

Mothers Having Inning in Amateur Editorial Contest

Union Pacific Employee Advocates Greater Participation by Them in Public Affairs.

The mothers are having their innings in the amateur editorial writing contest conducted by The Omaha Bee. From Schuyler, Neb., a housewife writes of the greatness of unselfish service. Another sends her opinion on girls and cigars from Cedar Rapids. An Omaha mother writes on the Boy Scouts.

They do not discuss themselves, but deal with topics of a public nature. It remained for Fred D. Keogh, a Union Pacific employee, to pay a tribute to the mothers. In the following editorial entry he advocates a greater participation in public affairs by the mothers:

If a woman runs for office in any of the elections, either city, state or national, in this great country of ours, you will often hear she is getting back home "why doesn't she get back home where she belongs—that's a woman's place. And yet, if the truth be stated, the one person who is most qualified for the work of making a country's laws is none other than "mother."

Mothers should also be largely represented on every committee that discusses industrial disputes; they also should figure in large numbers on the boards of education.

A mother knows better than father or son what is the matter with both of them. This helps her to fathom the truth behind the action of any other mother's husband or sons. You can't fool mother. She understands father's every whim, she understands the boy better than the father does. Politicians the world over are trying a league of nations and numbers of prominent men attended conferences to make peace in the world. Let them try a "League of Mothers." The power of the mother is untold at present.

The Footpad Relents. A young man was held up by a footpad, who took all the money he had, and was about to take his watch. "Stop," said the young man; have you ever had a mother? My mother gave me that watch. "You cut that out," said the footpad, but he handed the young man back his watch.

A merchant of Tekamah and a minister were among the contestants entering yesterday. A citizen of Council Bluffs wrote an article, "Central High School student advocated more public tennis courts and baseball diamonds and a resident of South Omaha discussed neighborliness."

Among the other topics were "the automobile evils," "youth and the good old days" and the absorption of handicapped men into industry. A preacher flayed the suggestion of Judge Wapchick for a whipping post.

James R. Lee, a student and supply pastor at Murray, Neb., has entered an editorial on "Democracy and Self-Control," which may be taken as a model both for brevity and thought. It reads as follows:

Democracy is not a thing accomplished once for all. It is a thing that is never finished. There are many things that need to be guarded against continually. Chief of these is laxity in self-control.

Self-government must indeed be "government of self" or it will quickly cease to exist. The nation whose individual citizens cannot control themselves must resort to some other form of rule.

As long as 51 per cent of the people remain somewhere within calling distance of the golden rule, popular government will be able to stand. When a majority of the people abandon self-control and seek only to accomplish their own selfish ends, democracy must give way or the nation will destroy itself.

Someone has said that the saddest thing in the world is the spectacle of a people whose national soul is decayed. Nothing will destroy the soul more quickly than selfishness. If, then, the spirit of the nation depends upon the spirit of the individual citizens, it behooves each one to look beyond his own personal profit and pleasure to the good of all. Self-control, then, is the most important thing, and much to be desired in America!

Contest Closes August 10. The Bee's editorial writing contest for persons not connected with any newspaper will close August 10. Prizes of $25, $15 and $10 are to be awarded. The three winning editorials will then be entered in a sweepstakes for the grand prizes, which will be matched with the winners of similar contests being held by 23 other Nebraska newspapers. The first prize in this latter contest is $100, the second, $50, and the third, $25. The awards will be made under the direction of the Nebraska State Press association, and announced at its meeting in Omaha August 31.

Editorials submitted for the prize contest must not be more than 300 words in length. Some restrictions have been made regarding the word limit and, accordingly, ineligible. However, each person may submit three editorials. Entries should be mailed to the Editorial Contest Editor, The Omaha Bee.

Iowa Farmers Should Own Orchards, Says Expert

Des Moines, Ia.—Iowa farmers are overlooking millions of dollars every year by failing to go into the orchard business more extensively, say officials of the Iowa State fair. To show farm owners of the state what really can be produced by a good orchard, the coming state fair will have a mammoth display of all Iowa-grown fruits in the agricultural buildings.

The Farmer's Wife Secretary of Farm Bureau to Address Farmers of State

J. W. Coverdale Comes to Nebraska Later Part of July to Speak on Organized Agriculture.

Lincoln, July 16.—J. W. Coverdale, secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation, will come to Nebraska during the latter part of July to deliver three addresses in the interest of organized agriculture. He will speak at a country-wide picnic to be held in Richardson county on July 25, Buffalo county on July 26 and at a big farmers' picnic to be held at Battle Creek, July 27 under the auspices of the Madison county Farm Bureau federation.

Last year the Madison county picnic, with an attendance of close to 30,000, outdid anything in the country in point of attendance. Coverdale is a recognized national leader in farm organization work. He was one of the organizers of the American Farm Bureau federation and has been its secretary since the beginning of the organization. He is a graduate of the Iowa Agricultural college and has been engaged in scientific farming and farm organization work all his life.

Culls Iowa Farmers Organize Fight on Insect Pest

Letters Mailed to Farm Bureau Members Warning of Appearance of Dreaded Chinch Bug.

Des Moines, Ia., July 16.—Farmers are organizing a fight against one of the worst insect pests which has appeared in the state this year, the chinch bug, according to reports from various farm bureaus received by R. S. Derrick, secretary of the State Horticultural society.

The chinch bug, according to the bulletin, is to be found first in wheat, corn, rye, barley, cane and sudan grass fields. During the fall months the adult bug harbors in some rubbish such as cornstalks, grass stubble or fence rows. In the spring they come from their winter quarters and lay their eggs on the above mentioned plants, laying their eggs.

When the eggs are hatched the small bug is red and about the size of an ordinary pin head. These bugs will grow into a bug with wings, but they do not develop a wing strong enough for flight. They are found in wheat, corn, rye, barley, cane and sudan grass fields. During the fall months the adult bug harbors in some rubbish such as cornstalks, grass stubble or fence rows. In the spring they come from their winter quarters and lay their eggs on the above mentioned plants, laying their eggs.

When the temperature is 90 or over, the question is not how much heat can the body make, but how little. Therefore, decrease the food intake by so much as to keep the body cool. In the third place dress lightly. The fundamental reason for the wearing of clothes is to lessen the rate at which the body throws off heat. Of course there are secondary reasons for wearing clothes, such as fashion, the wiles of dressmakers, rivalry, envy, false pride, sex attraction, the aesthetic sense, the love of beauty, and so on and ad infinitum.

How to Keep Well

HOW YOU CAN KEEP COOL.
Drink no alcoholic beverages of any sort.

In the first place, drinking alcoholic beverages sends an excessive amount of blood to the skin. The skin is about the only tissue in the body that can feel heat. The blood is hot. Therefore, drinking alcoholic beverages makes you feel hotter than you are.

Comparing the summer of 1921 with that of 1920 we find that the former was much the hotter. On the other hand, the death from heat in Chicago during 1921 were 26 as compared with 535 in 1920.

Most cases of sunstroke were cases of beerstroke, as this column has contended for years. In the second place, eat lightly. Digesting food, and especially digesting meat, makes heat, as Lusk has shown.

A considerable part of the caloric requirements, as figured by the physiologists, are for the purpose of furnishing heat. When the temperature is 90 or over, the question is not how much heat can the body make, but how little.

Financial

By FRANKLIN K. SPRAGUE

New York, July 17.—Continued buying of Liberty and gilt edged corporation issues has been one of the outstanding developments of recent days. This renewal of activity in the bond market, which has carried the government securities to new high levels since the date of issue and which has caused substantial advances in other quarters of the investment market, is linked up with a further easing in money rates. While the call loan market is by no means an accurate index to conditions, still it does give evidence of the day-to-day floating supply of funds and it was significant that last week the rate on demand loans dropped to the new low of the year, 2 1/4 per cent.

Time money, while showing no recession in actual rates, was eased toward the close of the week, since accommodations were arranged in some instances at a price which was under the generally quoted figure.

Trend of Money Lower.
Ever since the first of the year, in fact, long before then, the trend of money rates has been toward lower levels and a more decided trend has advanced. The continued buying of bonds and the easing of conditions in the money market is a reflection of the fact that the rate on commercial paper showed a downward trend in the last six months. This has been due to the fact that the rate on commercial paper has been lower than the rate on government securities, and this has been the case since the last of the year.

Both of these factors are subject to sudden changes. It has been the record of the money market in the past few years that the rate on commercial paper has been lower than the rate on government securities, and this has been the case since the last of the year.
