Daugherty Explains Injunction

Attorney General Says Free Speech and Lawful Assemblage Not to Be Abridged by Court Order.

Plan to Protect Trains

By GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, Sept. 5.—With organized labor leaders throughout the country and right here in Washington continuing to denounce the drastic character of the federal injunction against the railroad shopmen's strike, word came from the administration that the government does not intend to invade the constitutional liberties of the citizen through the Wilkerson restraining order.

It was stated at the White House and later reiterated by Attorney General Daugherty that the government will not enforce the injunction to the point of abridgement of free speech and lawful assemblage. The government, it was explained, obtained the injunction for the purpose of dealing effectively with interruption of railroad transportation.

While it was admitted that it might be difficult to determine in some instances just what constitutes unlawful interference with transportation, it was made clear that the executive does not contemplate action under the injunction which would invade the rights and liberties of the citizen guaranteed by the constitution and existing laws.

May Modify Order.

In some quarters the declaration from the White House and the attorney general, in the face of widespread criticism of provisions in the Wilkerson order which would prohibit peaceful strike meetings, interviews by strike leaders and peaceful persuasion of railroad workers, was taken as an indication that the government might consent voluntarily to a modification of the restraining order, when the motion to make the temporary injunction permanent comes up Monday at Chicago in Judge Wilkerson's court.

Attorney General Daugherty, in supplementing the White House statement, indicated that there would be no objection to union men coming within the scope of the injunction holding meetings "for lawful purposes," but that the government would step in if the strike meetings are for the purpose of "inciting riots" or other violation of the law.

"There will be no abridgement of personal liberty under the constitution of the United States," said the attorney general, "but I have noted remarks of certain individuals, who are talking about a different constitution, the constitution of the unions."

"I am talking about the constitution of the United States."

The attorney general said further that reports to the Department of Justice indicated that the situation over the country was quiet and that interference with the movement of trains would be practically cleared up by the end of the week.

"America must rise and repudiate any government official or the administration, if backing his attempt to invade the freedom of American citizens. The Chicago injunction is nothing more than a big noise. Such damn-fool tactics will secure no one. I don't like a fight, but by the eternal, I'll fight to the last ditch to safeguard the constitutional rights."

Bishop Fallows, Episcopal Head, Dies at Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Bishop Samuel Fallows, presiding bishop of the Reformed Episcopal church, famous as preacher, soldier, author and lecturer, died at 4:30 o'clock this morning at the residence after an illness of slightly less than a month.

His sudden death, a shock to the religious world especially but a cause of sorrow through civilized humanity, was unexpected in spite of his advanced age. He was approaching his 87th birthday.

The bishop had pneumonia last winter and to that was attributed the beginning of his fatal illness.

Bishop Samuel Fallows was a man of boundless energy. Not only did he daily carry on the manifold duties of his parish—preaching, christening, marrying, burying, visiting the sick and needy—but he found time to write and edit almost a score of books and countless articles, to address regularly many patriotic bodies, serve as the supreme head of his church, the Reformed Episcopal, in the North American continent; function on many committees, hold numerous trusteeships, propagandize actively at Washington when that was needed—and walk no less than two miles each day of the year for exercise.

Established "Home Saloon"

A curious instance of Bishop Fallows' penchant for discovering the truth pragmatically was his establishment in 1907 of a "home saloon" as he called it in Chicago devoted to the selling of temperance drinks. To prove that soft drinks could be sold profitably and to the very men who were supposed to be teetotal.

Kearney Woman Cheered

More than 500 ministers, some accompanied by their wives, attended the opening session of the 10th meeting of the Nebraska annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at the First Methodist church yesterday morning.

The feature at the morning's session was the memorial address by Dr. G. H. Main of Albion, who spoke of the departed ministers, A. J. Clifton and Nathan English.

Applause greeted the introduction by Bishop Stuntz of Mrs. Louisa Collins, 91, of Kearney, Neb., the wife of the first Methodist minister to come to Nebraska, an "Uncle Henry DeLong, who will be 88 today.

"Uncle Henry" has lived in Council Bluffs since 1846, when he was converted, as he stated, from a "Mormon to an enthusiastic Methodist."

Now Conducts Mission

Mr. DeLong stated he was a "caper" for gamblers and the saloon was his "hangout" around Council Bluffs and other Iowa cities in the early days. He and some other saloon gamblers, he said, while on a visit to McComb, Ill., went out in the street to break up a Methodist revival meeting, but after listening to the minister five minutes he was converted and went back to the saloon and told the "boys" that he was "through with the stuff."

Titus Lowe in Attendance

Rev. Titus Lowe, former pastor of the First church, who is now secretary of the board of foreign missions, with offices in New York, also is attending the meeting.

Bishop Wilbur P. Thirkield of Mexico will give an address this evening. Last night Dr. C. C. Wilson of Grace church gave an address reading their annual reports yesterday morning.

Saturday evening a dinner will be served on the grounds of the Nebraska Methodist hospital. Cabinet meetings will be held each afternoon and evening at the Hotel Sanford.

The U. S. Business Pendulum

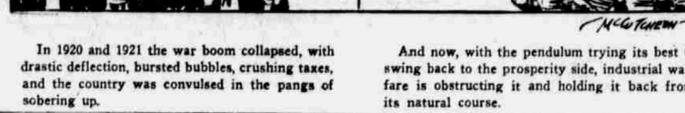

In 1907 it swung violently to the panicky side.

In 1913 and 1914 the country was plunged into the depths of a profound "psychological depression," with no hope ahead.

In 1920 and 1921 the war boom collapsed, with drastic deflation, bursted bubbles, crushing taxes, and the country was convulsed in the pangs of sobering up.

And now, with the pendulum trying its best to swing back to the prosperity side, industrial warfare is obstructing it and holding it back from its natural course.

Japs Seek Land in Range of Fort at San Pedro, Cal.

Senator Hiram Johnson Tests to War and State Departments Against Lease of Tract.

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson announced here today that he had telegraphed the State and War departments at Washington asking that they give their immediate attention to a reported proposal to lease by Japanese of 10 acres at White Point, near Fort McArthur, San Pedro, Cal.

The Japanese were said to be about to lease the property for 33 years as an amusement park. Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney here, declared the lease would be prevented by injunction if possible.

The Japanese interests have planned, according to a newspaper account, to spend $250,000 in improving the tract. The San Pedro Chamber of Commerce sent a telegram to Senator Shortridge urging him to use his influence to prevent the transfer.

District Attorney Woolwine said he had a communication from Lieut. Col. Tilton, commander at Fort McArthur, stating that the purchase of this land by Japanese would be a public menace.

The actual distance traveled by Lieut. Doolittle to San Diego from Pablo Beach, near Jacksonville, Fla., was roughly computed by army officers here as 2,275 miles.

Lieut. Doolittle flew over eight states. Air men here said that his night flight over the Florida swamps was one of the finest achievements in recent years by military airmen.

The daring aviator was paced in from El Centro, Imperial Valley, by Capt. William M. Randolph and Lieut. C. L. Webber, each piloting a De Havilland.

Trapped Miners Will Be Reached Today Is Belief

Rapid Advance Is Being Made by Crews Working in Adjoining Shafts.

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 5.—Some time Thursday the 46 imprisoned miners in the Argonaut mine will be reached, it is generally expected here today. It is also generally believed that some, at least, of the men who were trapped underground by a fire and falling rock mine ago are still alive, as a report yesterday that answering signals had been heard by a member of one of the rescuing crews was followed by others in the same tenor today.

The rescue crew working from the 3,600-foot level of the adjoining Kennedy mine toward the Argonaut, finished a detour around a virgin rock obstruction and today reached one of the old tunnels connecting the two mines. This tunnel was open to the extent of admitting men to work, although much rock will have to be taken out to allow the passage of wheelbarrows and compressed air and water pipes, which probably will be laid tonight.

After traversing 353 feet of this tunnel the rescue crew will be ready to cut through 75 feet to the 4,200-foot level of the Argonaut. This work may be started tonight and, expected to progress rapidly, perhaps as fast as two feet an hour, since in such cutting the rock falls away from the feet of the men as fast as it is detached.

The other rescue crew, working from the 3,900-foot level of the Kennedy mine, who have something more than 100 feet of old tunnel to clear out first, will then progress to cutting through 141 1/2 feet of quartz and other rock. For this they expect to use dynamite drills to cut small holes for admission of air and perhaps water and food.

War Record Big Issue in Primary

Senator Opposed by Press of State, Many Former Leaders, Republican Machine and Anti-Socialists.

Wet and Dry in Fight

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 5.—(By A. P.)—Returns from 50 precincts out of 2,521 in Wisconsin for the United States senatorial nomination tonight showed Senator La Follette leading W. A. Ganfield by almost three to one. The vote in these precincts, all of which were outside of Milwaukee county, gave La Follette, 3,722; Ganfield, 1,324.

For governor, 57 precincts gave Blaine, 4,514; Morgan, 2,248; McHenry, 138. These precincts were scattered among 28 out of the 71 counties of the state.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 5.—(By A. P.)—Preliminary steps to control the Wisconsin political situation at the November election ended tonight with the close of polls of the state primary election.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, leader of the progressive faction, and W. A. Ganfield, his opponent, who was backed by the citizens' republican conference, were confident of the result.

Stands on War Record

With the weather fair and warm, giving farmers an opportunity to visit the polls, indications were that a heavy vote would be the answer in one of the most strenuous political campaigns fought in this state in years.

Senator La Follette, who made his campaign on his record on the war issues, opposition to the four-power treaty, the Esch-Cummings act, the berry act and for the retention of the primary election system, was opposed with a fe exception by the entire Wisconsin press, many of his personal leaders in former years, who split with him because of his opposition to the war, and others who objected to his endorsement by Victor L. Berger, socialist, who was denied his seat in congress on account of war utterances.

Mr. Ganfield appealed for support on the ground that La Follette is untested in Wisconsin in Washington for the reason that "he is out of harmony with his colleagues in the senate."

On the democratic ticket there is only one outstanding contest, Mayor A. A. Bentley, LaCrosse, is running as a wet, and Karl Mathie, Vausau, has the dry support. Mrs. J. Hooper, Oshkosh, is unopposed for the United States senatorial nomination.

The wet and dry issue also cropped out in the contests for congress. Both sides claim that they will control.
