

Krug Park Used as Outing Center

Sunday to Be Gala Day—Premiere Artist Is Engaged.

During all of last week unusually large crowds attended Krug park, some to enjoy the rides, others to dance and any number to swim, the swimming pool having had the largest weekly patronage since it was opened to the public.

In two weeks the park will close for the 1922 season, but before it closes A. D. Kahler, the manager, promises some unique entertainment for his guests, announcement of which will be made through the daily papers in a few days.

For the week commencing Sunday, August 27, Capt. Cahill, America's premier aerial performer, will be at the park to entertain its visitors by his clever work on the aerial bars, performing what has heretofore been considered impossible feats. Capt. Cahill came direct from Los Angeles to fill this engagement.

Sunday the Knights of Columbus with their families and friends will hold their first annual picnic and outing. The general program will start at 1 p. m., with a basket luncheon served at 6 p. m.

Washington county likewise will be represented at the park, with its having reserved table space for 600. This is to be a general gala day for the residents of Washington county.

Helen Lynch As 'Baby Vamp.'

The selection of Helen Lynch for a prominent role in the new John M. Stahl production, "The Dangerous Age," marks another important step in this young prize beauty's rapid climb to stardom. She has already started work in the picture at the Mayer studio, playing a "baby vamp" with Lewis Stone as the objective of her alluring advances. Prior to joining the cast of "The Dangerous Age," Miss Lynch was in the all-star casts of two other attractions, "Fools First," and "Minnie" both of which Marshall Neilan directed. Meantime the nationwide contest being conducted by the People's Home Journal to select a suitable professional name for little Miss Lynch, who obtained her first work in pictures seven months ago after winning a beauty contest in Billings, Mont., is under full steam. It closes December 1, after which the winning name and prizes will be announced.

Mary Alden's Advice.

The younger an actress is, the more perfect an old woman can she become on the screen, according to Mary Alden, the most perfect "mother" of the films. Miss Alden, who can add 40 years to her age by stepping from the oblivion of the studio dressing room to the sets before the camera, is to "mother" Richard Barthelmess in "The Bond Boy," his latest starring vehicle, which will be shown at the Strand theater.

In this picture she first plays the part of a pretty young bride, and then of a tired old mother. Faint and powder, of course, make the superficial change, but it is the change in feeling and actions which convey the real difference to the audience.

"And the woman with supple limbs and facile face is the one who will make a success at this," Miss Alden says.

H. B. Walthall Plays Important Part in 'Gimme'

Culver City, Cal.—Henry B. Walthall, who ever since his memorable performance in "The Birth of a Nation," has been recognized as one of the most gifted of screen actors, has been engaged for the role of the henpecked husband in Rupert Hughes' latest story, "Gimme," which the author-director is now producing at the Goldwyn studios here. Since the early days when he won fame under D. W. Griffith, Walthall has advanced steadily in popular favor and of late years he has been starred successfully by several companies. In the Hughes picture he will have an excellent opportunity for strong characterization as the husband who stays at home and washes the dishes, while his wife goes out and earns money for the support of the family.

From Extra Man to Lord.

When "The Christian" was produced about 10 years ago by Vitagraph, Cyril Chadwick was an extra man in the mob scene. Since that time he has made a name for himself and was selected for the important role of Lord Robert Ure in Goldwyn's latest production of Sir Hall Caine's story. Chadwick was sent from New York to play the part. He has been seen in "His Wife's Money," "The Misleading Lady" and other pictures.

Back Again.

"Homemade Movies," the kind Mack Bennett made, will be on exhibition shortly. This picture featuring Ben Turpin, with Phyllis Haver in the leading feminine role, has been finished, cut and titled and is now in the hands of the Associated First National Pictures for distribution. A preview given in one of the popular Los Angeles theaters, "Homemade Movies" was acclaimed one of the best comedy specials of the season, and is considered one of the very best warm-weather pictures ever released.

At Last!

The pendulum in literature about motion pictures is swinging back. The positive side of the industry is now being given attention by writers to the exclusion of the negative side that has been exploited so freely in magazines and newspapers. The newest of these stories is "A Girl of the Films," by Rob Wagner, painter and writer, which will appear in the Red Book in July. Wagner, who is a member of the Paramount scenario staff, is the author of 34 stories about motion pictures as well as the author of "Film Folk," a novel. He

Mahton Hamilton Given Lead in 'The Christian'

Mahton Hamilton, one of the latest stars to be added to the phenomenal cast which Goldwyn is assembling for Maurice Tourneur's new production of "The Christian," will play the part of Horatio Drake, a young Englishman in the diplomatic service, who pays court to Gloria Quayle when she takes up her residence in London.

Mr. Hamilton is remembered for his notable work in "Earthbound," the last Goldwyn picture in which he appeared. Since then he has been seen in "Half a Chance," "The Trustful Husband," "The Lane That Had No Turning," "A Fool There Was," "Others in 'The Christian's' brilliant cast are Richard Dix, Mae Busch, Phyllis Haver, Gareth Hughes, Claude Gillingwater, Cyril Chadwick, Beryl Mercer and Harry Northrup.

Movie Graphs Direct From Studios

Ruth Renick, who is playing leads with the William Fox organization at Hollywood, has left for New York for a brief vacation. Miss Renick is playing an important role in "Kentucky Days."

Shirley Mason is to make a picture called "The Unexpected Wife." Wallace McDonald, who plays an important role in "A Fool There Was," is to be her leading man.

William Russell has started work on "Mixed Faces," from the novel by Roy Norton. Dave Keefe is directing and Renee Adoree is his leading woman. Harvey Clarke and Elizabeth Garrison will play character roles.

Irene Rich, who plays the wife in "A Fool There Was," has been selected to play opposite Dean Jagger in his new picture. Bernard Durning is directing. The title has not been selected.

Tom Mix has a medal presented to him by the Tennessee legislature for his work in cleaning up moonshiners.

"Lorna Doone" Filmed; Ready for Fall Release

Los Angeles, Aug. 27.—Maurice Tourneur, the noted producer who has just returned from a trip to England, made an extended tour of the Devon moors during his stay there. Tourneur's elaborate screen version of "Lorna Doone" is now being edited at the Ince studios for fall release. The filming of the story of the captive maid of Exmoor aroused such deep interest that the producer determined to visit the historical country, where the scenes are laid, at the earliest possible moment.

After his visit Tourneur pronounces himself satisfied that the hills and valleys of Devonshire have been reproduced with remarkable fidelity in the picture of "Lorna Doone."

Tourist companies have noted a decided increase in the number of visitors to the west coast of England since the announcement that a picture of the famous historical novel would be shown shortly.
