

Mid Summer Scenes in Beautiful Omaha Gardens

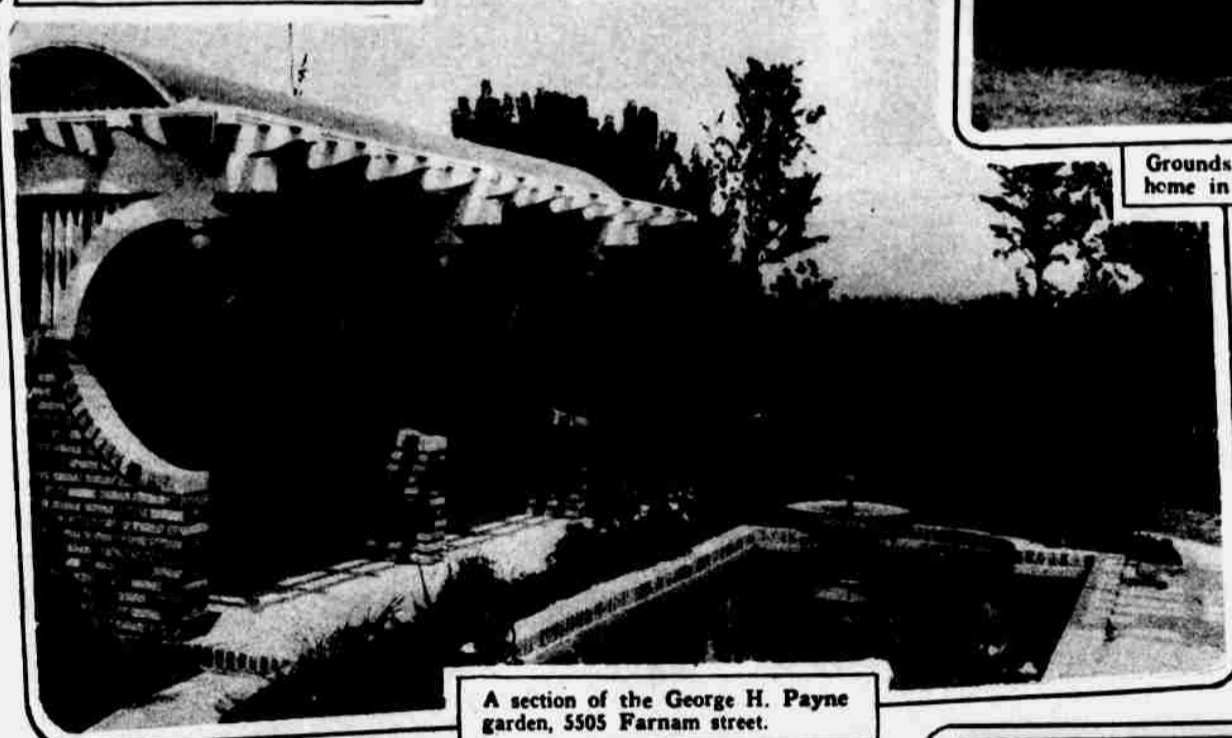

Hedge lined pathways form ideal playgrounds for Lee W. Kennard, Jr., son of L. W. Kennard, Sixty-fourth and Dodge streets.

Grounds of the D. C. Eldredge home in Fairacres.

Mrs. George A. Roberts and daughter, Elizabeth, in the gardens of "Gray Rocks."

A section of the George H. Payne garden, 5505 Farnam street.

?
Photos
by
Dewell
?

This lily pond is in the gardens of "Joslyn Castle," 3902 Davenport street, home of Mrs. George A. Joslyn.

Looking through the vine shaded grape arbor, pride of George A. Roberts, owner of Gray Rocks, Fairacres.

Vista through the imposing trees in the grounds of the F. J. Farrington home, 2218 North Fifty-sixth street. Mrs. Farrington walking among the trees.

This attractive Italian court is in the garden of the Charles Kountze home, 3925 Dewey avenue. Mrs. Kountze at the right in the photo.

A beautiful spot for dolly's afternoon siesta. Mrs. John L. Kennedy and daughter, Katherine, in the garden of their Fairacres home.

Miss Ruth Wallace, granddaughter of F. B. Kennard, West Dodge street, posed in the graceful, fragrant rose arbor that forms one of the beauties of the Kennard garden.

Mrs. A. B. Carris, 409 North Fifty-first street, photographed in the arbor entrance to her garden.

Treatment of the grounds surrounding the entrance to the attractive Adolph Storz home in Fairacres forms a fine example of landscape gardening. Mrs. Storz and son, Hayden, are shown in the picture.

Winding paths and variegated shrubbery feature the garden at the Richard Peters home, 4902 California street. The photograph shows Mrs. Peters in one of the garden nooks she likes best.

re
est
rest
ted
a
was
ore,
lth.
alth
to
was ran-
that a
with

ays
ham
gencific
ued
to
a
e:
tur-
vice rity.
gray
cific
liga-
has
and

outh
rian,
with
ham
at ects.
eing

des
fo
olic