

Rail Body Urges Rail Workers to Accept Pay Cut

Chairman Hooper Writing
Answer to Union Ultimatum Giving Phases of Readjustment.

By ARTHUR M. EVANS.
Chicago, June 20.—Acceptance of the $135,000,000 wage cuts July 1 will be urged upon railroad workers by the United States railroad labor board in a reply to Sunday's "ultimatum" from the union chiefs at Cincinnati to the effect that if the workers vote for a strike the leaders will sanction it. The answer of the board, which is being prepared by Chairman Ben W. Hooper, will go into phases of the readjustment period, such as rail wages and their relation to transportation costs and to industry and production in general. Gossip on the outside is that it may find its text in a paragraph from the wage reduction order dealing with the business revival now in progress and the manner in which transportation dovetails into it all. It reads:

"That the carriers shall have a fair opportunity to profit by the revival of business in order that they may expand their facilities is absolutely indispensable to their efficient service to the American public. This must not be construed to mean that the employees should be called upon to bear the cost of railway rehabilitation, improved service and reduced rates. It means every citizen, including railway employees, should bear and forbear until the carriers are back on their feet.

Stress Strike Losses.
The argument will be stressed that a strike would not only result in losses to the rail workers and to the carriers, but would likewise retard business recovery. Incidentally, some members pointed out yesterday, it also would defer the "scientific adjustment of the living and saving wage," to which the board in its decision said it could devote greater consideration when the "abnormalities" of the present time are over.

Jesuit Treasure Box May Be Salvaged Today

Penetanguishene, Ontario, June 20.—The lost treasure box of Jesuit missionaries, who cast it into the river Wye, near here, almost 300 years ago, has been located, it is believed, and may be raised from the bed of the river today.
Hundreds of spectators are watching the operations of the dredging ship Baltic, in command of Capt. Robert Carson, who has dredged up thousands of cubic yards of mud from the bed of the river in the effort to recover the treasure box.

Taft Hints U. S. May Yet Join League of Nations, in Address at London

Scores Intrusion and Influence of Organized Hyphenates in American Politics in Certain American Communities—Predicts Better Understanding and Americans' Willingness to Interest Selves in Foreign Ills.

By HENRY WALES.
Copyright, 1922.
London, June 20.—That the United States may eventually join the league of nations was hinted by former President Taft, now chief justice of the United States supreme court, in a speech at the Pilgrims' club last night. Also he scored the intrusion and influence of organized hyphenates in American politics in certain American communities.
The former president asked the British not to be discouraged at the present attitude of the United States, predicting an eventual better understanding of foreign problems among Americans and their willingness to interest themselves in solutions of the world's ills.

London, June 20.—(By A. P.)—Britain's foremost statesmen, jurists and lawyers, and a great body of American friends joined in an impressive reception of W. H. Taft, chief justice of the United States, upon his first public appearance in England last night. He was the guest of honor at the Pilgrims' banquet at which five members of the cabinet, many former cabinet ministers and the greatest legal minds in the country lent their presence.
Rarely before has a visiting American received such a spontaneous welcome. The king, the prince of Wales and the duke of Connaught sent messages of greeting and the earl of Balfour and the Very Rev. William Ralph Inge, dean of St. Paul, testified to the affection and admiration in which Mr. Taft is held by the British people.

Welcome Is Hearty.
Mr. Taft was introduced by the earl of Balfour, who expressed the hope that the distinguished visitor would not measure the warmth of Great Britain's greeting by the prevailing chilly weather.

Mr. Taft, said Lord Balfour, occupied one of the unique positions in the world. Elevated to the highest executive office and the highest judicial duties of both in a way to command the approval, not only of America, but of the world. He himself and the members of the British delegation at the Washington conference were under deep and lasting obligation to Mr. Taft for his kindly aid and helpful counsel in approaching one of the most difficult problems England had ever faced.

Taft Gets Laugh.
Mr. Taft occasioned much laughter by saying that to a man of his avowed present climate of England was especially commendable. He provoked renewed merriment by the declaration that he had retired from the presidency of the United States "with the full and unmistakable consent of the American people."

Mr. Taft was followed by Dean Inge, who pleaded for greater solidarity between the two nations. "The United States and the allied powers should make it their sacred duty," he said, "to keep up the comradeship of the trenches, no longer against Germany or any other power, but in the service of the great principles for which millions gave their lives."

Those who sat at the principle table with Lord Desborough, Chief Justice Taft and Ambassador Harvey included the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Earl of Balfour, the Earl of Derby, the Earl of Devonshire, Viscount Cave, Lord Lee of Farnham, Lord Carson, Lord Buckmaster, Lord Sumner and James M. Beck, solicitor general of the States.

The other guests included Viscount Astor, the American consul general, Robert P. Skinner and the staff of the American Embassy.

Reviews History.
Mr. Taft opened with a graceful tribute to the earl of Balfour and a compliment to Great Britain for possessing such a statesman, and voiced his gratitude to the Pilgrims for this expression of their good will. He proceeded briefly to review the history of the relations between Great Britain and America in the course of which he said:

"No trouble arises between the two countries that we of America do not all of us look forward to its settlement either by negotiation or arbitration. Any other event is not considered for a moment. This American state of mind is a constant factor in our relations; it sometimes produces an apparent indifference or lack of sentiment on the part of our people over irritating issues that is misleading to the British observer."
He alluded to another source of misunderstanding—the gigantic experiment which America was engaged in trying to Americanize masses of immigrants congregated in large cities where they retained the same environment as in their own home country and did not feel the Americanizing influences to which earlier immigrants were subjected, and whose home and racial prejudices had not been mitigated as had been hoped by living under the American flag.

He referred to the significance of the new Washington treaty, not only with respect to actual achievement, but for the moral effect on all the signatory nations, and concluded with an allusion to the importance of Anglo-American friendship.

Baptists Sing as Circus Passes

Band of Vocalists Decreases
by Time Elephants Pass Convention Hall.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 20.—"With a Baptist president and a Baptist secretary of state," said Dr. J. M. Dean, urging the Baptist convention to adopt resolutions for American intervention in Armenia, "we ought to do for the liberties of the world something we claim for our own liberties as members of the church."

The resolution was adopted yesterday without dissent and a committee will be named to present it to President Harding.

While there was discussion on a matter of policy, to the effect that all Baptist institutions were worthy of support and that slight doctrinal differences should not interfere with church effectiveness, a circus parade passed, a band and a steam calliope preventing the delegates from hearing the discussion, so they sang. When about to resume the discussion, Mrs. Helen Montgomery Barrett, president of the convention said:

"The elephant is now passing we must sing another verse."
Those who had not crowded to the doors and windows to see the parade sang.

Harding Reviews 5,000 Marines

Soldiers of the Sea to Re-
Enact Battle of Gettysburg July 3.

Washington, June 20.—Marines, 5,000 of them, forming the east coast expeditionary force from Quantico, Va., invaded Washington yesterday in full war regalia. They came on barges up the Potomac, in tanks, on motor trucks, tractors and mounted atop the motorized artillery, enroute to Gettysburg, Pa., where they will re-enact on July 3 that famous battle of the civil war.
Eight gigantic barges, in tow of four big navy tugs, were used to transport the infantry up the Potomac from Quantico.

The motor train, including tractors, tanks, field artillery, supply trucks, ammunition trucks, thundered out of the base shortly after daybreak. There are 250 motor vehicles in this train, and the explosions of the engines gave the quiet Virginia countryside early yesterday the sound of a war under way.

Brig. General Smedley D. Butler is in command of the force of warriors. Last evening he led them through the White House grounds, where President Harding, their commander-in-chief, reviewed them.
