pressed by the magnitude of the enterprise. The present Welland canal with its 14 feet depth has been outgrown, and Canada is now tearing a new artery 30 feet deep through the rock and 25 feet through the dirt, deep enough to float 90 per cent of the ocean craft of the world. The new ship canal is the fourth one built since 1833 to get boats around Niagara Falls.

Canada has already put in many millions and these are, in effect, an assurance that Canada will go through with its end of the comprehensive project, once the governmental tangle is straightened out.
