A Girl's Redemption Through Acting in the Movies

Ruppert Hughes' master novel starts Tomorrow, Monday, September 11, in

The Morning Bee

It was astounding to Remember to find what a change clothes make in a soul. The consciousness of her beauty gave a lilt of bravado to her carriage.

Not merely as a startling revelation of real life in California's inner circle of Movieland, but as the most searching, the most illuminating study of a girl's soul life; such is the thrill and absorbing fascination of Rupert Hughes' newest and greatest novel.

The intimate adventures of Remember Steddon—her birth in a small mid-west town, her narrow life as a clergyman's daughter, her rebellion at hated conventions, her life midst Hollywood's movie stars—all lead to an amazing climax.

You come to know this all-too-human girl, to pity her, then admire her. How she becomes a great woman in spite of obstacles is brought about by a means never before employed by a novelist.

No more tremendous emotional experiences ever fell to the lot of a girl than are hers. To her there is but one thought, one hope, one prayer—Redemption.

No truer nor more intimate revelation of a struggling conscience can be conceived. Nothing else that Rupert Hughes has ever written possesses the soul-searching qualities of this master story.

An Eternal Question

From the first page, in which Remember's clergyman-father unloosens his wrath against the iniquities of the films, until the end, wherein the films themselves provide the means of his own daughter's remarkable rehabilitation, it is a story that you and two million others will read with deepest interest and concern. It promises to be the most discussed novel of the year.

For it brings out anew the theme of two thousand years' discussion: Can Good Come Out of Evil—Can Right Emerge From Wrong?

This wonderfully interesting story of Movieland will appear only in

The Omaha Morning Bee

It starts tomorrow morning.
