Prospects Bright for Action on Measure August 17 or 19 -Democrats Propose Course to End Fight.

Washington, Aug. 22.-A unani-mous consent agreement Thursday in the senate for a final vote on the administration tariff bill on either August 17 or 19 was hoped for by both republican and democratic leaders after a series of proposals, counter-proposals and conferences on the Objection by a single senator would upset the carefully laid plans, but leaders on both sides said they knew of no senator who was unwilling that there should be a speedy ending to a controversy that has engaged the senator restrictly continued. gaged the senate practically continuously since April 20.

The first move for an agreement for a final vote came from the democratic side, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, after a conference with other minority leaders, proposing August 19 as the date. Action on this proposal was deferred at the request of the republicans, and after the senate adjourned majority and minority leaders went into conference. Just what transpired at this session is not altogether clear, but spokesmen for each side were agreed that Senator Simmons would renew his original proposition upon the convening of the senate at noon Thursday and that the republicans would put forward a counter-proposal for a vote on August 1%

Compromise Reported.

Majority leaders had a conference Tuesday night at which alternated dates, August 15 and September 1 were agreed upon for suggestions to minority leaders. When the bipar-tisan conference was held late Wed-nesday, August 15 was put forward by the republicans as a substitute for the date proposed by the democrats Some of those who came out of the conference before its breaking up said August 17 had been agred upon Under the agreement submitted to the senate by Senator Simmons, there would be a final vote on remaining committee amendments to the bill on August 11. This was approved by the conference, it was said by some of those attending. Mr. Simmons proposed that after that date debate should be limited to the tariff bill itself, with the time equally divided between the two sides. Republican leaders proposed that debate be confined strictly to the bill and amendments, beginning Thursday, but this detail presumably will be settled on the senate floor.

Would Limit Debate.

After August 11, under the agreement, individual amendments would be discussed and acted upon. Those pending at 11 a. m. on the date to be near Plattsmouth, agreed upon for a final vote would be voted upon immediately without further discussion. The republicans sought in the bipartisan conference to have debate limited to 10 minutes to each senator, but the democrats objected to this being done on account of the pending fights over duties on sugar and hides.

The conference apparently were agreed that the unanimous consent agreement would not operate to pre vent Senator Gooding of Idaho, chairman of the republican agricultural tariff bloc, from offering his proposed resolution or an investigation of the interest, if any, of all senators in tariff duties voted into the bill. Such a resolution could be introduced, however, only by unanimous consent and some republicans indicated that this probably would be difficult to obtain. Senator Gooding said he was working on his resolution and hoped to have it ready not later than Friday.

The senate was in session only four hours, adjourning out of respect to Senator Crow of Pennsyl vania, but in that time it approved a number of rates in the pulp, paper and book schedule as revised downward by the finance committee ma-jority to practically the levels in the
