

"Naughty" Girls Blamed by Judge to Gay Mothers

Delinquency Among Kansas City Daughters Increased 20 Per Cent in Two Years, Porterfield Says.

Kansas City, Aug. 12.—Within two years juvenile delinquency among girls has increased 20 per cent, according to Judge E. E. Porterfield of the Kansas City juvenile court. This perceptible increase can be attributed directly to the lure of bright lights and the gay mothers of today, the judge declared.

"For the first time in the history of this court I have observed that the girls are going back on me," Judge Porterfield explained. "I am shocked. The girls of today are far too independent for their own benefit. For some inexplicable reason the majority among the youths of today—boys and girls—refuse to listen to the advice given by their elders."

Mothers Are Gay.

"The mothers who are constantly seeking entertainments outside of the home and those who make a practice of leaving their broods to the care of a trained nurse, are partially responsible for the utter disregard with which girls are treating the moral code."

Historical data has it that there was once a period when little girls "were made of sugar and spice and everything nice." But those days are pronouncedly past now, court attendants declare.

Girls Learn Early.

Young girls are showing a marked tendency to learn early the ways of dangerous gaiety, nightly revels away from the home and numerous unconventional things, according to a woman probation officer. A loose moral viewpoint is largely to blame, she said. "The future of society is at stake, and the courts should immediately adopt strenuous methods to curb these evils," she declared.

Dog, Beaten by His Master, Goes to His Rescue Later

Deater, Maine, Aug. 12.—"I hated to do it," said Elmer Rogatello, with tears as he stroked the large head of his faithful Regis, "and it taught me a great lesson."

Shortly after giving a severe flogging to his bound Elmer Rogatello, a miller, lost his footing while crossing a sluiceway and fell into the millpond. He could not swim. The faithful beast, attracted by his cries, bleeding from the whipping, painfully leaped to the rescue and dragged his master to safety.

Rogatello had beaten his dog under the belief that the animal had killed a neighbor's lamb and later found it to be false.

Court Trials to Be Revolutionized by "Lie Detector," Police Head Says

Here are two illustrations of the "lie detector" machine. In the top picture you see Dr. Larsen making an actual test on an alleged criminal. The lower photo shows the instrument attached to the arm of the man upon whom the test was made. Fortunately, the machine proved the absolute innocence of this man, whose name is withheld for obvious reasons.

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 12.—What will be the invention of the "lie detector" mean to criminal investigation? This question was asked Chief of Police August Vollmer, head of the only police department in the world employing the device and in whose department it was worked out by Dr. J. A. Larsen, one of Vollmer's super-cops, who is a university graduate and a scientist.

"It will eliminate conviction of the innocent and insure the conviction of the guilty," said Chief Vollmer. "It will put an end to spurious wills and eliminate the long and costly legal contests which ensue in such cases."

"It will assist in putting to an end the forgery of documents and materially aid in settling civil cases in which deception figures."

"If it works out,"

made in the penal and insane institutions of the state. These will in turn be classified and studied. And when hundreds of thousands of records have been made Dr. Larsen believes the test will be so standardized that it will form an almost infallible index to the truthfulness of statements made by persons tested by the "lie detector."

Scientifically the use of the "lie detector" is known as a deception test. The machine evolved by Dr. Larsen permits the taking of a continuous blood pressure curve synchronously with a respiratory and a timing curve. The apparatus includes a sensitized recording strip moving on a drum, a sphygmomanometer to record the blood pressure and a chronograph to record the time in fifths of seconds or greater intervals, while the reaction time is further obtained by the use of a signal magnet.

"Since deception plays such an important role on the witness stand and in criminal investigation, it is imperative that the criminologist should become familiar with some of its manifestations and methods employed to study it," said Dr. Larsen today.

"The earliest account of the case of deception is in the Bible, where Solomon was called upon to decide which of two women claiming a child was lying. He settled the problem by ordering the child cut in two pieces. The liar maintained silence, while the real mother was willing to forego her claim. The Chinese made use of a sound psychophysiological principle that fear may inhibit the salivary flow. The English had the system of "the ordeal." Going further the modern method of the "third degree" is encountered.

"Aside from humanitarian considerations, one important objection to the 'third degree' is that cases have been known where innocent men have broken under the strain and confessed to crimes of which they were innocent."

Test is Explained.

"The deception test we use is based upon the correlation between the physiological and emotional activities. A normal record is obtained without any stimulus word or action. This is followed by a short, prefatory word preamble, while tracings are being recorded, after which a series of questions are given. The questions are very simple and direct and deal with indifferent matters as well as the subject under investigation.

"In every case of deception, as checked by the cardio-pneumographic tracings and confession, there are marked changes in the records. The effect of the suppression or repression varies, according to the temperament and physical character of the subject. There may be an increase or decrease in frequency, a marked depression or excitation or more or less summative effect."

"In all cases of deception yet encountered the curve differs from that of the controls or the person who does not repress when questioned. "Interesting records have been obtained with drug addicts. The transition from the very sick, moaning, miserable individual to the cheerful person may be shown graphically by comparing the record of the same man before and after an injection of morphine or other drug. This transition may occur within a few seconds."

The "lie detector" is in use daily in the Berkeley police department. The consent of the subject is always obtained. In most cases it is given readily.

The innocent are glad of an opportunity of clearing themselves. The guilty fear refusal. It is the sum of criminal investigation ascending the scale from the juvenile offender to the man charged with murder. Only recently it was the means of reuniting an estranged father and son, clearing the latter's name of forgery.

Dr. Larsen believes the day will come when the cardiomammogram, as the cabalistic strips of tracings are known, will take their place as evidence in courts of justice. To his mind the important thing is that they form a permanent record open to the interpretation of all who study such matters. The record is there to be read by all who will.

Scientific criminologists the world over are interested in the device. Recently a noted criminologist from Copenhagen visited the laboratory of Dr. Larsen to see the machine and indicated that upon his return home he will put into use a similar device. He arranged with Dr. Larsen for the exchange of records so that the standardization of psychograms might

Police Teach Mexican Some Lessons in Love

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 12.—Love-making in the land of the "Hot Tamale" and the same thing under Uncle Sam's flag are entirely different things.

Down in Mexico if a young swain sees a lady on the streets whose acquaintance he desires to make it is all right for him to follow her home at a respectful distance. By this means he learns her address and can then seek a formal introduction.

Not so in the United States. Abel Reyes found this out when he was arraigned for annoying two young women on the streets here.

They told the judge Reyes did not attempt to speak to them, but kept following them. Reyes said he intended no harm, but was merely trying to find out where the girls lived, so he might become acquainted with them as was customary in Mexico.

He was admonished to learn the customs of the United States and was fined $11.

"Don't be a Stone-Age Man"

Says The Omaha Bee "Want" Ad.

In the "Good Old Days"

—way back in the Stone Age—men were fairly independent of each other—they went out and killed their own food and clothing and looked after their own comforts.

But today a man has no more chance of satisfying his needs single-handed and alone than a day-old child. His meat is killed in Omaha or Chicago, his foodstuffs grown in every part of the country—and, plain as he may be, he enjoys luxuries that are brought from the ends of the earth!

This is the great age of getting together—and the easiest, most profitable way to keep in daily contact with the opportunities of satisfying your needs and wants that are presented here in Omaha is to read the ever-changing ads in The "Want" Ad section of The Omaha Bee.

You can't afford to live in a Stone Age atmosphere of drowsy seclusion—find out today what your neighbors want to buy and sell. And, when you want to use an ad telephone AT-lantic 1000 and ask for a "Want" Ad taker.
