Birthday Party.

On Monday afternoon a group of happy children were entertained by Mrs. Charles H. Hannan, Jr. in honor of the fifth birthday anniversary of her son, Kelley.

Halloween decorations were much in evidence, and on the dining table, where luncheon was served late in the afternoon, was a miniature Anne-Kay carrying on his back two baskets of flowers.

Ninety little favors were used to mark the places, and just before the birthday cake was brought in each guest was given an artistic paper cap. Their appearance in these at the table in the light of the candles, formed a very pretty picture.

At the games which were played the prize winners were: Barbara Van Brunt, Florence Day, Jessann Hannan, Hubert Tinley and Hannan Van Brunt.

Those hidden to this jolly party were Mary Jane Mitchell, Barbara Wilcox, Jessann Hannan, Florence Day, Jere Van Heester, Eleanor, Jean and Barbara Van Brunt, Donald Filbert, Hubert Tinley, Hannan Van Brunt, Homer O'Neil, Donald and Jack Rosenfeld and Charles Hannan.

Bridge Luncheon.

Tea.

One of the loveliest of the autumn functions was the tea on Friday at which Mrs. Woodworth Allen and Mrs. Edward Sheppard presided.

Roses bloomed brightly in bowls and baskets throughout the attractive home of Mrs. Allen and these hostesses received their guests in the drawing room.

Pink was the color chosen for the dining room where flowers, candies and other appointments carried out this motif.

Mrs. Edward Schoentgen, Mrs. Elton Louche, Mrs. W. E. Mann and Mrs. Lyman Shugart presided.

Needlework Guild Will Make Annual Collection of Garments in November

The annual collection and distribution of garments by the Needlework Guild will take place this year in the Sunday school chapel of the First Central Congregational church, Thursday and Friday, November 9 and 10. The public is invited to inspect the garments before they are carried away to the various Omaha charities on Friday afternoon. Tea will be served.

The Needlework Guild of America is not confined to the work of any single city in Omaha, but it is an international organization, founded in England in 1855, which became affiliated with the American Red Cross in 1907 and with the General Federation of Women's Clubs in 1909. It is a member of the National Council of Women and draws its members from every known denomination. Men, women and children may become members. The national office is located at 804 Colonial Trust building, Philadelphia, Pa.

The object of the Needlework Guild is to collect and to distribute new, plain, suitable garments to meet the great need of hospitals, homes and other charities, and to extend its usefulness by the organization of branches. Special collections of garments may be taken at times of local, national or international disaster. This was done in Omaha at the time of the tornado in 1913.

To become a member of the Needlework Guild of America it is only necessary to call the secretary, hand in name and address and send two garments of such make as to the same size. No old garments may be counted. There is no money charge for membership, unless the member wishes to be a money member.

The Omaha branch of the Needlework Guild was founded 23 years ago, with Mrs. J. H. Strand as president. During that period most of the chairs for members have passed on, and the three remaining charter members today are the honorary president, Mrs. W. G. Templeton, Mrs. J. O. Phillippi and Mrs. W. A. Smith, who are still active members of the organization.

The officers of the Omaha branch today are: President, Mrs. W. W. Carmichael; vice president, Mrs. Charles R. Sherman; secretary, Miss Elsie Goetz; treasurer, Mrs. George Henderson.

A branch consists of as many sections as possible. A section has a president and four or more directors, each of whom is responsible for not less than 10 members and one money member, making an equivalent of 22 garments. These garments are collected by the president of each section.

Table Talkers

By LYDIA LION ROBERTS.

Meal time, parents and children, can be an interesting combination, but will not be unless especially prepared for by the mother. Why not make it one of the pleasantest times of the day and teach the children at the same time to take their part in conversation with sense and dignity? This can be done by making it the time to tell the pleasant things that each one has seen, heard, done, or read.

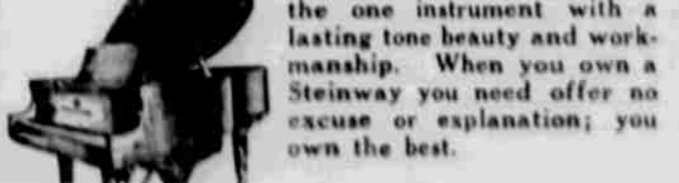

Enforce a rule that nothing disagreeable shall be talked over at meals—this is not good for digestion we are told, and no gossip, horrible affairs, nor cross words should be allowed.

Even little children can learn to talk about the picture they liked, the funny story (the same time to tell the dog that wagged at them on the way home, and any little detail of cheery, happy days. Daddy could tell of the people he met, of anything he saw made or done in an unusual way, and relate stories of "when I was a boy."

Mother should talk about the people who had telephoned, or been to the door, the books she had read or heard about, the stories of when grandma was a girl.

In the morning no bad news from the paper should mar the meal. The occasion would be a merry one, and everyone would feel better and brighter if we all talked to be the right kind of table talkers. It is never too early to begin with the children. Even a baby will react to smiles or frowns, and good cheerful talk breeds kind, thoughtful deeds.
