Bodies of Men Pried Apart After Battle to Death

Bodies Riddled With Bullets in Fight—Seize One Another's Throats as Dying.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Angelo Shalpatas, a Greek fruit merchant, and Lawrence Wells, a negro, fought a duel yesterday in the presence of hundreds of spectators and when they had riddled each other with bullets, they engaged in a death grip so tight that the police were forced to pry the bodies apart.

The Greek was accused by Wells of insulting his wife. Shalpatas answered with a revolver, chased Wells out of the store and through a saloon, abusing him. Wells went home, secured a pistol and returned to continue the argument. Both began shooting as he re-entered the store and the battle raged through the store and out into the street.

After the bodies had fallen, each with his hands clenching the other's throat, incipient battle began between white and negro spectators. A hundred police reserves dashed to the scene, dispersed the mob and covered the bodies with newspapers until they could be pried apart and carried away.

Sharpshooter Slain.

Mandeville, La., Sept. 6.—Lee Reynolds, formerly a showman and professional sharpshooter, was shot and instantly killed on a street here today. Emile Vial, proprietor of a soft drink establishment, was arrested in connection with the killing.

According to the authorities of the town, Reynolds was shot from behind, one of the three bullets striking him in the back of the head.

Reynolds was well known throughout the country as a shorpshooter.

He was in the "Buffalo Bill" shows.

Federal Officers Puzzled Over Absence of Todd

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—Hiram Todd, special attorney for the Department of Justice, assigned to investigate the rail and shop strike troubles in the west, failed to arrive here yesterday and federal officers were puzzled to account for the delay, as their best information was that Mr. Todd left Chicago several days ago. They said it was possible he had stopped off at Needles or elsewhere enroute to get some quiet, first-hand information on strike conditions.

HEALTH EXHIBITS.

An intelligent man who had just come from the Pageant of Progress, an exposition recently held in Chicago, commented: "I have been going to expositions a long time. I started with the Centennial in Philadelphia. In the old days an exposition showed everything about machinery, but it did not show much about folks. It looks like we have discovered just here lately that the welfare of people is just about as important as machinery or goats. As I went along the aisles of this exposition, I saw welfare exhibits everywhere, some in sections to themselves and some mixed in with other exhibits. Another thing I noticed was that the biggest crowds were around these booths."

This statement caused me to investigate.

I found that a very liberal proportion of the space was occupied by health exhibits of various sorts. These showed how sewage was purified, how wells were protected against contamination, how ventilation was done, and numerous other activities of health departments and nonofficial health organizations.

Among the objects and methods being shown were three places in which physical examinations were being made. The state health department was examining all who applied. The number examined averaged 644 a day. The tests given were simple, but no doubt were helpful to some in that they started them on the road to fuller examinations and to others in that they allayed unjustified fears.

The examinations given by this department consisted in weighing, measuring, making a test of muscle power in the arm and forearm, taking the blood pressure and examining the blood for anemia. After these tests had been made the party examined took his filled in card to the physician on duty, who gave some directions in right living or advised completer examination.

The municipal tuberculosis sanitarium maintained what they called the life extension institute. In this institution, they made examination of chest, including the lungs and heart by the fluoroscope and the stethoscope.

The average number of examinations made was 142 a day. In 20 days the examiners found 55 cases of consumption among visitors asking to be examined, and 98 others were asked to hold themselves under observation and study in order that a diagnosis might be made. In the baby rooms, 6,000 babies and other children under 5 years of age were examined. These baby welfare contests and examinations are an outgrowth of the old baby shows. They have done a great deal to teach mothers how babies should be cared for.

The "Unclean" Heritage.

R. L. W. writes: "I have appreciated so much your articles dealing with syphilis. You must realize the widespread good they accomplish in combating the great world scourge. And I entreat you, as one with inherited syphilis in her veins, to keep up the good work.

"It is only some one like myself who knows the horrors of inherited syphilis who could tell of lives filled with sleepless nights, of running wounds that will not heal, of slow blindness—the closing of the wondrous eyes of loved ones, and all because some ancestor in a moment of drunken orgy partook of a foolish pleasure and for these few minutes turned the full years of his descendants into living nightmares.

"If only we had criers on our busy street corners every minute of the day, telling the people the horrors of syphilis! They are indeed a Godforsaken people who come into the world 'unclean.'

"I speak as one who has had a birthright of probable moronship or some other form of criminality thrust upon her."

Trees that Bar Sunlight.

Mrs. E. G. writes: "I am worried about what is called the old line fences. There are four of these large trees keeping my kitchen dark and damp; also cold in warm weather. I am in a damp locality and when it rains water stands in the ditch to the west of me and these trees to the east. My grocery man said that last summer he went into lots of kitchens, but none so cold as mine.

"I have complained to the landlady about the place, but they don't like the sun and will tell of their homes in the country with blinds to keep the sun out and from spoiling the carpet. She has had a cough for years and is nothing but a shadow. I know that a damp house is not healthful. A doctor told me a year ago that he could feel that chilly dampness as soon as he opened my door. Can I complain of these trees as a nuisance and have some of them removed?"

REPLY.

Your city has a nominal health department. That is, it pays a little money for a little department. Paying little, it gets little. You are a part of "it." Complaining to the authorities will not get you anywhere.

You must either persuade your landlady to move, or bear with things as well as you can.

Haven for an Epileptic

Mrs. N. writes: "Is there a place where they keep a young man who is the victim of epileptic fits and who is unable to support himself? No city hospital will keep him."

REPLY.

Your state has an excellent epileptic colony.

Girl in County Attorney's Office Returns From East

Miss Nora Moriarty, stenographer in the county attorney's office, returned yesterday from a trip to New York, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Washington. In New York she met her brother, Rev. Thomas S. Moriarty of the Nebraska Catholic diocese, who has just completed a trip around the world. They returned to Omaha together.

30 Diphtheria Cases.

Four new cases of diphtheria were reported at the city health office yesterday morning, bringing the total number of reported cases in the city to 30.

Eighty-six Cement Manufacturers Unite to Serve You

The Portland Cement Association means this: that valuable scientific, advisory and educational work which no one cement manufacturer could reasonably undertake alone is at your disposal. This means that you can be absolutely sure of yourself in using Concrete.

You can be sure in the first place of the cement you buy. Any manufacturer of Portland cement may join the Association, and no manufacturer has to belong to it. But Association By-Laws require that members' products shall measure up to the high standard of specifications of the United States Government and the American Society for Testing Materials. Cement bought from a member of the Association is therefore dependable.

You can be equally sure of the way to use it. If you want information about its usefulness under certain conditions, or about how to mix it or place it to get the best results most economically, you can get it from any one of our 24 offices, one of which is near you.

Supplying dependable information without charge, by booklet, or by personal correspondence or by conference when necessary, is the work of the Association. To supply it authoritatively, the Association maintains a large research laboratory and a staff of more than two hundred engineers.

The Association is, in effect, the joint research and educational foundation of 86 manufacturers of cement in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and South America. You are invited to use it freely.

Suggestions as to how our work may be made more useful to you are invited.
