

Society

Wheeler-Learning.
The marriage of Marie Learning and Rex Wheeler took place on Tuesday morning at 9:30 in St. Francis rectory, Rev. McManus officiating. They were attended by Miss Jewell Learning, sister of the bride, and Max Wheeler, brother of the groom. The bride wore a coral sateen, heavily beaded and hat to match. Her carriage was of sweet-heart roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaids wore rose crepe, and hat of corresponding shade, and a corsage of Mrs. Ward roses. After the ceremony a three-course breakfast was served at the home of the bride to the immediate families. Both young people are popular members of the younger set. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler have taken an apartment at Terrace Court, Omaha, and will be home to their friends after July 15.

Costello-Howell.
The marriage of Miss Opal Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howell of Theodor, Neb., and son of Mrs. T. F. Costello of this city will be solemnized in Omaha Saturday morning at St. Peter's church, Rev. Father Kluthe officiating. Helen and Walter Costello, sister and brother of the groom, will be the attendants. Mr. Costello and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Yellowstone park. They will be at home in Casper, Wyo., after August 15.

For Miss Virginia Wallace.
Miss Marie Patterson entertained two tables at bridge Friday when her honor guest was Miss Virginia Wallace of Washington, Ia., guest of Miss Peggy Reed. The guests were the Mesdames George Radcliffe and Robert Reasoner and the Misses Emily Keller, Marion Goad, Peggy Reed, Erna Reed and Virginia Wallace. Friday evening a picnic was given for Miss Wallace. Those present were the Misses Erna Reed, Emily Keller, Gertrude Stout, Peggy Reed and Mesdames Harry Burdick, Jack Peacock, George Metcalfe, Porter Allen and Allan Clark. On Saturday evening Allan Clark will have a few guests at the Country club complimentary to Miss Wallace.

Anniversary Dinner.
Miss Bertha Meyer, office manager of Thompson-Belden, entertained the women's department heads at dinner Thursday at the Y. W. C. A., celebrating her 50th anniversary in the store. The dinner was also complimentary to Mrs. Tillie Armstrong of the same firm, who is leaving soon for a European trip. Those present were the Misses Stella Shanahan, Emma Johnson, Frances Dillman, Mary Zachmaster, Isabel Rhoades, Jenny Arthur, Florence Dudley, Myrtle Leach, Bertha Myers, Helen Ehlers, Blanche Segdwich, and the Mesdames Ora Eaton, Katherine Brotherton, Alice Stork and Mabel Richardson.

For Miss Iren.
Miss Marguerite Walker entertained three tables of bridge at her home Friday, complimentary to Miss Helen Iren of Los Angeles, house guest of Miss Irene Barmettler. The Misses Iren and Barmettler recently returned from an extended European trip.

Tea for Bride.
Mrs. E. A. Pegau will be hostess at a tea next Friday honoring Mrs. Wallace Spear, a recent bride, who was formerly Miss Lee Schurnian of Fremont.

Luncheon Postponed.
Fontenelle Kensington club luncheon scheduled for July 18 has been postponed until July 25.

Personals

Walter Jeffrey of Minneapolis was the guest of Bob Millard Thursday.

H. C. Lamond will leave next Sunday for a trip to New York.

Robert Siegmund is leaving Saturday for a two week's trip to New Mexico. He will be at the Alcalde ranch.

Miss Ruth M. Long is visiting her college room mate, Miss Vivian Guy, at her home at Ottumwa, Ia., for 10 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Decker announce the birth of a son, John Richard, on Friday at St. Joseph hospital.

Miss Ethel Sachra and Miss Louise Gwin left last evening for Glacier National park, where they will take a month's trip.

Miss Mary Reid of Evanston, Ill., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Munger. Miss Reid and Mrs. Munger were classmates at Smith college.

Miss Betty Coit, who is visiting friends at Southampton, L. I., and who was in an automobile accident last week and suffered a severe sprain, is now convalescing.

The Misses Grace and Nora Campbell and Pearl Jensen have gone to Colorado for an extended trip. They left last Thursday. On their way home they will stop in Kansas City.

Mrs. E. H. Barnes is spending the week-end in Lincoln with her daughter, Miss Leola Barnes, who is in charge of the Lincolnshire club during the temporary absence of Miss Etta Young.

Mrs. Luther Drake arrived last Saturday from California and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Peck. She plans to re-open her own home which has been closed for the winter, and will remain in Omaha permanently.

Birds Need Only Usual Care in Summer.
"People make too much fuss over their pet birds. They have too many rules and too little common sense," says an expert on the care of house pets.
"There are really no rules about taking care of pets in the summer except such rules as would apply equally well to a person. Feed more salad, most any kind. Feed fruit in season, a small amount. Be extra careful about good drinking water—that's all anybody can do for a canary or a parrot.
"Air is good for a bird. It can hang outdoors. But direct drafts must be avoided.

To Visit Sister

Miss Juanita Martin, accompanied by her nephew, Paul Martin, leaves Saturday for St. Paul, Minn., where she will spend a week before going to Butte, Mont., for a visit with her sister, Mrs. P. J. Scott, whose husband is superintendent surgeon of a hospital in Butte.
Miss Martin is a graduate of Mount St. Mary's seminary, class of 1921.

American War Mothers Will Sponsor Baby Show.
Father's discharge papers will be the ticket of admission to the service baby show to be given by the American War Mothers Saturday, August 5, at Krug park. The judges will award prizes to the best baby, the prettiest baby, the best baby, the biggest baby, the best set of twins and the best crop of red hair. The age limits are 2 weeks to 4 years, and everybody will be admitted whose father or mother served in the late world war. Entries should be made with Mrs. F. Meadows or Mrs. James Shields, Mrs. A. H. Burr, chairman of the affair, has already received a number of gifts to be used as prizes. Mrs. W. A. Wilcox is chairman of the Omaha chapter of the War Mothers.

Country Club
Lakoma Country Club.
One hundred members of the Alliance Francaise met for dinner last evening at the Lakoma Country club. A dutch-treat dinner party last evening included Messrs. and Mesdames W. N. Smith, C. F. Gruenig, C. R. Jewell, Guy L. Cramer. Among those who entertained at the dinner-dance Thursday evening were Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Otieman, who had 18 guests; W. T. Cox, 12; F. H. Wight, 12; M. L. Shawcross, 12; E. F. Dougherty, 10; D. A. Johnson, 8; J. H. Adams, E. R. Wilson, C. F. Hazeltine, D. E. O'Brien, Elmer Gruenig, W. M. Jamison, H. J. Windheim and Miss H. McCaffrey, foursores.

Don't swallow other people's opinions until you have chewed them well.

Miss Alta Wolcott of Milwaukee will succeed Miss Lucy Jane Giddings as director of the physical education department of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Wolcott will come to Omaha in September.

Letter Romance is Complicated.
My Dear Miss Fairfax: Your advice to others is certainly splendid. I read your column daily and find it very interesting, and it has been a help to me several times when my troubles have been similar to others. But I now have what I call a problem, and I find it almost impossible to solve. I have made up my mind to do just as you say, so won't you please help me?
About two years ago I received a soldier's address from a friend of mine and have been corresponding with him ever since. His letters are very interesting and what I call good, clean, nice ones, so have been answering every one. In about two months he will be free from the army and planning to visit me, which I in one sense of the word would like for him to do, as we have never seen one another, and through our correspondence feel as though we are acquainted. Now, I have been going with a young man for some time and think a great deal of him, and as I go with no one else, and neither does he, I want to be fair with him, as he has always been to me. He does not know I am corresponding with this soldier, and what I want to know is shall I be frank with the soldier and tell him I have a friend, and not to visit me, or shall I tell my friend about the soldier and that he is apt to pay me a visit in about two months? I don't know which I would care the most for if I were to meet the soldier, because, if his actions are anything like his words, he is mighty nice. As the time is drawing nearer I feel as though I must tell one of them, or both, so give me advice, Miss Fairfax, and I will thank you very much.

A GIRL OF THE WEST.
If you are engaged to the man you speak of, you should tell your soldier friend. You could tell him that you would be very glad to make his acquaintance after these two years, and that you want him to meet the man.

Too Young to Marry.
Dear Miss Fairfax: I am an art student working my way through school. I love a girl very dearly and she also loves me, but she is of wealthy parents and I often wonder whether I am doing right by continuing our friendship because of the great contrast financially. We are talking of marrying soon. H. Friendship, yes. But how can you consider taking a wife when you are still in school and are, moreover, working your way through? To marry a rich girl and let her people support you would be giving up your right and duty to make something of yourself.

Save Your Dollars By Buying From Us.
PHONOGRAPHS
Grafonola, oak $17.50
Grafonola, mah. $21.00
Victrola, oak $24.00
Portophone $30.00
Telatone, oak $32.00
Schmoller & Mueller, $50.00
Victrola, oak $98.00
UPRIGHTS
Schubert $98.00
Schoninger $118.00
J. C. Fischer $122.00
Singer $128.00
Wellington $138.00
Camp & Co. $148.00
Willard $175.00
Kimball $195.00
Weaver $250.00
Steger & Sons $225.00
Schmoller & Mueller, $250.00
Sohmer $285.00
Lindeman $275.00
A. B. Chase $350.00
PLAYERS
Mansfield $175.00
Hartford $275.00
Artemis $348.00
Aeolian $350.00
Schmoller & Mueller, $388.00
FILL OUT AND MAIL.
Name
Address

HOTEL FONTENELLE
Main Dining Room
A special luncheon de luxe will be served daily in the Main Dining Room at 75c per cover.
Saturday's Luncheon Will consist of
CLUB SIRLOIN STEAK SAUTE HENRY IV
FRENCH FRIED POTATOES
FRESH GREEN STRING BEANS PANACHE
BOSTON CREAM FRITTERS CLARET SAUCE
STUFFED TOMATO WITH NEUFCHATEL CHEESE AND CHOPPED ALMONDS
RAISIN MUFFINS
BISCUIT MARQUEE WITH MOCHA LAYER CAKE
CAFE FRAPE

Resinol helps to bring out the real beauty of the skin
Cosmetics only hide skin trouble, but Resinol Ointment, aided by Resinol Soap in most cases, clears away blotches, roughness, and similar defects, keeping the skin soft and smooth, with the natural color of health.
Give the Resinol products a trial. For sale by all druggists.

Field Club
Mrs. Chester Nieman had reservations for next Friday at luncheon at the Field club, Mrs. C. B. Stult, seven and W. Sinclair, two.
At the afternoon dance Mrs. Alvin F. Johnson entertained in honor of her daughter, Marian Elizabeth, when the guests were Eleanor Evans, Polly and Mary Crawford, Janet and John Baird, Helen and Margy Henningson, Beatrice Branning, Phyllis Bender, Sue Hall, Marjorie and Beatrice Manley, Jane Phipps, Alice Hendrix, Betty Halgren, Lucille Chaloupka.
Miss Marion Coleman had five guests, Mrs. L. H. Blanchard three, and George B. Potter eight.
Friday evening the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity at the Nebraska University will give a dance at the club.

Happy Hollow
For luncheon Friday there were the following reservations: F. W. Judson, 6; C. B. Caldwell, 5; Clifford Calkins, 10; for the dinner-dance Ed Fitch Pettis had 4 guests, C. W. Hamilton, 4; M. C. Peters, 4; and R. L. Hundley, 4. Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Whaterton entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Cortland Dines of Denver and Miss Olive Fleming, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brinker.
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Weston complimented Mr. and Mrs. John E. Teggs and had acted as his model and secretary, the days before her infatuation for him had led her to make my life for awhile a hideous nightmare. She had been often at our home in those days, and I had much admired her social and artistic talents—the undeniable skill which was hers in needlework.
I had observed that every article of clothing she possessed, from her kerchiefs to her gowns, bore somewhere upon it a tiny, delicately embroidered four-leaf clover in olive-green silks. It was oddly designed, most cleverly executed, and once she had commented upon it laughingly. "It is my crest," she had laughed a trifle bitterly—I guessed that she was ashamed of her origin—"every bit as distinctive as the crest which is lucky as the four quarterings, don't you think?"
I had made her a perfunctory answer and thought no more about the matter, although I remembered now that when she had reappeared in our lives in the awful time which ended with her kidnapping on June 10, there had been no mark of any kind upon any of her belongings.
Yet here in my hand lay one of her handkerchiefs with the familiar embroidery upon it! I was as sure of it as I would have been had she suddenly materialized in my room with it in her hand. What did it mean?
I found myself shaking at with a chill. I forced myself to lay the handkerchief back upon the bed, and to sit down in the nearest chair.
Madge Is Terrified.
Ever since the moment when Grace Draper had rushed out into the night, after her melodramatic defiance of Hugh Grantland, who had rescued my boy, I never had been without the secret fear that somewhere, somehow, she would creep poisonously back into my life again. And this in spite of the knowledge that Hugh Grantland, with all the resources at his command, was unobtrusively yet effectively guarding me against this very possibility. The fact, that in spite of him, she had vanished that night, although the darkness had absorbed her bodily, had always filled me with terror, for

My Marriage Problems

Adele Garrison's New Phase of "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"
(Copyright 1922)

The "Crest" by Which Madge Recognized the Handkerchief.
With hands that I could not keep from shaking, I picked up the filmy handkerchief which the mysterious Don Ramon Almiraz had dropped at my feet, and later had pressed into my hand on the pretense that it was mine.

From its folds I extricated a tiny folded note, unsealed, and bearing no address. This I laid aside for delivery to my father, as the man calling himself Don Ramon had asked, and gave a curious, fleeting thought to the trust which the man had put in me. Evidently he had been sure that I would not open the note. I wondered also if he had decided not to address it because I might recognize the handwriting. But the next instant I had put all conjectures away from me and was staring as it at a basisk at a bit of dainty embroidery in the corner of the kerchief, a handwork I knew only too well.

"Ten Times as Lucky."
Swiftly I traveled back the road of memory to the days when Grace Draper had been Dicky's art protégé and had acted as his model and secretary, the days before her infatuation for him had led her to make my life for awhile a hideous nightmare. She had been often at our home in those days, and I had much admired her social and artistic talents—the undeniable skill which was hers in needlework.

I had observed that every article of clothing she possessed, from her kerchiefs to her gowns, bore somewhere upon it a tiny, delicately embroidered four-leaf clover in olive-green silks. It was oddly designed, most cleverly executed, and once she had commented upon it laughingly. "It is my crest," she had laughed a trifle bitterly—I guessed that she was ashamed of her origin—"every bit as distinctive as the crest which is lucky as the four quarterings, don't you think?"

I had made her a perfunctory answer and thought no more about the matter, although I remembered now that when she had reappeared in our lives in the awful time which ended with her kidnapping on June 10, there had been no mark of any kind upon any of her belongings.

Yet here in my hand lay one of her handkerchiefs with the familiar embroidery upon it! I was as sure of it as I would have been had she suddenly materialized in my room with it in her hand. What did it mean?
I found myself shaking at with a chill. I forced myself to lay the handkerchief back upon the bed, and to sit down in the nearest chair.

Madge Is Terrified.
Ever since the moment when Grace Draper had rushed out into the night, after her melodramatic defiance of Hugh Grantland, who had rescued my boy, I never had been without the secret fear that somewhere, somehow, she would creep poisonously back into my life again. And this in spite of the knowledge that Hugh Grantland, with all the resources at his command, was unobtrusively yet effectively guarding me against this very possibility. The fact, that in spite of him, she had vanished that night, although the darkness had absorbed her bodily, had always filled me with terror, for

I knew that if she were alive the obsessing hatred she bore me was still aflame.
With every bit of will power I possessed I brought myself back to calmness and the question—what should I do?
Instinctively I felt that Hugh Grantland ought to know about this odd happening with its sinister meaning to me. But the last postal card I received from him—the never-failing notification of his whereabouts, bearing only his address and his initials—had been postmarked from the Pacific coast. Was I to summon him across a continent, I asked myself sardonically, because I had seen a handkerchief which I fancied had once belonged to Grace Draper?
My father! Of course! I have become so used to thinking of him as a man broken by illness that I find it hard to realize the rejuvenation which has come to him. I could pour out to him all the unreasoning terror which the sight of the handkerchief had aroused in me without fear of being considered hysterical, which would be mine should Allen Drake chance to hear my story.

This possibility I meant to guard against by asking my father to say nothing of the handkerchief to him. The rest of the story of my meeting with the mysterious Don Ramon, my father would in all probability think it necessary to tell Allen Drake. But surely the matter of the handkerchief could be kept between ourselves.

A knock on the door—Lillian's—started me.
With a sudden unreasoning instinct, I swept handkerchief and folded note and my personal belongings back into my shopping bag before I opened the door. I could not tell why I felt that I must keep from her all knowledge of the message or handkerchief, as I had refrained from telling her anything about the mysterious foreigner when I had first met him upon the stalled train in the tunnel under the river.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Let Dad's homecoming be a happy one for him and the kiddies.
Later in the evening, if there is something about the children which he should know, tell him about it, but do not rouse him to anger and drive away his homecoming happiness by a demand that he give Susie a talking to, or Jimmie a strapping.
These are disagreeable things for him to do, and probably he has had many disagreeable things to perform during his work-a-day effort and he feels that when he reaches home he should be free to enjoy a needed rest.
A man's homecoming should be as cheerful as possible.
Home should be a tonic to help a man to get through the next day of labor and do it well.
Besides, a tired man, annoyed by other things all day, is apt to be unjust and perhaps cruel to his children, if called upon to chastise them as soon as he reaches home.
For your husband's sake, for the children's sake, to make home happier for all of you, greet him with a smile.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish
(Modes of Today)
A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package. Mix fresh as wanted.

ADVERTISING.
POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS.
One-Seventh of Your Gas Bill Last Year Was an Overcharge
VOTE FOR C. G. CARLBERG
For Member of Metropolitan Utilities Board
Pledged to Lower Gas Rates and Better Quality

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS.
VOTE FOR CHAS. B. McDONALD
for SHERIFF
And Enforcement of Law

Dog Hill Paragrafs

By George Bingham
Salem Barlow was at Tickville Monday for the first time in several years. He didn't notice very many changes, except that the Town Marshal has on another hat, and there was a man sitting on the porch at the hotel.

Sile Kildew has made up his mind to dispose of his large watch and chain. He says he has learnt that it is a heap easier to ask somebody what time it is than to have to pull out your own watch every time, besides keeping it wound and oiled.

Mrs. Fletcher Henstep has raised so many pretty flowers she does fondly wish some dear friend would get sick so she could take them a nice bouquet.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

My Marriage Problems

Adele Garrison's New Phase of "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"
(Copyright 1922)

The "Crest" by Which Madge Recognized the Handkerchief.
With hands that I could not keep from shaking, I picked up the filmy handkerchief which the mysterious Don Ramon Almiraz had dropped at my feet, and later had pressed into my hand on the pretense that it was mine.

From its folds I extricated a tiny folded note, unsealed, and bearing no address. This I laid aside for delivery to my father, as the man calling himself Don Ramon had asked, and gave a curious, fleeting thought to the trust which the man had put in me. Evidently he had been sure that I would not open the note. I wondered also if he had decided not to address it because I might recognize the handwriting. But the next instant I had put all conjectures away from me and was staring as it at a basisk at a bit of dainty embroidery in the corner of the kerchief, a handwork I knew only too well.

"Ten Times as Lucky."
Swiftly I traveled back the road of memory to the days when Grace Draper had been Dicky's art protégé and had acted as his model and secretary, the days before her infatuation for him had led her to make my life for awhile a hideous nightmare. She had been often at our home in those days, and I had much admired her social and artistic talents—the undeniable skill which was hers in needlework.

I had observed that every article of clothing she possessed, from her kerchiefs to her gowns, bore somewhere upon it a tiny, delicately embroidered four-leaf clover in olive-green silks. It was oddly designed, most cleverly executed, and once she had commented upon it laughingly. "It is my crest," she had laughed a trifle bitterly—I guessed that she was ashamed of her origin—"every bit as distinctive as the crest which is lucky as the four quarterings, don't you think?"

I had made her a perfunctory answer and thought no more about the matter, although I remembered now that when she had reappeared in our lives in the awful time which ended with her kidnapping on June 10, there had been no mark of any kind upon any of her belongings.

Yet here in my hand lay one of her handkerchiefs with the familiar embroidery upon it! I was as sure of it as I would have been had she suddenly materialized in my room with it in her hand. What did it mean?
I found myself shaking at with a chill. I forced myself to lay the handkerchief back upon the bed, and to sit down in the nearest chair.

Madge Is Terrified.
Ever since the moment when Grace Draper had rushed out into the night, after her melodramatic defiance of Hugh Grantland, who had rescued my boy, I never had been without the secret fear that somewhere, somehow, she would creep poisonously back into my life again. And this in spite of the knowledge that Hugh Grantland, with all the resources at his command, was unobtrusively yet effectively guarding me against this very possibility. The fact, that in spite of him, she had vanished that night, although the darkness had absorbed her bodily, had always filled me with terror, for

I knew that if she were alive the obsessing hatred she bore me was still aflame.
With every bit of will power I possessed I brought myself back to calmness and the question—what should I do?
Instinctively I felt that Hugh Grantland ought to know about this odd happening with its sinister meaning to me. But the last postal card I received from him—the never-failing notification of his whereabouts, bearing only his address and his initials—had been postmarked from the Pacific coast. Was I to summon him across a continent, I asked myself sardonically, because I had seen a handkerchief which I fancied had once belonged to Grace Draper?
My father! Of course! I have become so used to thinking of him as a man broken by illness that I find it hard to realize the rejuvenation which has come to him. I could pour out to him all the unreasoning terror which the sight of the handkerchief had aroused in me without fear of being considered hysterical, which would be mine should Allen Drake chance to hear my story.

This possibility I meant to guard against by asking my father to say nothing of the handkerchief to him. The rest of the story of my meeting with the mysterious Don Ramon, my father would in all probability think it necessary to tell Allen Drake. But surely the matter of the handkerchief could be kept between ourselves.

A knock on the door—Lillian's—started me.
With a sudden unreasoning instinct, I swept handkerchief and folded note and my personal belongings back into my shopping bag before I opened the door. I could not tell why I felt that I must keep from her all knowledge of the message or handkerchief, as I had refrained from telling her anything about the mysterious foreigner when I had first met him upon the stalled train in the tunnel under the river.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can be afforded, yes. The love of music is partly a matter of education; many persons are born loving music, but many more have been taught this love.

Common Sense
Is Dad's Home-Come a Happy One?
Mother, when Dad steps inside the door, at the end of his day's work, do not start immediately to tell him of the annoying things done by the children during the day.

Household Notes.
In sewing lace on hems of dresses by hand, use a small embroidery hoop, holding the hoop in the left hand with the edge of the hem about one-half inch from the edge of the hoop, the hem stretched tightly and the lace rather loosely.

Parents' Problems
Should young people who do not care for music be given music lessons?
If the lessons can