

This veil, the Crown Sheik, is expected to be popular this fall.

Lizard Head, altitude 13,156 feet is one of the unscaled peaks of the Rockies. The peculiarly shaped shaft, located in the San Miguel mountains of southwestern Colorado, has thus far defied all attempts of mountain climbers.

Grandma and the twins. Photo by Sophia Vanderheider, David City, Neb.

Robert and Wendell Jones, sons of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Jones, Alliance, Neb.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Stepp, St. Paul, Neb.

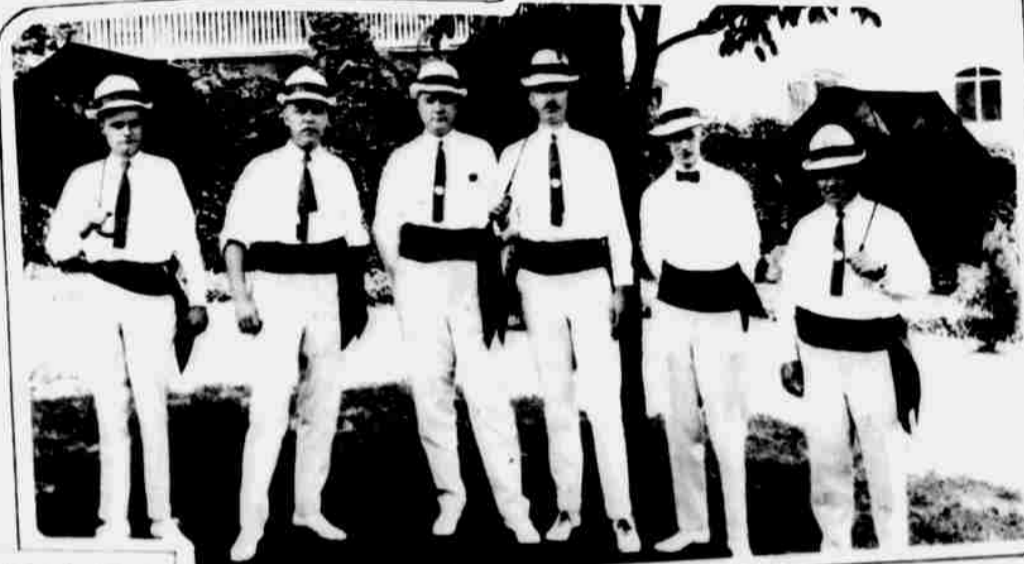

"Kitty, Kitty." An unusually good snapshot of kittens at play. Photo by Mrs. K. A. Godwin, 3107 South Thirteenth street.

Looking north over Omaha from the South Omaha viaduct. Photo by Dewell.

Alice Grotte (right), daughter of Charles Grotte of Omaha, was a student at the Denishawn dance studio while she and her father were in Los Angeles. In addition to her dancing, this accomplished little girl has ventured also into literary fields, and is the author of several short stories and poems, soon to be published by a newspaper syndicate.

Here is a nifty crew, the Omaha delegates to the sixth Lions' international convention at Hot Springs, Ark., this year. Left to right: J. D. Drescher, J. Dean Ringer, Ira D. Kyle, Merle C. Taylor, William Randall and Vincent C. Hascall.

Right, Nebraska-Iowa delegation photographed at the 1922 Lions' international convention at Hot Springs, Ark.

Jackie Begley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Begley, 1931 South Tenth street.

Right, the family car of Frank Holenda, Irvington, Neb. It just fits his 10 children. Photo by Joseph Holenda, Florence.