birthday mean to the English-speaking nations of earth cannot be better said than was said by Ellhu Root at the presentation of the Saint-Gaudens statue of Lincoln, the gift of America to the British people. He said, among other things:

"Put aside superficial difference, accidental and unimportant, and Abraham Lincoln appears, in the simple greatness of his life, his character, and his service to mankind, a representative of the deep and underlying qualities of his race—the qualities that great emergencies reveal, unchangingly the same in every continent; the qualities to which Britain owed her life in the terrible years of the last decade; the qualities that have made both Britain and America great. He was of English blood, and he has brought enduring honor to the name. Every child of English sires should learn the story and think with pride, 'Of such stuff as this are we English made.'

"He was imbued with the conceptions of justice and liberty that the people of Britain had been working out in struggle and sacrifice since before Magna Charta—the conceptions for which Chatham and Burke and Franklin and Washington stood together, a century and a half ago, when the battle for British liberty was fought and won for Britain as well as for America on the other side of the Atlantic. These conceptions of justice and liberty have been the formative power that has brought all America, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to order its life according to the course of the common law, to assert its popular sovereignty through representative government—Britain's great gift to the political science of the world—and to establish the relation of individual citizenship to the state, on the basis of inalienable rights which governments are established to secure. It is the identity of these fundamental conceptions in both countries which makes it impossible that in any great world emergency Britain and America can be on opposing sides. These conceptions of justice and liberty are the breath of life for both."
