It was found that the physical features of the valley presented many possibilities and several alternate schemes of irrigation and power development.

The field parties to date have located 455 miles of main canal and have taken the topography for 15 reservoirs, having a combined area of 34,125 acres and storage capacity of 1,334,024 acre feet of water.

The reservoir sites are inland. Water is to be conveyed to them from the river, with the exception of two on the North Platte river, at Keyston and Leno.

Troops Are Moved

France Sends 6,000 Soldiers to Block Expected Advance on Constantinople by King Constantine.

English Force Increased

Paris, July 30.—About 6,000 French troops, mostly Cenegease and Moroccan veterans, were rushed up to the Chataldia lines above Constantinople to block by force of arms the expected Greek advance, the French government announces.

The French, British and Italian governments are afraid that King Constantine of Greece intends to undertake a reckless coup de theater against Constantinople. Owing to the reports from their highest commissioners there, all three powers have sent sharp notes to Athens in the last 48 hours.

Allied military and diplomatic representatives at Constantinople report large concentrations of Greek troops in Thrace. The French cabinet asked Great Britain, which has an ample navy force for the purpose, to stop all Greek maritime commerce in near eastern waters in the event of Greek offensive.

Settlements Uproar. In any event the Greek note delivered to the allied government is upsets all prospective settlements of the Greco-Turkish war.

King Constantine, whose throne is trembling, has taken this action in the face of preparations by Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Lloyd George to discuss a near east settlement in London shortly, and in the face of a new American note to the allies suggesting an inquiry commission to be organized by American and neutral Red Cross representatives in Constantinople.

London, July 30.—Distinct uneasiness is seen in political and financial circles here following the Paris Tribune's exclusive announcement of the Greek submission to seize Constantinople, coupled with Prime Minister Lloyd George's pessimistic war warnings before nonconformists yesterday.

Today Sir Laming Worthington Evans, minister of war, ordered a reinforcement of the British garrison at Constantinople by the Second battalion of the Royal Sussex regiment, now stationed at Malta. These 1,000 men are to be rushed to the Golden Horn immediately by the fastest transport available to strengthen the allied forces, chiefly the French, including a handful of Italian and British troops.

Any attempted Greek advance would strike Chataldia, following the sole railway, as the Greeks are unable to approach by sea through the presence of the powerful British fleet in the Sea of Marmora.

Diplomatic and military circles here fear that a portion of the Greek army, stationed at Thrace, may attempt a raid on Constantinople despite the efforts of the Athens government to hold them in check, as the allied representative has wired Constantinople against such an enterprise.

General Hadjianni, commander of the Greek army, has arrived in Thrace by a fast destroyer from Smyrna.

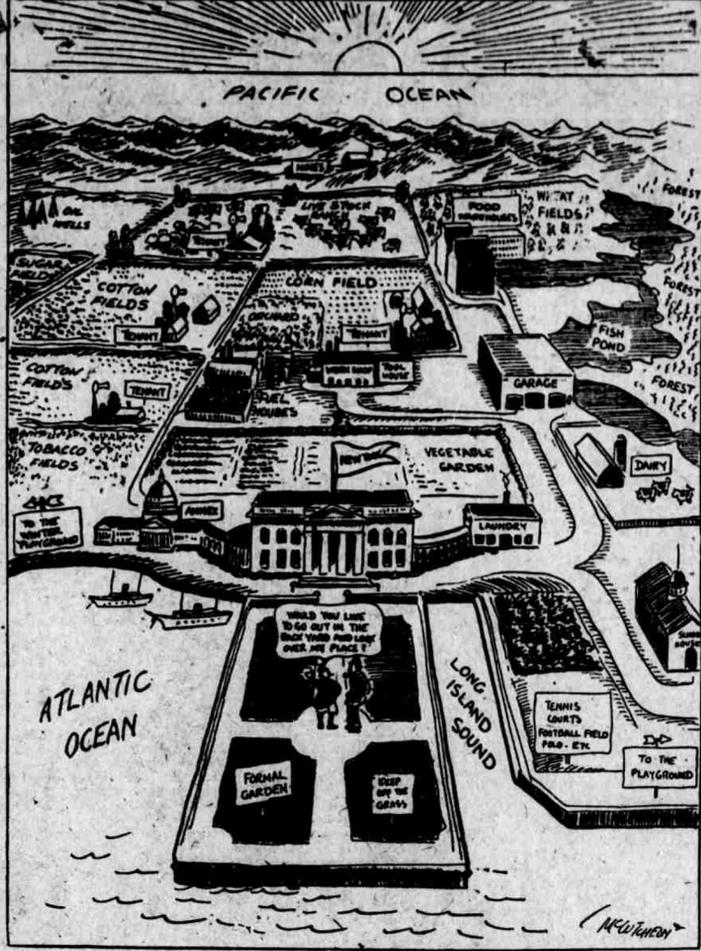

After an inspection of the troops, Gen. Hadjianni reported that he had ordered a substitution of disaffected divisions stationed for two years in Thrace by fresh troops from Asia Minor.

Admiralty officials here admit that British warships could not shell Constantinople, as they would kill civilians and innocents, if the Greeks attempt to fight their way to the city, and forces alone could expel them.

Bryan Is Absent as Democrats Hold County Meeting

Arthur Mullen Reports gubernatorial Nominee Is "Stuck in Mud Somewhere in Iowa."

In spite of the wet grounds and threatening weather, a crowd of about 800 attended a meeting of Douglas county democrats at Krug park Saturday night, held under the auspices of the Jefferson and Nebraska Democratic clubs. About 90 women were present.

Charles Bryan, democratic nominee for governor, was unable to be present. Arthur Mullen stated Mr. Bryan was "stuck in the mud somewhere in Iowa."

Mayor J. Dahlman denounced the republican party, alleging it had failed in its pledges.

"This fall will see the greatest campaign in years," said Mayor Dahlman. "To save democracy we must lay aside all differences we have had in the past and put men in office to give the people the relief they are entitled to."

Dr. Jennie Callias, national state committee woman, agreed with Mayor Dahlman that the party must be united if it desires success at the polls in November.

James H. Hanley, democratic nominee for congress, criticized Governor McKelvie for high taxes, declared the pending tariff bill was outrageous and bitterly denounced big business and special interests for "listening in with radio" in the White House.

It appears that a nonpartisan wave is making great headway in the country now," said Harry Fleharty, defeated candidate at the primaries. Agreement Reported in Rail Strike

Man in Close Touch With Situation Says Peace Terms Reached in Shopmen's Walkout.

Ratification Is Assured

Chicago, July 30.—(By A. P.)—Peace terms already have been agreed to in the country-wide railroad strike and formal ratification has been assured through President Harding's efforts, it was asserted Sunday night by a man in close official touch with the situation.

All that now remains before the strike which has cost the workers upward of $40,000,000 in wages passed into history, it was asserted, was the formal endorsement of the terms of settlement by the railway executives, meeting in New York and the strike leaders who will convene in Chicago at the same hour, Tuesday.

Omaha Bee Labeled Wins. Washington, July 30.—The administration looks confidently to the present week to mark the passing of the industrial crisis.

Conferees already called or likely to be called in both the rail and coal strikes will have before them plans which it is believed will furnish a basis of settlement.

Peace in the rail strike hinges upon the outcome of the conference in New York of the railroad executives and in Chicago of the shopmen.

The way to end the coal strike may be found at conferences which President Lewis of the mine workers and a peacefully inclined faction of the bituminous operators are endeavoring now to arrange.

Flaw in Outlook. The chief flaw in the outlook is the continued attitude of a group of eastern railroad executives, headed by President Loree of the Delaware & Hudson railroad, who are unwilling to yield an inch in their stand against restoring seniority rights to the striking.

Admission was made in official circles that some anxiety is felt that Loree may be able to swing a sufficient number of executives into line against acceptance of the president's plan to block the way to settlement.

Loree's stand against compromise on the seniority issue has won some of the public interest in the strike, and considerable sympathy among large employers all over the country.

Outlook Optimistic. However, the general feeling in Washington is that the rail executives in the end will yield. Mr. Harding had repeatedly asserted that the public interest is paramount in the industrial situation and he is understood to have taken the position that the seniority issue, however important, does not compare with the necessity for settling the rail strike and keeping the railroads running.

If conferences during the coming week do not show the road to settlement of the coal strike, the period of marking time by the federal government in this phase of the industrial situation will come to an end. Settlement of the rail strike would also place the administration in a better position to deal with the coal situation.

It is frankly admitted in official circles that the president's "invitation" to the coal operators to reopen their properties and resume the production of coal has not led to any very encouraging results, and unless the contenting factions soon come together voluntarily, some more effective means of intervention by the federal government must be found. The principal lack of success of Mr. Harding's invitation plan is to be found in the weekly report of the geological survey, which showed that the gain in production amounted to only 200,000 tons for the week.
