Government Sends Carload of Evidence to Chicago for Injunction Hearing Next Monday.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—A nation-wide railroad sabotage plot, characterized by government officials as the most gigantic and ruthless ever undertaken in the United States, will be publicly revealed in connection with the battle to be waged Monday in Federal Judge Wilkerson's court during the hearing for a permanent injunction against officers and members of the striking shopcrafts, according to information given out at the Federal building late today.

Hard Battle Is Expected

According to government plans action will not stop with the effort to have Judge Wilkerson's temporary injunction made permanent, but it is expected that wholesale indictments will be sought against members of the shopcrafts and strike sympathizers.

Carload of Evidence.

The scope of the federal program against the strikers became known following the arrival in Chicago today of a carload of evidence, said to have been collected in all parts of the country. Five trucks were used to transport the exhibits to a government building where it is now being guarded by thirty-five heavily armed federal agents.

Data Reveals Plans.

This data, according to a high government official in Chicago, reveals well laid plans for the following: 1. The wrecking of railroad equipment.
