

Americans Taken by Mexican Rebel Bandits Released

Full Details of Kidnaping of Oil Company Employees Still Lacking—Officials Continue Silence.

Washington, June 30.—Americans working for oil companies in the Tampico region all had been released from restraint by bandits who had held them for ransom, on the face of full information as to what had occurred at the two camps raided by the marauders.

Consul Shaw at Tampico merely reported today that the 35 persons held by the raiders at Pecera camp of La Corona company were "no longer held." He had previously estimated that about half a dozen American citizens were included in this group and new representations that they be protected were sent to Mexico by the department.

Consul Shaw was asked for a more detailed report of the most recent incident in the oil fields. It was not known whether the bandits had been bought off through payment of ransom or driven off by the approach of federal forces.

In view of the dearth of information, officials here continued the silence that has characterized their attitude since the report of the capture of A. Bruce Bielaski near Cuernavaca.

Information Meager.

With regard to the statement made by Mexico City newspapers that Bielaski survived in his own abduction, officials had nothing whatever to say. It was pointed out, however, that official information on the Bielaski incident was confined to the few brief messages sent by Charles Summerlin in Mexico City. There has been no suggestion in any of these advices, it was said, that tended to cast suspicion around the abduction.

In reporting the safe arrival of Bielaski in the Mexican capital Wednesday night, Mr. Summerlin's message added the full text of the statement made to him by Bielaski as being forwarded by mail. If Mr. Summerlin had received at that time any communication from the Mexican government indicating that the American had planned his own capture, no hint of such a note was contained in the telegram to the State department.

Inquiry Proposed.

So far as recent events in Mexico may affect the question of American recognition of the Obregon government, the action today of Representative Connally, democrat, of Texas, in laying before the house a resolution proposing a joint congressional inquiry into the instances of bandit depredations against Americans, may be significant of the impression being gained in Washington from these incidents.

There was no discussion of the resolution, under the rules, but Mr. Connally pointed out that if the published reports were accurate, they tended to cast doubt on the ability of the Obregon government to maintain order, while if they were not true it was evident that some one was seeking to injure the standing of that government in the United States.

Wausa Man Ships Four Cars of Heavy Mixed Cattle

Four carloads of heavy mixed cattle, most of which were Short-horns, were brought to the Omaha market by G. A. Lind of Wausa. The cattle averaged 1,573 pounds and sold for $9.35 a hundred.

According to Mr. Lind, the cattle made a gain of 450 pounds each in the five and a half months he had them on feed on a ration of corn and alfalfa, hay being substituted for the alfalfa the latter part of their feeding.

Bee Radio Solos Charm Hundreds

Miss Bieber and Mrs. Winberge Are Feature of Music Program.

Though static was quite prevalent in the air last night for clear reception of a concert radio, The Bee's program of entertainment went far and wide from the Omaha Grain Exchange, WAAW, to the delight of radio audiences.

Vocal solos, "By the Waters of Minnetonka" and "Lindy Lou," by Miss Ruth Bieber, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. E. A. Winberge, charmed hundreds who were listening in on The Bee's concert. A duet, "Smilin' Through," by Miss Bieber and Mrs. Winberge, was another feature on The Bee's program.

Mrs. James Burns, an English war bride, formerly an operatic singer in Scotland, England and European countries, delighted radio audiences with two select numbers, "Awake" and "Because," accompanied by Mrs. A. C. Watkins. Ernest Raymond Misner, head of the Misner School of the Spoken Word, gave two appealing dramatic numbers, one a reading, "Green Grows the Grass, Oh," the other a pianologue, "Ma." Last night's variety of local talent was replete with cleverness, charm and rare entertainment.

The Bee's next radio concert from station WAAW will be Monday night at 8:15.

Monarchist Movement Feared in Bavaria claims you and all flags do you honor."

Amundsen, visibly affected, several times murmured scarcely audible thanks. At the conclusion of the eulogy, he seemed at a loss for words. Finally, with his voice deep with feeling, he made a brief reply.

"Before leaving today on what I hope will not be my last trip into the north," he said, "I want to thank the citizens of Nome for many kindnesses and courtesies and the generous hospitality they have always extended to me.

"Four times I have sailed to the north from Nome."

Fullerton, who will pilot the plane, said:

"Capt. Amundsen and I hope to make a nonstop trip from Point Barrow across the world to Spitzbergen, taking about 24 hours for the journey. Our 185-horsepower junker monoplane will carry 350 gallons of gas and is equipped with special skids for landing on ice."

Fullerton smiled when asked what his chances were of landing safely.

"It's either success or death for us," he said.

At this point someone called the attention of the party aboard the Maud to a flock of geese winging their way steadily into the north. They swung close to the Maud and were accepted by the crew as an omen of good fortune.

A native woman, Mary Tootsesalik, who has accompanied Amundsen on previous polar trips, came aboard to bid him farewell.

From the Maud, the Nome citizens who went out to see Amundsen off, were taken aboard the Bear and amid the shrieking of many whistles and cheering from many crafts, the explorer waved a farewell on the after deck of his little schooner as it pulled out.

The Bear conveyed the Maud from the Nome roadstead. Capt. Thomas A. Rose of the Nome coast guard station was at the wheel of the Court Denies Rehearing of Pickford Divorce Case

Carson City, Nev., June 30.—The state supreme court on Monday denied the petition of Attorney General Leonard B. Fowler for a rehearing of his action attacking the divorce granted at Minden, Nev., to Larry Pickford from Owen Moore, both motion picture stars. The supreme court recently upheld the divorce.
