

THE OMAHA SUNDAY BEE—ROTOGRAVURE SECTION

A downtown corner in prosperous Falls City, Neb., showing the Richardson county bank and other business buildings. At the top right, postoffice building; below, Falls City High school.

W. J. Miller (left), president of the Gardner Miller Coal company, and Richard C. Peters (right), president of the Peters Trust company, do a bit of farming in odd hours during the summer on a tract west of Dundee. Photo by Dewell.

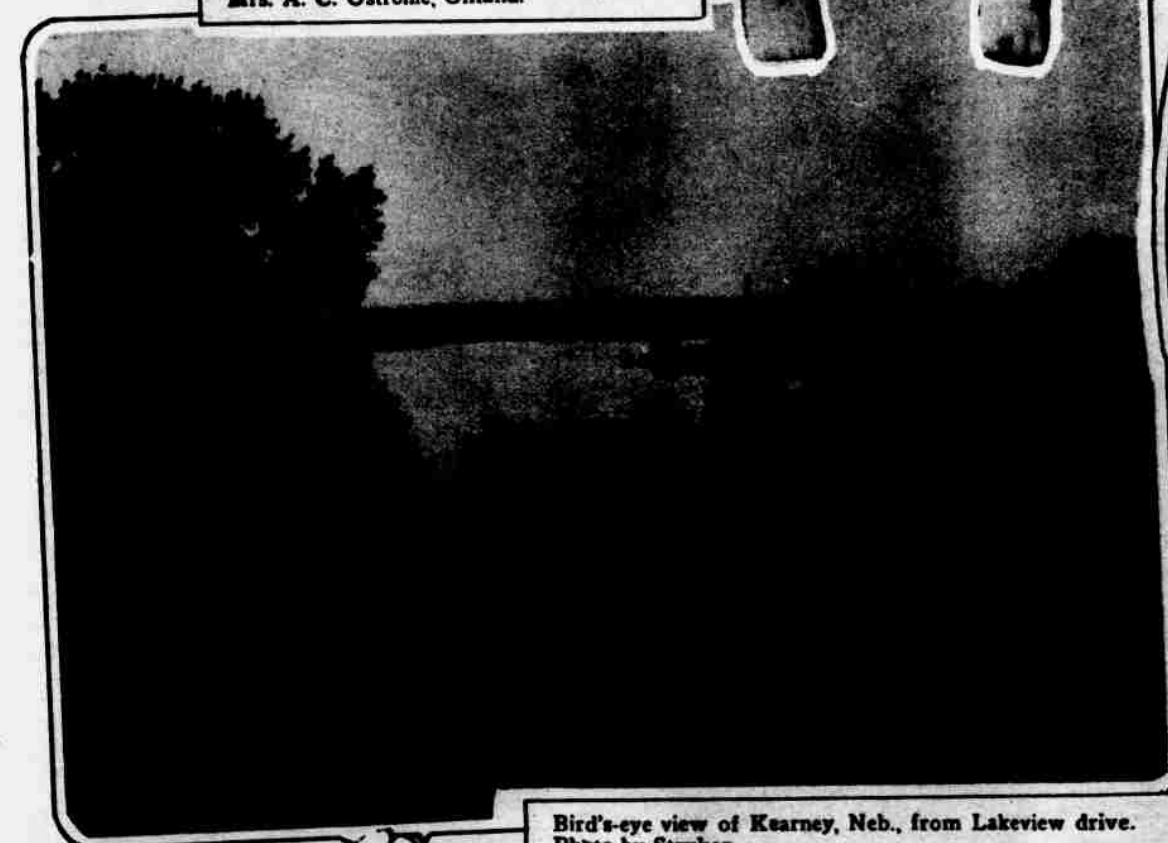

"His first letter," nosed by Florence and Phillip Martin of Barada, Neb. Photo by J. A. Martin.

Right, Mary Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ostronic, Omaha.

If there's anything harder to photograph than one deer, it must be two deer, amateur photographers agree. T. S. Frerichs, Talmage, Neb., patiently awaited his chance and caught five of them at one shot. The photograph was taken on the farm of D. Livingston, near Talmage.

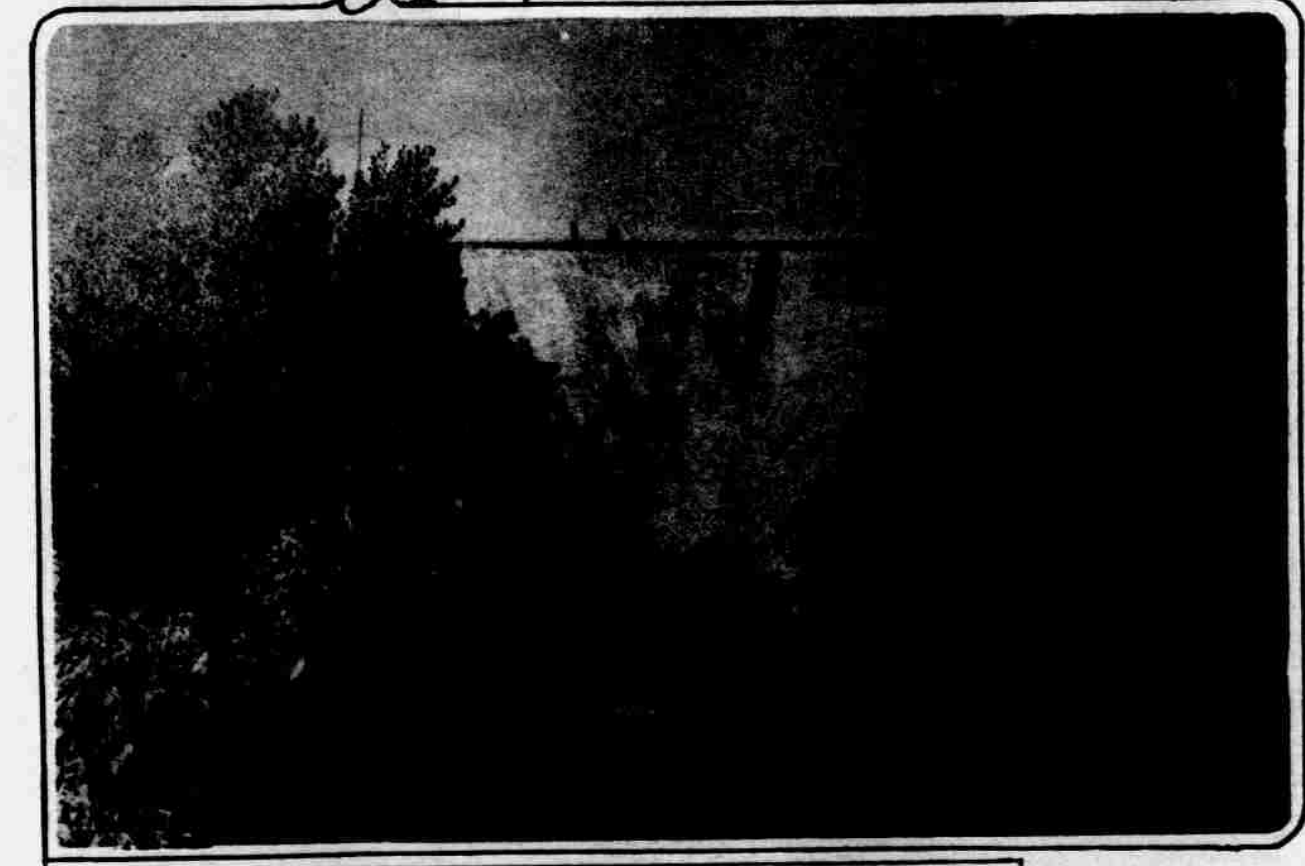

Bird's-eye view of Kearney, Neb., from Lakeview drive. Photo by Stryker.

Jeane Mabelle daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. I. Grimm of Wilber, Neb.

On the links at the Country club, Kearney, Neb. Above, the boathouse and landing pier.

Tons of water surging over the spillway of the power and irrigation canal near Kearney, Neb. Photo by Stryker.

Left, Charles Schmicke, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schmicke of Nebraska City.

Right, William Frank Hewitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Hewitt, Council Bluffs.

ed?
which ed on passed inning at legislators
muzzle
unusu-
a be-bul of a dog
dog
lains,
the being
court
con-
the cause grize
ays,
ills to
saled,
reme
busi-
?