Omaha, July 24, 1922. A heavy run of receipts in all markets today caused wheat prices to decline materially, and the corn and oats sympathized with the weakness. The cash demand was not adequate to absorb the offerings and lower levels were reached in the cash market. The visible supply of wheat increased 170,000 bushels, corn decreased 2,231,000 bushels and oats decreased 4,242,000 bushels. Receipts of wheat in Omaha were 474 cars, against 277 cars last year. Corn receipts 51 cars, against 65 cars. Total shipments were 141 cars, as compared with 221 cars last year.

By CHARLES D. MICHAELS. Chicago, July 24.—Heaviness and lower prices featured the grain markets. There was little resistance to the selling pressure, which was largely of a liquidating and hedging character. Prices declined to low levels for all wheat futures, except July, December and January. The close was at losses of 20 3/4c on wheat, July leading, 1/4c on corn, the latter on December, and 1/4c on oats, with July the weakest. Rye sold 1/4c higher, unchanged and short rye, 5/8c, 1/2c lower compared with Saturday's close.

By FRANKLIN K. SPRAGUE. New York, July 24.—The stock market was distinctly under the influence of adverse news developments, particularly those relating to the labor situation. As compared with the irregularity in the closing days of last week weakness was manifest and quotations in some of the more speculative issues lost 1 to 3 points. To a large extent price recessions were brought about by operations of speculators for the decline, but it is possible that there was a change of sentiment in Wall street regarding the railroad and coal mining difficulties. There was a tinge of doubt regarding the situation at the close of last week and the failure of week-end developments to provide a basis of understanding and settlement between the companies and their men was construed as being unfavorable, since much had been expected.

Weakness General. Weakness was by no means confined to the stock market. Cotton reached sharply and what was under pressure in Chicago. Even the bond market, which has been slightly reactionary, even though Liberty bonds were held in the market, showed the only evidence of weakness in the bond market was to be found in those issues having a maturity date of 1923. The foreign exchanges were moderately strong. The gold market was active and showed a loss for the day of a point.

Both the automobile stocks and the oil shares showed the effects of selling, and this was particularly true with relation to the latter. The price of oil was depressed and the oil shares were accordingly lower. The price of oil was depressed and the oil shares were accordingly lower. The price of oil was depressed and the oil shares were accordingly lower.
