Business Career Real Profession

H. B. Boyles Tells Advantages of Training for Work in Commercial Field.

A business career is as much a profession as is law, medicine, music and other vocations that are classed as "professions." The man who is a successful banker or who may be the chief executive of an industrial concern, is a professional man in every sense of the word, and no doubt would take exception to being called anything else.

This one salient feature of a business profession, however, distinguishes it from all others, the time required to qualify. While the arts and sciences take the best years of a person's life, the commercial worker rounds out his training in months instead of years. Six months or a year in training earns a salary equaling that of other professions that require three or six years and then the aspirant is just at the beginning of his career.

President H. B. Boyles, who is an authority on commercial training, maintains that proof of these facts are in evidence on every hand, that beginning business people are paid larger salaries on an average than the entire average of fees earned by doctors, lawyers, ministers, music teachers and others who have spent years in training and in practice. But this is not the end of the theory, the beginner has his whole career before him. He begins at a figure that is quite satisfactory at the time, and from that point progresses in salary and prominence until he dominates the whole of the executive field. Many a man in commercial pursuits draws a salary larger than the president of the United States.

Business truly is a worthy profession which pays on the basis of personal merit and not on any class scale. Boyles is campaigning for recruits for training this summer, having declared vacations taboo for this year at least and until the demand for commercial workers eases up a bit.

Local School Gets Talented Teacher

Miss Lathrop Joins Faculty of Individual Instruction School.

The School of Individual Instruction here has secured the services of Miss Lathrop, late of the Walters (Okla.) High school. She will be a member of the faculty and is to have supervision of languages.

The Walters Herald, in writing an appreciation of Miss Lathrop's work, said in part:

"There is a spirit of work in her class room because the pupils respect and admire her so much. It would seem a disgrace to any one of them if he or she was the one to forget Miss Lathrop's good opinion. There are many ways of enforcing discipline but we think 'the little French teacher' method a most ideal one—confidence and kindness. Even the hardened sinners of the school (and of the high school) are ashamed not to measure up to her confidence in them. So, in the last analysis, we find every one in love with 'la petite institutrice.'"

"Like the other teachers of our high school, Miss Lathrop does not confine her activities exclusively to the class room. Aside from being an efficient sponsor of the Athenian literary society she finds time for duties outside the school. The musical talent of Walters was not slow to recognize in her a valuable coworker. Her skill as an accompanist has kept her in constant demand and she never fails to give generously of her time and talent.

We consider we have been very fortunate to have her with us this year, and we hope she will like us enough to consider returning to us next year."

Single Session Plan Helpful to Students

School hours at the American Business college, which heretofore has been located in the Odd Fellows Hall building, moves this week to the second floor of the Commercial building at 1908-10-12-14-16 Farnam, are proving to be a decided advantage to students. The day session starts at 8 in the morning and runs to 12:30.

Prof. Youngstrom, manager of the college, points out that these hours are a decided advantage to many students, for it gives the cool, pleasant morning hours, when the mind is fresh and capable of its best work for study, and consequently students actually accomplish more. This program also gives students a half hour for lunch and recreation, and still affords those who wish, the opportunity to earn their way through college by taking an afternoon position starting at 1 o'clock.

School of Business, Lincoln

Albert I. Erickson has accepted a position in the office of the Standard Oil company of Lincoln. W. E. Thompson of Miami (Fla.), private secretary to William Jennings Bryan, has completed his stenographic review and has resumed his secretarial duties with Mr. Bryan.

The demand for qualified office help showed a remarkable upward trend for the month of May. During the month the calls increased 19 per cent over those of the same period, 1921.

Miss Mabel McClintock, who has been commercial instructor in the high school at Sioux Falls, S. D., for two years, was a caller at the college. Miss McClintock completed her normal training here in the summer of 1920. She will teach in California the coming year. Arrangements have been made by the school management whereby Prince Raphael, a native Chaldean, will give a lecture in costume at the Auditorium. This is a part of the summer entertainment program and is provided without expense to the regularly registered student-body.

A letter just received from Miss Martha Weller is dated "Somewhere in the North Sea, May 24." She reports a pleasant voyage and states that the party expected to land at Hamburg, May 25. Miss Weller will spend the summer in Europe, returning to her duties on the faculty about August 14.

Vance E. Thomas of the executive staff of the college, left for California, where he will spend a few weeks vacation with friends and relatives. Miss Alice G. Harvey, principal of the Commercial department of Yankton college, Yankton, S. D., was a caller at the school this week. Miss Harvey graduated from the Teachers' normal department with the class of 1920.

University of Nebraska

In keeping with the record breaking attendance of the regular session of 1921-22 at the University of Nebraska, the first term of the summer school now slightly over 2,000. This is a top mark in the history of Nebraska summer sessions. The highest figure ever reached before was 1,810, the number in attendance for both sessions of last year. More than 1,000 attended the first session last year, and only about 500 were in school during the second term.

Although the high mark of 2,000 students is not looked for for the next term, there is little doubt but what more than 1,000 will be registered, making the total enrollment for both summer sessions in excess of 2,000, a very good enrollment for summer study.

Prof. W. L. DeBaurfe, chairman of the mechanical engineering department of the university, has been called to Washington by the government. He will remain there a large part of the summer. Professor DeBaurfe is a member of the helium board which is investigating methods of extracting helium from the minerals containing it. He intends to make the trip by way of Boston and New York. He will visit several of the larger schools in the east. Professor DeBaurfe also plans to stop at Schenectady to inquire in regard to details for research work which he will do here next winter.

Women students of the summer school were treated to the first of a series of parties planned by the university Y. W. C. A. when they were the guests of that organization Friday at an Iceland Frolic staged at Ellen Smith hall. The purpose of the frolic was to help the students get better acquainted with their class mates. Lutheran students attending the summer school held a picnic at Antelope park Friday.

The dean of the Teachers college is in receipt of calls from practically every state in the union for teachers. The western states, particularly Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Arizona want a large number of instructors.
