

Curry a Tested Dish of India

Curry is one of the time tested dishes of India. It has two factors necessary for any popular dish. It is nutritious and it is tasty.

Curried Mutton. One pint of finely chopped cold mutton, one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of curry powder, one pint of rice, one egg, two quarts of boiling water, salt to taste. Wash the rice, put it into the boiling water and boil for 25 minutes. Drain in a colander. Put the butter into a frying pan with the flour, stir smooth, then add by degrees two gills of boiling water; stir smooth again. When boiling add the meat, curry and salt; stir for 10 minutes. Heap the mixture in the center of a fireproof flat dish; make a border of the rice around the meat, brush all over with beaten egg and place in the oven until browned, from five to 10 minutes.

Curried Eggs. Eight hard boiled eggs, one pint of cream sauce, one teaspoon of chopped parsley, salt and pepper, one teaspoon of curry powder, one teaspoon of chopped chives. When the cream sauce is prepared, blend and stir into it the curry powder; then add parsley, chives, salt and pepper. Keep it hot over boiling water while you prepare the eggs. Having already boiled the eggs, cut them in halves; lay them in a deep dish; pour over them the sauce. Cover, set the dish over boiling water for 10 minutes, until the eggs are thoroughly heated, and serve.

Curried Tomatoes. An exceptionally appetizing supper dish is tomatoes seasoned with curry powder, and this should be served with baked bananas. Plunge four tomatoes into hot water, remove the skins, cut into halves and press lightly to take out the seeds. Cook two onions chopped fine until tender, with two tablespoons of butter. Add a teaspoon of curry powder, a bay leaf, a teaspoon of turmeric (this can be bought at any drug store), and a half pint of water or coconut milk. When this mixture reaches the boiling point, add the tomatoes, cover the saucepan and cook slowly for 20 minutes. Boil a cup of rice, drain and heap in the center of a platter. Place the unbroken tomatoes around this, strain over the juice and serve at once.

Chicken Curry, Madras. Singe and cut head and feet off a tender two-and-a-half-pound chicken. Draw, neatly wipe, cut into 12 equal pieces and lay on a plate. Mince a large onion, a medium sized green pepper, a seeded fresh tomato and a cored apple. Melt a small tablespoon of butter in an iron saucepan, add the chicken and brown on a brisk fire for eight minutes. Stir once in a while and add the minced articles with a tablespoon of flour and a heaping teaspoon of curry powder. Stir well and cook for four minutes longer, moisten with a pint of hot water, season with one and a half teaspoons of salt, half a teaspoon of pepper, a saltspoon each of grated nutmeg, thyme in powder, bay leaf and one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce. Thoroughly mix and let slowly cook for 30 minutes, mixing once in a while.

Spanish Rice. One teaspoonful butter, one-half cupful rice (uncooked), one onion, one teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful sugar, one cupful stewed tomatoes, two cupfuls stock or two bouillon cubes dissolved in two cupfuls boiling water.

Place butter in pan on the stove; when hot, add onion, chopped, and rice; cook until rice becomes yellow; turn into buttered baking dish, pour over other ingredients. Let stand

Paying Compliments.

The woman who always has trouble with her servants is pretty sure to be the woman who hasn't learned the delicate art of paying compliments. The business man who frequently loses a well-trained stenographer right in the middle of his busiest season is the man who hasn't learned the knack of letting his employees know when he is pleased with their work. The club woman who has the reputation of being conceited may not as a matter of fact be much of an egoist, but she never gives other women the satisfaction of letting them know that she admires their methods as well as her own.
