Funeral services for Ernst Welsch were held at the Christian church Sunday afternoon, Rev. C. G. Nelson in charge. A large number of friends and neighbors were present. The I. O. O. F. lodge, of which the deceased was a faithful member, conducted their last rites at the grave.

Glenn C. Fry of Red Cloud is one of the graduating class at Nebraska Wesleyan University this year. He has been a member of the O. G. K., the Oxford club and the psychology club while at Wesleyan.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Dr. J. W. G. Fast, pastor of the First M. E. church of Omaha. The seniors participated Monday morning in the senior ivy day exercises on the Wesleyan campus. The Sunflower Pageant with more than 200 performers was staged in the afternoon. The graduates were initiated into the ranks of the alumni Monday evening at a banquet when the leading speaker was Dr. Clark A. Folmer of the state department of vocational education.

The orator for the thirty-fourth annual commencement was Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Chicago archdiocese wherein are centered many activities carried by the church for the youth of America.

E. Peters, of South Guide Rock, called on Saturday last, and brings the usual report of fine growing crops and general prosperity. Mr. Peters informs us that he will teach the school in district No. 4 during the present summer. Also that seven families from Illinois have settled in his neighborhood this spring.

Immigration is still pouring in, and every day long strings of cotton covered wagons pass along the great route of travel which passes through our town. Many of these stop and purchase railroad land in this vicinity, while others push on to where homestead claims are more plenty. We are informed that good claims can yet be had in many parts of the county, though as a matter of course, it is next to impossible to find any with timber and running water. Aside from these drawbacks the land is as good as any the sun shone upon.

Superior Golfers Score at Red Cloud

Sunday about twenty of superior golf players drove to Red Cloud to play in the seven town tournament which has recently been formed, consisting of Superior, Red Cloud, Franklin, Beaver City, Arapahoe, Campbell and Orleans.

Superior played to good luck and the low scores were made by our players. Two loving cups are up in competition, one for ladies and one for men. Each tournament that wins has the score placed on the cups, and when the contest is over the cups remain the property of the winning club. Mrs. H. C. Hanna won in Sunday's game with a score of fifty for nine holes. O. R. Marshall won for the men, shooting 18 holes with a score of 81.—Superior Express.

BRETHREN

Why not let the vigor and fullness of nature which is everywhere manifest these beautiful spring days be reflected by the inner man? To breathe the pure fresh air of spiritual experience and of service to mankind invigorates the soul and enriches the lives of those who choose to give their best to the present needs of humanity. Worship and service are vital factors in every life. None can continue the best service unless he gives due place to worship. None will long continue to worship unless he give expression in daily services to his fellow men. Let us worship on the Lord's Day and give service seven days of each week.

If not worshipping elsewhere will you worship with us?

Union Service at the Christian Church at 8 p. m.

Next Sunday being the first Sunday of the month the churches will unite in the regular monthly union evening service. This is not only for all churches, but for all people. Let us join in worshipping together. The Union Prayer Meeting on Wednesday evening at the Christian Church will bring blessings which you should share.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

(By County Extension Agent Henry R. Fausch)

NEBRASKA WOMEN PROFIT BY CLOTHING INSTRUCTION

The average Nebraska farm woman can cut her annual clothing bill in half by making her own clothing from new or renovated materials according to Clothing workers of the Agricultural College Extension Service. Schools in dress construction, dress forms, short cuts in sewing and in millinery have been brought within reach of thirty six communities within the first two months of 1923. Six hundred and thirty house-wives attended these schools to learn for themselves how this work can be done. These women will carry the information on into their neighborhood through schools in which they will serve as teachers instead of pupils. Other women taught by them, in turn, conduct schools in smaller neighborhoods, thus making the endless chain of instruction.

This well organized system is but an extension of the project plans used last year. Recorded results show that almost six thousand women made their own dress forms in demonstrations last year. Over four thousand women were reached by the instruction in the use of time saving devices and methods. One great problem confronting farm women especially is the lack of time for sewing. These short cuts in sewing, as they are called by Extension workers, makes an hour or two worth more than a day's time with old methods. Sixteen hundred hats were made in schools held last year. It is estimated that $8,000 or an average of $5 per hat was saved through this work. Actual dress construction was supervised in thirty eight communities with over a thousand women in attendance at the schools. In each of these projects the goal of achievement got by extension workers at the beginning of the 1922 year was reached and passed.
