

Proposal Would Tighten Church Laws on Divorce

Resolution Introduced at Portland Convention by New York Episcopal Bishop—Spend Busy Day.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 10.—(By A. P.)—The divorce canon of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States would be tightened, forbidding all members to marry persons divorced for any cause except infidelity of the offending party in a divorce case, if a resolution introduced in the house of bishops by Bishop Charles H. Brent of western New York, is adopted by the general convention of the church now in session here. Bishop Brent's proposed amendment tightens the divorce canon which now forbids clergymen of the church from marrying divorced persons, and only by implication forbids the members remarriage.

The convention put in its busiest day since convening here Wednesday. In the house of deputies reports of commissions were presented favoring divine healing in the church and favoring the seating of women delegates in the house of deputies. The deputies also took decisive action in the matter of prayer book revision, in rejecting an effort to postpone further consideration of revision for at least three years.

Adopt New Prayer.

Following this the house finally acted upon one prayer book revision, the elimination of a repetition phrase in the Gloria in excelsis. The house of bishops finally adopted the new alternative prayer for the president which had been finally adopted by the house, and it now becomes part of the prayer book.

The bishops rejected, as did the house two days ago, a proposed removal of certain verses from the evening to the opening prayers. There had been approved by the convention three years ago and were up for final approval or rejection. Other completed legislation was the approval by the bishops of a resolution passed by the house of deputies providing for a custodian of archives, and the admission of the missionary district of southern Florida as a new diocese.

The matter of the Asheville district, which the house has approved, the bishops referred to a committee on new dioceses.

Prayers for Mrs. Harding.

Prayers were offered in the house of bishops was indicated, clergymen Harding, wife of the president of the United States, and messages of sympathy were ordered sent by both houses of the convention to the president.

That prayer book revision is to have the right of way in the house of bishops was indicated clergymen said, following the proceedings of that house, by the action of the bishops in forestalling an attempt to introduce a report of the commission on concord which deals with relations between the Episcopal church and other denominations.

The question of the right of suffragan bishops to a vote in the house was automatically reopened by the routine introduction of the second part of the original amendment to the constitution, in which such right was provided.

After short debate it was decided to make the question a special order at 3 Monday.

Hope of Saving Men Caught in Argonaut Mine Renewed

Statement of Officials Puts New Life Into People of Jackson—Belief Expressed That Water Supply Is Available for Prisoners—Mainly Question of Food.

By EDWARD DOHERTY, Omaha Bee Local Wire.

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 10.—Jackson digs in, singing.

The lost vein of hope has been re-found and the picks and shovels fly at the muck; the men go on with heavy wheel barrows full of it until they drop.

Women who Friday drooped and prayed, dance and sing about their homes today. The kids are throwing stones at trees or wading in Jackson creek or hitching on trucks or matching pennies, throwing them at a line marked off on a powdered road.

The belief of the Argonaut mine officials that the 47 men entrapped by fire and smoke and poisonous gas two weeks ago Sunday are still alive, some of them at least, makes even the last of the "forty-niners" want to turn handsprings. The officials of the mine, in a carefully couched statement, made public their belief today. The sun is shining. The hills are touched with gold and the little Catholic church that claims the souls of most of the 47, is ablaze with happy candles.

Officials Hopeful.

The statement says nothing about the tests made by Dr. L. H. Duschak for signs of putrefaction and the absence of any signs of decayed matter in the tests.

"At a meeting of the executive committee, attended by 12 in all, including engineers and others in charge of the rescue work," the statement reads, "the question of whether it was reasonable to suppose any men remain alive in the mine, was considered."

"There are many points in the lower part of the mine where water runs freely suitable for drinking can be obtained and it is believed the men sought safety in parts of the mine where the air was good.

Only Question of Food.

"The large majority of the men were in excellent physical condition and considering the fact that they have a supply of water, it only remains to answer the question of how long they can survive without food."

"As it was only 12 days at midnight, September 8, since they had their last meal, it was the unanimous belief of those present that the men are still alive. The statement is issued after long and careful discussion of the question."

Twelve men who have all the means of ascertaining conditions in the mine believe the miners are still alive. Is it any wonder that Jackson is overjoyed?

Huskies, half dressed in overalls and heavy shoes, miners' caps with acetylene lamps in front—shirts torn away to show the hairy chests and stomachs. Not tall men, but broad and chunky, great arms ending in mighty fists.

Men Change Shifts.

The "skip" comes up on the cable, a long steel box. A ladder that hooks over the edge is let down. One by one six men get into it. Bill Clayton first. His brother is among the 47. A bell rings. The skip descends down to 3,600 level where the rescue crews are forging ahead, slowly—yet as fast as men can go.

One minute. One minute and a half. Two minutes. The "skip" on the other side comes up, bringing the men who have worked six hours—in spurts of 10 minutes.

When they started it was 20 minutes of work, 20 minutes of rest. Now it is work 10 minutes, and rest 40. The muck is deep. The way to the dumps gets longer as the shaft grows further toward the 47.

definitely decided tonight, according to Henry Ford, whose representatives were reported to have contracted for 4,000,000 tons of coal with a Cincinnati concern. I First Compounded This Remedy For My Own Neighbors

Their praise of this newer form of iron has spread so rapidly that now after 9 years, over 4,000,000 people use it annually.

Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four who feel lack of iron in their blood, lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all debilitating weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In recommending Newstead Iron I use the newer form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lettuce and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the weak and disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong, or well you use it to yourself to make the following test.

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take a certain tablet of Newstead Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of persons, random people who were ailing all the while, have quickly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.
