

GEORGE BECOMES KING OF GREECE

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

Howell Tells Large Crowds of Fight of the Wet Interests and Reads Their Letters.

Urges Collection of Debt

By F. C. POWELL.
Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee.
Wausau, Neb., Sept. 27.—(Special Telegram)—Prohibition and repayment of the foreign debt are issues fronting the American people. R. B. Howell, candidate for United States senator, told large crowds today at Culbertson, Trenton, Fallsdale, Wausau, Imperial and Grant.

"If you are against prohibition you still have hope, because there are big and powerful interests working to restore liquor," he said, "and if you are not for prohibition, keep one eye open while you sleep, for you will find liquor with you again."

Mr. Howell produced letters written to him by anti-prohibition organizations asking him how he stood on the liquor question and urging a return of the saloon. He also told of the attempt of liquor interests in Ohio to put prohibition to a referendum in that state.

Foreign debt an issue.

"Now let's talk the foreign debt," he said. "If you had loaned money to a man and received his I. O. U., if he were telling you that he believed he would have to cancel the debt, and if other persons with influence were urging the cancellation of the debt, would you erect a monument to the man who had loaned you the money?"

"That, in short, is the condition of the United States at this time," he said. "The premier of Great Britain recently stated that the cancellation of the war debt depends upon the cooperation of the United States. The chamber of commerce of the United States, whose membership is composed of chambers of commerce of every city in the country, recently passed resolutions recommending cancellation of the debt, and powerful propaganda is being urged for the cancellation of the debt. I think it is a life issue. Why, we haven't even collected the interest on that debt."

At Culbertson, Mr. Howell was met by Henry Lehman, precinct committeeman, and H. B. McKibben, editor of the Progress.

Crowd at Culbertson.

A large crowd was waiting for him. There were several women on hand at the early morning hour. Mr. Howell found the people of Culbertson intensely interested in obtaining a federal aid to erect a monument and establish a park in Massacre canyon, eight miles west of here. Fifty years ago August 5, next, the Pawnee and Sioux Indians fought their last battle and hundreds were killed.

A committee to push this project, headed by A. L. Taylor, Trenton, chairman, and Mr. Culbertson, secretary, has been appointed. There will be a big celebration next August at the 50th anniversary of the massacre and a number of Pawnee Indians from Oklahoma have promised to be present.

Mr. Howell was greeted by Mrs. J. P. Wilson, who had waited one hour on the street for his arrival. Mr. Howell pressed forward to shake his hand. "I voted for you clear up in Oregon at the primaries by taking advantage of the absent voters law," Mr. Young said.

Drive from Stratton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith had driven from Stratton to hear Mr. Howell speak. Others on the reception committee were Al Taylor, chairman of county central committee and editor of the Republican-Leader for 23 years, County Judge A. T. McCoy, R. S. Lawrence and Evelyn Besack, county superintendent.

At Fallsdale, the first to shake hands with Mr. Howell was W. L. Orr, past 30 years and still hale and hearty, who has been a stand pat republican since the Civil war. J. H. Corrick, editor of the Fallsdale Times, assured Mr. Howell he would carry the county.

Mrs. Corrick showed Mr. Howell all the sights of the community fair underway at Fallsdale. Some of the exhibits there proved wonderful. The valley in which Fallsdale is situated is noted for its fine blooded cattle.

H. L. Hunt, candidate for county commissioner, introduced Mr. Howell to numerous Fallsdale citizens.

Several hundred heard Mr. Howell on the public platform at Cambridge last night. Music was furnished by a band. State Senator J. W. Hammond and Mr. Johnson, candidate for state senator, were especially interested in the problems discussed by Mr. Howell.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

He'll Visit His Mother, 89, on "Stroll" Through Iowa.

The world's most traveled crutch came to Omaha Tuesday.

With its predecessors a long line of distinguished aids, it possibly has had more ups and downs in life than any other piece of wood from the crutch family tree.

For it's always with James Alby Hill, 65, who has used it to hobble over 14,000 miles in the last 12 years, and is just rearing for new roads to tramp.

On His Way to Maine.

Hill left Land's End, California, at the side of the Golden Gate, 6 months and 12 days ago, halted long enough at Berkeley, Cal., his home, to pick up his traveling bag, which weighs 20 pounds, and began a hike to Eastport, Me., where the ocean may stop him. He arrived in Omaha Tuesday with a record of having collected only 11 rides from drivers of vehicles, and had not ridden on a train. Before next spring he hopes to reach Eastport and finish more than 3,000 miles of walking.

"Doctor's orders," he explained, "I became ill of rheumatism while postmaster at Tancred, Cal., 12 years ago and the doctors told me to begin walking. I've been at it ever since and expect to keep it up until I die, for the doctors believe I'll die when I quit tramping."

Several walks of up to 600 miles are not included by Hill in his 14,000-mile record.

"They were just tuning-up trips," he laughed.

His best year was 1921, when he covered more than 3,000 miles. In each of the 12 years Hill has walked more than 1,000 miles.

To Visit Mother, 89.

When he arrived here Hill delivered to the Chamber of Commerce a letter from the Chamber of Commerce at Sacramento, extending California's greetings and inviting Omahans to attend a celebration in Sacramento May 22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

James Alby Hill

22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

He'll Visit His Mother, 89, on "Stroll" Through Iowa.

The world's most traveled crutch came to Omaha Tuesday.

With its predecessors a long line of distinguished aids, it possibly has had more ups and downs in life than any other piece of wood from the crutch family tree.

For it's always with James Alby Hill, 65, who has used it to hobble over 14,000 miles in the last 12 years, and is just rearing for new roads to tramp.

On His Way to Maine.

Hill left Land's End, California, at the side of the Golden Gate, 6 months and 12 days ago, halted long enough at Berkeley, Cal., his home, to pick up his traveling bag, which weighs 20 pounds, and began a hike to Eastport, Me., where the ocean may stop him. He arrived in Omaha Tuesday with a record of having collected only 11 rides from drivers of vehicles, and had not ridden on a train. Before next spring he hopes to reach Eastport and finish more than 3,000 miles of walking.

"Doctor's orders," he explained, "I became ill of rheumatism while postmaster at Tancred, Cal., 12 years ago and the doctors told me to begin walking. I've been at it ever since and expect to keep it up until I die, for the doctors believe I'll die when I quit tramping."

Several walks of up to 600 miles are not included by Hill in his 14,000-mile record.

"They were just tuning-up trips," he laughed.

His best year was 1921, when he covered more than 3,000 miles. In each of the 12 years Hill has walked more than 1,000 miles.

To Visit Mother, 89.

When he arrived here Hill delivered to the Chamber of Commerce a letter from the Chamber of Commerce at Sacramento, extending California's greetings and inviting Omahans to attend a celebration in Sacramento May 22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

James Alby Hill

22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

Howell Tells Large Crowds of Fight of the Wet Interests and Reads Their Letters.

Urges Collection of Debt

By F. C. POWELL.
Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee.
Wausau, Neb., Sept. 27.—(Special Telegram)—Prohibition and repayment of the foreign debt are issues fronting the American people. R. B. Howell, candidate for United States senator, told large crowds today at Culbertson, Trenton, Fallsdale, Wausau, Imperial and Grant.

"If you are against prohibition you still have hope, because there are big and powerful interests working to restore liquor," he said, "and if you are not for prohibition, keep one eye open while you sleep, for you will find liquor with you again."

Mr. Howell produced letters written to him by anti-prohibition organizations asking him how he stood on the liquor question and urging a return of the saloon. He also told of the attempt of liquor interests in Ohio to put prohibition to a referendum in that state.

Foreign debt an issue.

"Now let's talk the foreign debt," he said. "If you had loaned money to a man and received his I. O. U., if he were telling you that he believed he would have to cancel the debt, and if other persons with influence were urging the cancellation of the debt, would you erect a monument to the man who had loaned you the money?"

"That, in short, is the condition of the United States at this time," he said. "The premier of Great Britain recently stated that the cancellation of the war debt depends upon the cooperation of the United States. The chamber of commerce of the United States, whose membership is composed of chambers of commerce of every city in the country, recently passed resolutions recommending cancellation of the debt, and powerful propaganda is being urged for the cancellation of the debt. I think it is a life issue. Why, we haven't even collected the interest on that debt."

At Culbertson, Mr. Howell was met by Henry Lehman, precinct committeeman, and H. B. McKibben, editor of the Progress.

Crowd at Culbertson.

A large crowd was waiting for him. There were several women on hand at the early morning hour. Mr. Howell found the people of Culbertson intensely interested in obtaining a federal aid to erect a monument and establish a park in Massacre canyon, eight miles west of here. Fifty years ago August 5, next, the Pawnee and Sioux Indians fought their last battle and hundreds were killed.

A committee to push this project, headed by A. L. Taylor, Trenton, chairman, and Mr. Culbertson, secretary, has been appointed. There will be a big celebration next August at the 50th anniversary of the massacre and a number of Pawnee Indians from Oklahoma have promised to be present.

Mr. Howell was greeted by Mrs. J. P. Wilson, who had waited one hour on the street for his arrival. Mr. Howell pressed forward to shake his hand. "I voted for you clear up in Oregon at the primaries by taking advantage of the absent voters law," Mr. Young said.

Drive from Stratton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith had driven from Stratton to hear Mr. Howell speak. Others on the reception committee were Al Taylor, chairman of county central committee and editor of the Republican-Leader for 23 years, County Judge A. T. McCoy, R. S. Lawrence and Evelyn Besack, county superintendent.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

He'll Visit His Mother, 89, on "Stroll" Through Iowa.

The world's most traveled crutch came to Omaha Tuesday.

With its predecessors a long line of distinguished aids, it possibly has had more ups and downs in life than any other piece of wood from the crutch family tree.

For it's always with James Alby Hill, 65, who has used it to hobble over 14,000 miles in the last 12 years, and is just rearing for new roads to tramp.

On His Way to Maine.

Hill left Land's End, California, at the side of the Golden Gate, 6 months and 12 days ago, halted long enough at Berkeley, Cal., his home, to pick up his traveling bag, which weighs 20 pounds, and began a hike to Eastport, Me., where the ocean may stop him. He arrived in Omaha Tuesday with a record of having collected only 11 rides from drivers of vehicles, and had not ridden on a train. Before next spring he hopes to reach Eastport and finish more than 3,000 miles of walking.

"Doctor's orders," he explained, "I became ill of rheumatism while postmaster at Tancred, Cal., 12 years ago and the doctors told me to begin walking. I've been at it ever since and expect to keep it up until I die, for the doctors believe I'll die when I quit tramping."

Several walks of up to 600 miles are not included by Hill in his 14,000-mile record.

"They were just tuning-up trips," he laughed.

His best year was 1921, when he covered more than 3,000 miles. In each of the 12 years Hill has walked more than 1,000 miles.

To Visit Mother, 89.

When he arrived here Hill delivered to the Chamber of Commerce a letter from the Chamber of Commerce at Sacramento, extending California's greetings and inviting Omahans to attend a celebration in Sacramento May 22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

James Alby Hill

22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

Howell Tells Large Crowds of Fight of the Wet Interests and Reads Their Letters.

Urges Collection of Debt

By F. C. POWELL.
Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee.
Wausau, Neb., Sept. 27.—(Special Telegram)—Prohibition and repayment of the foreign debt are issues fronting the American people. R. B. Howell, candidate for United States senator, told large crowds today at Culbertson, Trenton, Fallsdale, Wausau, Imperial and Grant.

"If you are against prohibition you still have hope, because there are big and powerful interests working to restore liquor," he said, "and if you are not for prohibition, keep one eye open while you sleep, for you will find liquor with you again."

Mr. Howell produced letters written to him by anti-prohibition organizations asking him how he stood on the liquor question and urging a return of the saloon. He also told of the attempt of liquor interests in Ohio to put prohibition to a referendum in that state.

Foreign debt an issue.

"Now let's talk the foreign debt," he said. "If you had loaned money to a man and received his I. O. U., if he were telling you that he believed he would have to cancel the debt, and if other persons with influence were urging the cancellation of the debt, would you erect a monument to the man who had loaned you the money?"

"That, in short, is the condition of the United States at this time," he said. "The premier of Great Britain recently stated that the cancellation of the war debt depends upon the cooperation of the United States. The chamber of commerce of the United States, whose membership is composed of chambers of commerce of every city in the country, recently passed resolutions recommending cancellation of the debt, and powerful propaganda is being urged for the cancellation of the debt. I think it is a life issue. Why, we haven't even collected the interest on that debt."

At Culbertson, Mr. Howell was met by Henry Lehman, precinct committeeman, and H. B. McKibben, editor of the Progress.

Crowd at Culbertson.

A large crowd was waiting for him. There were several women on hand at the early morning hour. Mr. Howell found the people of Culbertson intensely interested in obtaining a federal aid to erect a monument and establish a park in Massacre canyon, eight miles west of here. Fifty years ago August 5, next, the Pawnee and Sioux Indians fought their last battle and hundreds were killed.

A committee to push this project, headed by A. L. Taylor, Trenton, chairman, and Mr. Culbertson, secretary, has been appointed. There will be a big celebration next August at the 50th anniversary of the massacre and a number of Pawnee Indians from Oklahoma have promised to be present.

Mr. Howell was greeted by Mrs. J. P. Wilson, who had waited one hour on the street for his arrival. Mr. Howell pressed forward to shake his hand. "I voted for you clear up in Oregon at the primaries by taking advantage of the absent voters law," Mr. Young said.

Drive from Stratton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith had driven from Stratton to hear Mr. Howell speak. Others on the reception committee were Al Taylor, chairman of county central committee and editor of the Republican-Leader for 23 years, County Judge A. T. McCoy, R. S. Lawrence and Evelyn Besack, county superintendent.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

He'll Visit His Mother, 89, on "Stroll" Through Iowa.

The world's most traveled crutch came to Omaha Tuesday.

With its predecessors a long line of distinguished aids, it possibly has had more ups and downs in life than any other piece of wood from the crutch family tree.

For it's always with James Alby Hill, 65, who has used it to hobble over 14,000 miles in the last 12 years, and is just rearing for new roads to tramp.

On His Way to Maine.

Hill left Land's End, California, at the side of the Golden Gate, 6 months and 12 days ago, halted long enough at Berkeley, Cal., his home, to pick up his traveling bag, which weighs 20 pounds, and began a hike to Eastport, Me., where the ocean may stop him. He arrived in Omaha Tuesday with a record of having collected only 11 rides from drivers of vehicles, and had not ridden on a train. Before next spring he hopes to reach Eastport and finish more than 3,000 miles of walking.

"Doctor's orders," he explained, "I became ill of rheumatism while postmaster at Tancred, Cal., 12 years ago and the doctors told me to begin walking. I've been at it ever since and expect to keep it up until I die, for the doctors believe I'll die when I quit tramping."

Several walks of up to 600 miles are not included by Hill in his 14,000-mile record.

"They were just tuning-up trips," he laughed.

His best year was 1921, when he covered more than 3,000 miles. In each of the 12 years Hill has walked more than 1,000 miles.

To Visit Mother, 89.

When he arrived here Hill delivered to the Chamber of Commerce a letter from the Chamber of Commerce at Sacramento, extending California's greetings and inviting Omahans to attend a celebration in Sacramento May 22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

James Alby Hill

22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

Howell Tells Large Crowds of Fight of the Wet Interests and Reads Their Letters.

Urges Collection of Debt

By F. C. POWELL.
Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee.
Wausau, Neb., Sept. 27.—(Special Telegram)—Prohibition and repayment of the foreign debt are issues fronting the American people. R. B. Howell, candidate for United States senator, told large crowds today at Culbertson, Trenton, Fallsdale, Wausau, Imperial and Grant.

"If you are against prohibition you still have hope, because there are big and powerful interests working to restore liquor," he said, "and if you are not for prohibition, keep one eye open while you sleep, for you will find liquor with you again."

Mr. Howell produced letters written to him by anti-prohibition organizations asking him how he stood on the liquor question and urging a return of the saloon. He also told of the attempt of liquor interests in Ohio to put prohibition to a referendum in that state.

Foreign debt an issue.

"Now let's talk the foreign debt," he said. "If you had loaned money to a man and received his I. O. U., if he were telling you that he believed he would have to cancel the debt, and if other persons with influence were urging the cancellation of the debt, would you erect a monument to the man who had loaned you the money?"

"That, in short, is the condition of the United States at this time," he said. "The premier of Great Britain recently stated that the cancellation of the war debt depends upon the cooperation of the United States. The chamber of commerce of the United States, whose membership is composed of chambers of commerce of every city in the country, recently passed resolutions recommending cancellation of the debt, and powerful propaganda is being urged for the cancellation of the debt. I think it is a life issue. Why, we haven't even collected the interest on that debt."

At Culbertson, Mr. Howell was met by Henry Lehman, precinct committeeman, and H. B. McKibben, editor of the Progress.

Crowd at Culbertson.

A large crowd was waiting for him. There were several women on hand at the early morning hour. Mr. Howell found the people of Culbertson intensely interested in obtaining a federal aid to erect a monument and establish a park in Massacre canyon, eight miles west of here. Fifty years ago August 5, next, the Pawnee and Sioux Indians fought their last battle and hundreds were killed.

A committee to push this project, headed by A. L. Taylor, Trenton, chairman, and Mr. Culbertson, secretary, has been appointed. There will be a big celebration next August at the 50th anniversary of the massacre and a number of Pawnee Indians from Oklahoma have promised to be present.

Mr. Howell was greeted by Mrs. J. P. Wilson, who had waited one hour on the street for his arrival. Mr. Howell pressed forward to shake his hand. "I voted for you clear up in Oregon at the primaries by taking advantage of the absent voters law," Mr. Young said.

Drive from Stratton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith had driven from Stratton to hear Mr. Howell speak. Others on the reception committee were Al Taylor, chairman of county central committee and editor of the Republican-Leader for 23 years, County Judge A. T. McCoy, R. S. Lawrence and Evelyn Besack, county superintendent.

Prohibition Aged Hiker Uses Crutch on Cross-Country Journey

He'll Visit His Mother, 89, on "Stroll" Through Iowa.

The world's most traveled crutch came to Omaha Tuesday.

With its predecessors a long line of distinguished aids, it possibly has had more ups and downs in life than any other piece of wood from the crutch family tree.

For it's always with James Alby Hill, 65, who has used it to hobble over 14,000 miles in the last 12 years, and is just rearing for new roads to tramp.

On His Way to Maine.

Hill left Land's End, California, at the side of the Golden Gate, 6 months and 12 days ago, halted long enough at Berkeley, Cal., his home, to pick up his traveling bag, which weighs 20 pounds, and began a hike to Eastport, Me., where the ocean may stop him. He arrived in Omaha Tuesday with a record of having collected only 11 rides from drivers of vehicles, and had not ridden on a train. Before next spring he hopes to reach Eastport and finish more than 3,000 miles of walking.

"Doctor's orders," he explained, "I became ill of rheumatism while postmaster at Tancred, Cal., 12 years ago and the doctors told me to begin walking. I've been at it ever since and expect to keep it up until I die, for the doctors believe I'll die when I quit tramping."

Several walks of up to 600 miles are not included by Hill in his 14,000-mile record.

"They were just tuning-up trips," he laughed.

His best year was 1921, when he covered more than 3,000 miles. In each of the 12 years Hill has walked more than 1,000 miles.

To Visit Mother, 89.

When he arrived here Hill delivered to the Chamber of Commerce a letter from the Chamber of Commerce at Sacramento, extending California's greetings and inviting Omahans to attend a celebration in Sacramento May 22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.

After leaving Omaha Hill will visit his mother, Mrs. S. L. Chapman, 89, at Mechanicsville, Ia.

Hill carries a book in which he has governors, mayors, university heads, public officials of all ranks, in fact, inscribe their names. There are thousands of them and he is still collecting.

James Alby Hill

22-28, but the aged messenger was several months tardy.