

Mrs. Taylor Held by Coroner's Jury for Freiden Death

Verdict for First Degree Charge Reached After Deliberation of Less Than Five Minutes.

A coroner's jury, out less than five minutes, recommended yesterday that Mrs. Linda Taylor be held on the charge of first degree murder for killing Sam C. Freiden, Council Bluffs business man.

The Pottawattamie county court house was crowded long before the hour set for the inquest with friends and relatives of the slain man and neighbors of the W. H. Taylors at 822 Avenue D, where the shooting took place Wednesday noon.

Mrs. Taylor seemed the most disinterested spectator. Slight, colorless and clad in a faded gingham dress and pink sailor hat, she sat expressionless throughout the hearing, only perking herself up with an air of self-justification whenever neighbor-witnesses quoted her as having said: "He ruined my home" or "He attacked me, so I shot him!"

High Spots of Evidence.
The only sign of nervousness she exhibited was frequent moistening of her lips with her tongue. Two high spots of evidence developed in the hearing. One was the testimony of Dave Eiseman, grocer on the corner, that Mrs. Taylor used the telephone in his store to call Freiden's office, the day before the shooting. When told Freiden was not in, she declined to leave a message or give her name and telephone number, he said.

To a reporter for The Omaha Bee, after the inquest, Mrs. Taylor denied that she ever telephoned Freiden, but County Attorney Charles E. Swanson, who will prosecute the case in the September term of court, declares that he will produce evidence that the woman did phone Freiden frequently, and did so several times the day of the murder.

Said to Be Irrational.
Relatives quoted M. I. Ansie, Freiden's partner, as having stated "a Miss Taylor" phoned for Freiden, when he delivered the message, Freiden's reply was: "Who is she and what does she want? I don't know who it could be."

Neighbor women testified Mrs. Taylor was frequently irrational, that she suffered "brain storms" and that they were afraid of her. Mrs. Eiseman, wife of the grocer, testified Mrs. Taylor rushed into her store a month ago, to telephone to police.

"My neighbor murdered my child," she told the police. I ran out into the street to see what was going on and there was her child, playing peacefully in the yard," said Mrs. Eiseman.

"Afraid of Her."
Mrs. Matilda Stegall, 814 Avenue D testified. "I was afraid of her and so are the rest of the neighbors. A doctor told Mrs. Carlson, another neighbor, that Mrs. Taylor had brain storms and for us not to aggravate her."

When Taylor yelled to Mrs. Stegall to call police after the shooting, Mrs. Stegall said she was afraid to run out the front way for fear Mrs. Taylor would shoot her, too.

Mrs. Lillie Lewis, 815 Avenue E, rear, testified Mrs. Taylor told her Freiden "tried" to attack her and that she "warned him if he came again she'd shoot."

Testimony Varies.
Testimony of witnesses varied as to the time Mrs. Taylor told them the alleged attack took place. None of Mrs. Taylor's relatives, not even her husband or father, were visible in the court room. No one but newspaper folks attempted to speak to her as the sheriff led her back to jail.

Her attorney, John P. Tinley, indicated the defense would not plead emotional insanity, but would adhere to her story that she shot to defend her honor.

T. F. Callaghan, Peter Hansen and Charles Beschean, neighbors who saw the woman emerge from the house with the revolver in her hand and saw her husband take it away from her, also were called to the stand.

Mrs. Taylor did not testify. Freidens Retain Lawyers.
George S. Wright and Addison G. Kittle, attorneys retained by relatives of Freiden to assist in the prosecution of Mrs. Taylor say they will clear the dead man of charges brought against him by the woman in her statement to police after the shooting.

Mrs. Taylor alleges that Freiden came to her home, 822 Avenue D, about 2 on the afternoon of Tuesday, July 18, and attacked her. Funeral services for Freiden will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 from the home of his brother-in-law, 737 Myrnestreet.

Rabbi Singer of Lincoln, Neb., will officiate and the services will be in charge of Bluff City lodge, A. F. & A. M., authorization for a Masonic burial having been received yesterday by wire from Freiden's lodge at Silver City, Ia. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Tot Held to Satisfy Board Bill Auctioned to Highest Bidder

Chicago, July 28.—Held to satisfy a $405 board and doctor bill incurred by her father, now serving a term in the house of correction, Marie Baker, 5, was sold at auction by Judge Adams in the court of domestic relations to the highest bidder.

The child was "knocked down" to Mr. and Mrs. John Kenney, wealthy residents of Kentville, Minn. Their bid was $30. When Marie's mother died a year ago, her father took her to board at the home of Mrs. A. Stolpman. He fell behind in his payments and Mrs. Stolpman brought him into the court on a charge of contributing to the dependency of a child. When he could not pay the judge sent him to the house of correction.

Short Editorials Have Equal Chance in Prize Contest

Limit is 500 Words, but 100 Words May Be Better—Conciseness May Determine Winner.

Your editorial for The Omaha Bee's editorial-writing contest need not be long. The maximum limit is 500 words but if you can write a good one in 100 words, so much the better. Brevity is the soul of wit and may be the soul of an editorial. It's a pleasant game to play with the English language,—to see how brief and concise and clear you can make a thought that is in your mind. The world is busy and wants to get your thought in the fewest possible words. Now is the time to write it you're going to take advantage of this opportunity to win cash and maybe fame. Contest closes August 10. Prizes are $25, $15 and $10 for the three best editorials written by a reader of The Omaha Bee who is not a newspaper worker. These three with winners in similar contests on 23 other Nebraska papers will be contestants for the three super-prizes of $100, $50, and $25.

The three super-prize winners will be brought to Omaha at the expense of The Omaha Bee to be honor guests at a banquet to the Nebraska Press association. Write on one side of the paper and put your name, address and occupation on the first sheet, upper left corner. Address manuscript to Editorial Contest Editor, The Omaha Bee.
