

Additional Suits Loom in Stillman's Marital Battle

At Least Three More Actions Likely to Be Filed in Tangle—Banker Expected to Appeal Case.

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(By A. P.)—The Stillman divorce fight appeared far from ended tonight, despite the fact that Supreme Court Justice Morschauser handed down a decision confirming the report of Referee Daniel J. Gleason, in which dismissal of the divorce suit filed by James A. Stillman, wealthy banker, against Mrs. Anne L. Stillman and affirmation of the legitimacy of her youngest child, Guy, was recommended.

At least three more actions loom on the calendar of the supreme court—and after that there is every indication that Stillman, if he continues to play a losing hand in the lower court, will go to the appellate division for a review, then to the court of appeals, and possibly, eventually, to the United States supreme court.

Two hearings are set for Saturday. One is on a motion by Stillman for judgment on the referee's report, filed in the supreme court at Nyack. The other is a motion for confirmation of the report, filed at Touchkeepsie by John A. Mack, a guardian of the interests of Baby Guy.

Next Friday Mrs. Stillman's lawyers will submit to Justice Morschauser for his signature, a copy of a formal judgment recording the opinion he handed down today and assessing the costs of the action against Stillman.

At the same time, arguments are scheduled on the matter of fees for the referee and for Guardian Mack, and on the question for allowances for Mrs. Stillman's costs. These arguments are expected to throw some light on how much the famous divorce case has cost Stillman. Estimates of the cost so far range between $250,000 and $500,000.

And when all of these odds and ends of litigation have been cleared away in the supreme court it is almost certain that Stillman will appeal.

Vets Off for New Orleans Legion Meet

It's a long 'drag' but we'll get there.

And with this old Argonne warrior, three Omaha ex-service men started out Friday afternoon in a gaily decorated Bliver roadster, New Orleans bound.

The students at the Bellevue vocational training school and they're on their way to the American Legion convention. They expect to reach New Orleans one week from tonight.

Their schedule calls for forced marches—parade us—forced drives of 200 miles a day, and the American Legion here has telegraphed Chambers of Commerce in all the towns where they expect to stop over, warning them of the coming invasions and beseeching a welcome for the trio.

Miller, Mercer and Wangelin are going to spread the gospel of Bellevue school along their way.

They're going to tell the national convention of the legion how good it is to be in Bellevue school and why there should be more of these schools throughout the country.

Another avowed purpose of their trip is to introduce the new American Legion auxiliary official uniform, which was designed in the tailoring class at Bellevue and adopted by the women's auxiliary of the department of Nebraska. A picture of Mrs. John Kilmartin in one of these uniforms at the state convention in York, Neb., was published exclusively in The Omaha Bee.

A uniform for the American Legion proper also has been designed and will be introduced by this trio at the convention.

Wangelin, former machine gunner, wears a decoration for participation in five major engagements in France. Mercer is former president of the Bellevue student body. Miller was in aviation. The three of them are neurosis patients at Bellevue.

The Fremont band was splendidly entertained at Sioux City with a dinner under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and a theater party following. The purpose of the trip was to get acquainted with the merchants and consumers of the territory covered.

Republicans Answer Statement of Allen

Lincoln, Oct. 6.—(Special.)—Republican campaign leaders came right back at Chairman Allen of the democrats today, when the latter gave out a statement saying that he had 2,000 tax receipts from various parts of the state which disclosed that instead of the farmer paying but 10 cents of his tax dollar to the state he was paying as high as 41 cents.

Finance secretary Bross said that apparently Mr. Allen had gone over a book issued some time ago by his department and had picked out the school districts in the state where the school tax was but nominal, and was exploiting these as typical cases. A considerable number of these can be found, and as the tax dollar for the farmer consists only of state, county and school taxes, where school tax is small the other taxes are larger on the percentage basis.

Mr. Bross said that Mr. Allen had neglected to state the principal fact, and that it that the farmer pays on every 1,000 worth of property just the same taxes as does the city property owner. The average the state over for all taxpayers is 19 per cent.
