

"Phantom Nance"
Returned Here
on Fraud Charge

Stock Promoter, Sought More Than Year, Declares Innocence in Loan
Firm Deal.

Tired-eyed, but mentally alert, E. C. Nance, stock promoter, was returned from Wausau, Wis., Wednesday under indictment for using the mails to defraud, in connection with the defunct Missouri Valley Cattle Loan company.

"I'm not on the defensive," he persisted for a long time, but later acknowledged he signed, at an innocent party, the papers by which the Jesse McNish' Cattle Loan company was sold to the Missouri company for $100,000.

"I happened in at an inopportune moment. Some one else was supposed to sign the papers, but he did not arrive, so I was prevailed upon to do it," he said.

Varied Career.

Asked if he had any friends who might furnish bond for him, Nance puffed compositely at his cigaret for a few minutes before he replied:

"Does any one know if he has a friend until he has tried them out?"

To queries as to his business, he replied he had been in many—"some successful and some not."

Marshal Relieved.

He seemed amused when told he was a year designated as the "phantom Nance" because no trace of him could be found. If he cannot furnish bond today, he will be lodged in the county jail.

W. R. Chellis, United States marshal at Superior, Wis., who brought was glad to get rid of his prisoner Nance to Omaha, told reporters he here.

"He made a nervous wreck out of me on the trip," said the marshal.

Neligh Newspaper Sold
to Spalding Publisher

Neligh, Neb., July 12.—(Special)—After four years' ownership of the Neligh Register, C. A. Mohrman disposed of the plant, including the building and lots, to George W. Woodward of Spalding, Neb., who took possession Tuesday. M. J. Romig, who has been connected with the paper for the last five years, will remain as editor and business manager.

Mr. Woodward is an old-time printer, having had many years' experience in newspaper work.

Two Badly Injured in Cars

Crash on Beatrice Street
Beatrice, Neb., July 12.—(Special Telegram)—Galen Davis was badly cut and bruised and Glen Hubbard received a broken shoulder when a Ford driven by Davis and a Willys-Knight by J. J. Holmbeck, farmer, collided at Seventh and High streets. Hubbard was riding a bicycle and was caught in the crash as he was passing. The Ford was badly smashed.

constituting the variometer, the inductance being minimum when the coils are "picking" and maximum when the coils are aiding. The coils are employed in the plate and grid circuits of many vacuum tube receiving sets and constitute a very simple way of varying the inductance of a circuit, allowing close adjustment.

Sparks

The variometer, in general, consists of two coils of wire connected in series, whose relative positions may be varied, thereby changing the inductive capacity. The usual form of variometer as employed in receiving circuits is made with one of the windings, called the station, fixed, and the other winding, or rotor, is mounted on a spherical form. The stator is wound on the inner surface of a sphere so as just to clear the movable winding. The better makes of variometers have very little clearance between the windings, which permits a greater range from minimum inductance to maximum inductance values.

Around every cell of wire carrying a current there is a magnetic field. If alternating current passes through the coil there is an alternating magnetic field. If direct current passes through the coil the field of the alternating intensity. If we take a coil of wire carrying an alternating current and split the winding in halves (connected together) and reverse the position of one-half with respect to the direction of the winding on the other half, the magnetic field will be greatly reduced in strength.

Indeed, if we could make one-half the coil exactly coincide with the other half (wound in the opposite direction) the effective field would be of zero intensity. This is why it is desirable to have as little clearance as possible between the windings in variometers. The strength of the magnetic field and hence the total effective inductance of the device is therefore dependent upon the position of the two parts of the windings.

Motion to Disband Missouri Valley Association Defeated
by One Vote.

H. B. Treman, Rockwell City, Ia., was elected president of the Missouri Valley Veterinary association at the closing session of the 29th annual meeting in Hotel Rome yesterday morning.

E. R. Steel of Grundy Center, Ia., was elected vice president, and R. F. Bourne of Fort Collins, Colo., secretary-treasurer.

The following were elected trustees: T. S. Gridley, Malvern, Ia.; Peter Phillips, Holbrook, Neb.; J. H. Scott, Princeton, Mo.; J. H. Midland, Horton, Kan., and R. S. Walden, Lenox, S. D.

Dr. Treman in an address urged the members to harmonize their work for the organization's progress. A stormy closed session yesterday ended when a motion to disband the organization was defeated by just one vote.

Adam McMullen of Beatrice, republican candidate for governor, gave a nonpartisan talk.

Gage county, he said, was the first to take up county agent work.

The fine herds in many parts of Nebraska, he said, made it apparent that anything which would raise the standards of veterinarians should be encouraged.
