

Ho for The Open Road and The Wide Outdoors

Omaha Walking Club Hikers on 1922 Annual Outing Spent Two Weeks Exploring Lake Vermillion S. D., Territory

Here's the feminine portion of the Lake Vermillion party, togged comfortably and efficiently for their two weeks of "roughing it." Left to right (rear), Margaret Flickinger, Council Bluffs; Jennie Sharkey, Anne Duncan, Irene Neligh, Eva Begley. Front, Irene Higbee, Maud Watson, Phoebe Davis, Harriet Mueller, Walking club president; Mildred Neigh and Bess Dumont.

When the "gang" lost their bearings in thick underbrush, Leslie Williams climbed a tree to look for the best way out.

The accommodating fish did their duty and provided a meal for the famished anglers. Left to right, Irene Neligh, Leslie Williams, Jennie Sharkey, Maud Watson, Anne Duncan, Carl Nagy, Eva Begley, Fred Young.

A glimpse of Daisy Bay, Lake Vermillion, with Maud Watson and Bess Dumont in foreground.

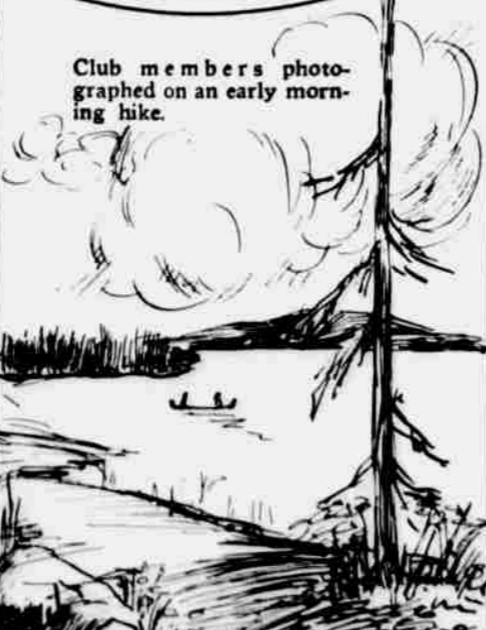

Photos by Edwin S. Jewell

Harry Haberstroh and Elmo Adams ready to hit the trail. These two Omaha high school lads "hoofed it" all the way to Lake Vermillion and back to Omaha, a distance of 1,100 miles.

Wash day at camp. Bess Dumont is the laundress shown above.

Club members photographed on an early morning hike.

Lost Lake, S. D., is no longer "lost" to the Walking club "exploration party." It was from the rock shown above they sighted the lake after a long and arduous hike.

On the pier at Lake Vermillion. Left to right, Edwin S. Jewell, Margaret Flickinger, Bess Dumont, Mildred Neigh, Phoebe Davis, Irene Higbee, Harriet Mueller, Lynn Williams, Charles Galloway, Maud Watson, Jennie Sharkey, Eva Begley, Anne Duncan, Irene Neligh, Leslie Williams, Fred Young.

Even experienced hikers meet with mishaps now and then along the trail. Leslie Williams (above) accumulated a bootfull of water. The photograph was taken at Greenwood Point, Lake Vermillion.