

National Collegiate Meet to Close Athletic Season

Track Events at Stag Field Ends Great Year

Season Featured by Keen Competition in College Conference—Iowa Strong on Gridiron.

By WALTER ECKERSALL.

Following the staging of the National Collegiate track and field games on Stag field yesterday the college season of 1921-22 was brought to a successful close. In most cases undisputed champions were determined and many of the stars will enter the business world in the fall or accept coaching positions at different institutions.

The year was featured by keen competition in almost every line of athletic endeavor. This was especially true of the Western conference, where title holders were not determined until the playing schedule had been practically completed. The athletes generally showed a keener knowledge of sports, with the result contests were more bitterly fought.

General improvement in college athletics is due in a large measure to the early training which the men receive. The average university performer appears to possess more of the knowledge of sports, with the result coaches have less trouble to make their men comprehend the various systems of teachings.

Iowa Grid Champions.

In the middle west where ten big institutions form the Western conference, Iowa was the undisputed football champion. The Hawkeyes, under the able coaching of Howard Jones, former Yale athlete, completed their schedule without defeat. Iowa defeated Notre Dame, one of the really strong teams in the country, early in the season, and it also won from Illinois, which in turn defeated Ohio State in the closing game. Results of this struggle, which was one of the big surprises of the western football season, gave Iowa the undisputed championship.

Following the gridiron season, the athletes went into training for the indoor major events. The basketball season was more interesting than any of the other indoor branches. Like the football season, the winner, which happened to be Purdue, was not determined until the schedule was about completed.

The basketball season, coached by Ward (Peggy) Lambert, played consistently all season and, although the team played a smaller number of Big Ten games than other conference teams, it was no fault of Coach Lambert, who wanted to schedule games with all conference teams. Despite the loss of one of his best players near the close of the season, Coach Lambert kept his men going at a fast clip and won a much deserved title for Purdue.

Illinois Captured Track Honors.

Illinois captured the indoor track and field games of the Western conference in handy fashion. Coach Harry Gill developed another of his characteristic events, the mile, which garnered points in almost every event. The team was developed in a pleasing manner and not only showed its class in the conference meets but also in dual affairs.

The Illinois indoor relay games proved more successful than ever, and have great possibilities. If too many events are not added to the program this set of games should develop into one of the leading track and field classics in the country. The mammoth armory at Urbana permits of a diversified program which was a little too long last year. Coach Paul Prehn, well-known middleweight wrestler, who coaches wrestling at Illinois, developed a team which won the Big Ten mat title. Prehn taught his men how to get behind and stay behind opponents in such a manner that they generally won decisions. Speed also was a helpful asset to the downstagers, who have been strong in wrestling ever since Prehn took over the coaching department.

Outdoor honors also went to Illinois. Carl Lundgren, one of the most popular and best college baseball coaches in the country, turned out another of his high-class teams. Although defeated by Michigan in the opening game of the season, Coach Lundgren kept his men in the fight throughout the season and lost but one other game, and that was to Wisconsin.

Wisconsin Stops Michigan.

Practically the same situation arose in the baseball race as a year ago. In 1921 Michigan had a chance to win the diamond championship if the Wolverines beat Wisconsin. They failed, and had to be content with second place. That game was played at Madison. Michigan could not win the title this year if it had defeated Wisconsin at Ann Arbor. However, history repeated itself, and the Badgers knocked their old foe out of the championship for the second successive time.

Illinois repeated its indoor track and field victory by taking the outdoor games at Iowa City in commanding fashion. The Orange and Blue team was the unanimous choice for honors, and the real fight centered around second position honors. The meet was staged under the auspices of the University of Iowa and Athletic Director Howard Jones, Track Coach Bresnahan, and other Hawkeye officials did a good job of putting over a successful set of games.

Paddock's Hawaiian Marks

The Hawaiian Amateur Athletic union has declined to petition the National A. A. U. to accept records recently made in Honolulu by Charles Paddock, champion sprinter. It was contended by the Hawaiian union that island tracks did not conform altogether to A. A. U. requirements.

Paddock, according to records, tied his own world's mark of 9.3 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

America's Best Amateurs.

In my first article on the best amateur golfer in America, I chose Bobby Jones of Atlanta as this country's best. I now rate the others in one, two, three order—a difficult task indeed, and one that may subject me to some criticism. Many golfers naturally will be interested to know what my years of tournament experience have led me to think of the outstanding players, and I trust that my judgment may meet with approval.

It should be borne in mind that these selections are made on a short-term basis. Many good golfers are better at shot-making than they are at match play. Rudy Knepper, the Iowa star, is a striking example. I doubt if there is a better shot-maker in America than Knepper, who is so good that he drew the greatest praise from George Duncan, the British star. But Knepper lacks just a touch of something in the amateur tournaments, which are by match play. And because of this factor I put Knepper in a position in my list—eight—that may cause some wonderment to well-informed golfers. I will go more into details regarding this sterling player in a later article.

The 10 best amateur golfers in America today, in one, two, three order, in my judgment are:

- 1.—Bobby Jones, Atlanta, Ga.
- 2.—Francis Ouimet, Boston, Mass.
- 3.—Robert Gardner, Chicago, Ill.
- 4.—Joe Sawyer, New York City, N. Y.
- 5.—Harrison Johnson, St. Paul, Minn.
- 6.—Rudolph Knepper, Sioux City, Ia.
- 7.—Max Marston, Philadelphia, Pa.
- 8.—Joe Guelford, New York City, N. Y.
- 9.—Joe Guelford, New York City, N. Y.
- 10.—Joe Guelford, New York City, N. Y.

Joe Guelford, the present amateur title holder, ranks as the second best amateur in America, in my judgment. One thing enables me to shade Bobby Jones as better than Guelford, and that is that HERE'S the three winners of the big handicap races staged during the second annual Ak-Sar-Ben spring running meet. The first runner in the above layout is Money, the B. A. Jones Sprinter. Money won the Ak-Sar-Ben Queen's Plate, a six furlong event, worth $1,200 to the winner. Jockey E. Barnes is in the leather. To the right we have Franklin, owned by C. E. Groves, Franklin, with H. S. Jones up, romped home with the Chamber of Commerce handicap at one mile. The race was worth $800 to the winner. Franklin is a former Kentucky Derby horse. He ran third in the Derby in 1913.

At the bottom in the old reliable, Woodie Montgomery, with Jockey J. Singleton in the pilot house. Woodie showed the way home to a field of seven starters in the second annual Ak-Sar-Ben King's Derby. The race was worth $1,200 to the winner.

Kearney to Play Pro Basketball

"Chuck" Kearney, coach of Creighton's victorious basketball team last season, expects to play professional basketball in the east next year.

Kearney, who graduated from the school of law at Creighton university last week, will take a post graduate course at Columbia university, New York.

The former Hilltop mentor recently refused an offer of a position on the Ohio state basketball coaching staff.

In his first year as a coach, Kearney gave Creighton one of the strongest teams it ever boasted. The quintet won him considerable recognition as a coach on its tour of the east last February.

"Stuffy" McInnis Hangs Up New Fielding Record

"Stuffy" McInnis' error in the game with Detroit brought to close the Cleveland infielder's new fielding record of 167 consecutive errorless games. The run began May 30, 1921, after he dropped a ball thrown wide to him. It was his only error in 167 games. McInnis has played 119 games since May 30, 1921, and 48 errorless games in the present season until the failure of some one to cover third base left that unprotected when he threw. McInnis had handled 1,531 putouts and 94 assists perfectly.

Boston and Chicago Divide Double-Header

Boston, June 17.—Boston won the first game of a double-header today, 6 to 4, and Chicago took the second, 2 to 1. In the first game the Braves bunched hits off Boston pitcher, Walter Johnson, to win for five runs. Nixon's mild hand catch while he was in the center fielder's position, while he failed to score high enough to qualify in last year's national championship in Washington.

Guilford seems to be the greatest of the stirring shots that Bobby is capable of. He is a more reliable golfer. This may be because Guilford has been at the game so long, while Jones is a comparative newcomer. Guilford has the unusual quality of being able to execute a shot with a club that is not his own. He belongs to the Travers-Travis school of silent golfers. The "Big Boston" style of golf, which is rightfully termed the longest and hardest-hitting player in the game, is a fine example of courage and stick-to-itiveness. Guilford has a lot coming to him by way of commendation for this quality. I know other golfers who had a fine foundation for championship honors who quit because of repeated defeat. Guilford met defeat after defeat, and he has known the bitterness of failing to qualify in national amateur championships without losing his spirit and his love for the game. He came through it all to his present hold of the championship.

Records show that while Guilford is young in years he is a veteran golfer. He has played a great deal of golf in the past, and he has won many tournaments for the last 15 years. He won the Guilford name among the contestants in all his years of clamoring at the door of championship opportunity he was, and he has won many tournaments for the last 15 years. Home Run Drive by Duncan Gives Victory to Reds

Hubbel Pitches First Game Since Injury and Holds Philadelphia in Check.

Philadelphia, June 17.—Duncan's home run drive in the seventh today gave Cincinnati an 8 to 4 victory over Philadelphia in the final game of the series. Wilbur Hubbel, the local twirler, who was seriously injured May 25, when hit on the head by a batted ball, entered the game for the first time since his injury. He relieved Singleton in the first inning, finishing the game.

Sandy Herd Makes His Sixteenth Hole-in-One; Not Luck With Him

Every Hole-in-One Golfer in Scotland Must Treat Caddy With Bottle of Whisky.

New York, June 17.—(Special.)—Sandy Herd has made another hole in one, which brings his lifetime total up to 16. He achieved this last one at Coombe Hill, Scotland, where he has been professional for 12 years. It was on a hole 162 yards long and he has made this particular hole in one three times.

Those who know Sandy say he has done this feat so frequently that it is no accident, that the element of luck has been minimized by Sandy's great skill. They say that he knows every blade of grass on that hole.

Tulsa's Winning Streak of 12 Games Is Broken

Welfare Association Would Prevent Clubs Using Girl Caddies

Bayside, N. Y., June 17.—Employment of girls as caddies on golf courses in this vicinity has aroused to action the Bayside Civic association, it became known today.

After receiving a vigorous protest from Mrs. Jennie L. Potter, principal of schools, who declared the girls would utilize their time to better advantage at home than on the links, the association instructed its social welfare committee to seek the co-operation of golf club officials in ending the practice.

Girls between the ages of 13 and 17 have been working for some time as caddies after school hours. Their mothers have raised no objection in most cases, it was said.

Blacklisted Owner Won't Sell Portland

San Francisco, June 17.—Published reports that the Portland club of the Pacific coast baseball league was about to be sold were denied here today by William H. Klepper, president of that club.
