CHIEF OF UNCLE SAM'S AIR SERVICE Major General Mason M. Patrick, from a trip made at Mitchell Field, Mineola, recently during the tests of America's largest airplane, the army's giant bomber, called "The Army," the business end of which is pictured above. An army flyer is seen pointing out the features of the 12-ton craft to General Patrick. The bomber is engaged by three Liberty motors, has a speed of 110 miles an hour and easily lifts 10,000-pound bombs. It is a masterpiece of engineering.
