

Judge R. S. Lovett Takes Optimistic View of Business

Railway Official, Here After Transcontinental Trip, Sees Improvement in All Sections.

After making a transcontinental trip from New York city to the west coast and back as far as Omaha, it is the opinion of Judge R. S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Union Pacific, that there has been an improvement in all lines of business and that it will continue.

The judge, who is on his annual trip through the west, chatted on business conditions at Hotel Fontaine yesterday evening. He spent the afternoon in conference with Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific, at the local headquarters.

Union Depots a Luxury.

"When will Omaha have a new union depot?" the railroad official was asked. "This is a matter I cannot discuss at this time," he replied. "The railroads have suffered on account of business conditions, along with other lines of business. Union depots are luxuries."

On general business conditions he said: "I believe the business situation is improving steadily, but slowly. This is true everywhere I have been; it is true of every locality of which I have any knowledge. There was less evidence of hard times in California than in other localities, due to the fact that the interests of that section are more diversified. There are no highly specialized industries as in the east. The mining interests of the west have suffered very much through unemployment, but they are starting up, not to as great an extent as desirable, but they are starting. Crop Prospects Good.

"The agricultural communities have suffered less through unemployment, but they have suffered on account of a slump of prices of their products and high prices for what they have to buy. Everywhere I heard encouraging reports of the crop prospects." The judge did not wish to comment on the coal strike situation. The keynote of his conversation was that business is making a firmer stride and that there is reason for optimism. He sees golden years ahead for Omaha and Nebraska on account of this state's agricultural and live stock resources.

Beauties of Ranier Park

Described for Railroad Men T. H. Martin, general manager of Mount Ranier National Park company, was the guest of railroad officials of Omaha at a dinner at Hotel Rome last night.

Mr. Martin delivered a lecture on the natural beauties of the park and showed many colored lantern slides with which he illustrated his talk. The park is equipped with efficient hotels. Each year thousands of tourists visit the park and climb Mount Ranier. It is one of the most picturesque of the national parks.

Deputy Lindsay Resigns.

The resignation of Deputy Sheriff Jim Lindsay took effect Wednesday, according to a statement of Sheriff Mike Clark yesterday. Lindsay said he was asked to resign because he had filed for the office of sheriff in the democratic party for the coming election. Sheriff Clark maintained that there were other reasons.
