

WOMAN'S PAGE—MAGAZINE FEATURES

SOCIETY

Mrs. Clift Hostess to Mrs. Turner Last Evening

Mrs. William B. Clift who has lately returned from a summer in the Berkshires entertained at dinner at the Country club last evening in honor of Mrs. Rupert Turner of Manchester, England, who is the guest of Mrs. John Redick. Following dinner the party went to the Orpheum. The guests included the Messrs. and Mesdames John Redick, George Redick, Burton Millard, Charles E. Metz, and Mr. Louis Clarke. Mrs. Millard will entertain Mrs. Turner Tuesday evening.

Additional Affairs for Mrs. Stephen Royce

On Tuesday Miss Gertrude Stout will entertain at luncheon at her home in honor of Mrs. Stephen Royce of Pasadena, who is the guest of Mrs. Amos Thomas, and Wednesday Miss Corinne Elliott will be hostess to Mrs. Royce at a small luncheon at the Brandeis tea room. Thursday Mrs. Albert Rutherford will give an afternoon bridge, and that evening Mrs. Thomas will entertain at a buffet supper for Mrs. Royce and for Mr. Royce, who will arrive Wednesday from the east.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Thomas will give a tea at her home for the visitor, Mr. and Mrs. Royce and their son, Stephen, Jr., will leave for Pasadena on Sunday.

Mrs. Melvin Bekins Has Lincoln Guest

Miss Edna Fitzsimmons, motored back from her home in Lincoln Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bekins who had gone down for the Missouri-Nebraska game. She will be their guest this week.

Tuesday Mrs. Bekins is planning a luncheon and Orpheum party for her visitor, and that evening they will have dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bekins. On Thursday Mrs. Leo Huff, Jr., will entertain at bridge at her home in honor of Mrs. Fitzsimmons, and on Friday Mrs. Jess Thurmond will compliment the visitor at bridge. That evening Mr. and Mrs. Bekins will give a supper party at the Brandeis tea room.

Cancelled Affairs

The death of Mrs. Charles T. Kountze has caused the cancellation of the Friends of Music recital to have been given by Mrs. L. F. Crofoot Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. E. W. Nash. The program will be given at 4 o'clock at the Fontainebleau on October 21.

For the same reason the luncheon to have been given Tuesday by the Omaha Society of Fine Arts for Will Irwin has been cancelled. The lecture of this noted correspondent will be given at 4 o'clock at the Fontainebleau on October 21.

Miss Edna Reed has recalled invitations for a luncheon next Monday, honoring Mrs. Stephen Royce of Pasadena, the guest who arrived last week to be the guest of Mrs. Amos Thomas.

For Miss Jenks

Mrs. Anderson Long was hostess this evening at bridge, complimenting Mrs. Florence Jenks and her fiancé, Harold James Pratt. The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hubel, Mrs. E. B. Terry and the Mesdames Mildred Rhoades, Lillian Johnson, Bea Heaton, Rachel Metcalfe, Ethel Maynard, the Messrs. John Brotherton, Bayley Spaul, Ward Ingraham, Louis Meland and C. E. Winn. Mrs. Terry will compliment Miss Jenks with a luncheon Wednesday.

For Miss Robinson

Mrs. T. W. McDougall entertained Saturday afternoon at the Orpheum.

My Marriage Problems

Adelle Carlson's New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife."

The Reason Madge Asked to See Dr. Pettit.

Katie closed her eyes wearily as she asserted her belief that the man known as Smith or Anton, and the man she called Joe, would be harmless only when they were dead, and for several seconds she rested, quietly against me, her hands clinging tenderly to mine.

I guessed that in spite of her forebodings, Lillian's tidings had reassured her about any imminent danger at the hands of Smith, and I was not surprised when she opened her eyes again to see that they had had their strident agonized expression.

"You want me to do anything, look anything?" she asked, with the instinctive willingness to serve which is hers. "I feel no mood better now."

Her hesitations and an involuntary movement of her hand toward her throat as she spoke told me, however, that she was heavily smothering real discomfort, and I gently pushed her back as she attempted to arise.

"Thank you, dear, but there is nothing in the world for you to do tonight except to let me massage your throat again with this medicine of Dr. Pettit's, and then to go to sleep. I'll sit right beside you and hold your hand until you go to sleep."

"You must let me do this, Madge," Lillian said decisively. "You must let me do this for you."

Katie raised herself one inch off the cushion and looked at me. Her eyes were big and round and her mouth was open as if she were about to speak.

"I need nothing," she said. "I am not ill. I am not in pain. I am not in any danger. I am not in any trouble. I am not in any need of anything."

"Oh, my Miss Graham," she said, "you happened by just pretty much."

"Nothing but a tumble in the dust, Sam," I replied with a reassuring laugh, for I had recently vowed never again to repeat the real story of that tumble. Lillian was settled in it, and from Chester, my father, Dr. Pettit and Allen Jenks had been sharing of the incident, but not even to Dicky, or rather, especially to Dicky, did I mean to repeat that tale again.

"But I must have, somehow," she persisted. "Please, Miss Graham, say by your bad vision. And I need nothing. I do not need a quiet day, neither more till tomorrow."

followed by tea at the Burgess-Nash tea room in honor of Miss Katherine Robinson, who is to be married November 2 to Charles Seymour Bullock of Cold Springs-on-Hudson, N. Y. The guests were the Messdames John Robinson, J. M. Melville, Dean Davidson, Philip McCullough, H. K. Owen and the Mesdames Katherine and Helen Robinson and Miss Rachel Melville.

Miss Hamilton Weds

Although the engagement had not been publicly announced, the wedding of Miss Penelope Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hamilton, and Frank W. Anderson, which took place in Chicago Saturday evening, was not a surprise to their friends here. A brother of Mr. Anderson and his wife were the only attendants at the ceremony.

The bride was graduated from Central High school in 1918 and later studied law at Omaha university, passing her state bar examination in June of 1921. She groom attended college at Ames, Ia. He, too, was graduated from Central High school.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are motoring home. They will make their home in Omaha.

McGill Smith

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Smith and Henry McGill, which took place June 29 at Missouri Valley, Ia. The wedding has been kept a secret until this month and was announced at a dinner given Friday evening by Miss Hazel Scattergood.

The young couple is living at the Florence apartments.

Rummage Sale

The Christ Child society will hold a rummage sale Thursday at 2512 Q street. Mrs. P. P. Abdou and Mrs. T. P. Quinlan are in charge.

Personals

G. E. Jennings is in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Spiesberger of Omaha are guests at The Elms hotel, Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Mr. Edward L. Keating of Moberly, Mo., noted Irish tenor, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dumont.

Mr. F. K. Hill of Rockford, Ill., arrived Saturday to visit her son, Fred Hill. She will be the guest later of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Wilhelm.

Mrs. Allan Tukey joined Mrs. Harry Wilkins' motorcade party which left for Chicago on Saturday. Mrs. Tukey, who is in Chicago will be the guest of Mrs. Harry Byram.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnson of Evanston, Ill., are the guests of Mrs. Lawrence Dods for a few days. Miss Bertha Bartlett of Roswell, N. M., is also a guest of Mrs. Dods.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lovings of Estes Park have arrived in Omaha on their way to Florida for the winter, and are visiting with their son, Mark Lovings, and Mrs. Lovings.

Mrs. Ben Wood leaves this week for St. Joseph, Mo., from where she will go to California to join her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Cramer of Denver, at Carmel-by-the-Sea for the winter.

Hasthorne Daniel arrived Sunday from New York City and will be with his sister, Mrs. John Lionberger, until his wedding to Miss Nellie Ryan, which will be solemnized Thursday evening.

Mrs. J. E. Wallace will leave tonight for North Platte, where she will represent the Omaha College club on the Tuesday program of the Nebraska State Federation of Women's Clubs.

stretched herself in a perfectly horizontal position, closed her eyes and crossed her hands on her breast in a posture that was quaintly reminiscent of death, but had in it a touch that was so distinctly Katie-like that Lillian and I bit our lips as we looked at each other.

"This is very thoughtful of you, Katie," I said firmly, picking up the location Dr. Pettit had left for her, "but I am not going to bed just yet, so you must let me take care of you. The sooner you go to sleep the sooner I can go."

Madge braces herself.

Lillian opened her lips to protest again, but I forestalled her.

"Will you please come and tell me when Dr. Pettit is through in Mr. Chester's room?" I asked. "I must see him before he goes home."

Lillian rarely lets her mask fall, but I saw a wondering query flash into her eyes. It was gone, however, when she answered, and I saw also that she realized the futility of further arguing me.

"Of course," she said, walking toward the door. "Can I help you with Katie?"

"Not a bit," I replied. "I'll have her asleep in no time."

But my prophecy was not fulfilled. I dashed into the poor, bruised throat upon which Smith's brutal fingerprints still showed lightly, and then, tucking her body into bed, sat beside her and held her hand. She tried bravely and cunningly to disguise her mind, but I saw that she was not.

"I don't know what you are thinking, but I don't want to see you in any more of these states of mind. I don't want to see you in any more of these states of mind. I don't want to see you in any more of these states of mind."

"Please, Miss Graham, say by your bad vision. And I need nothing. I do not need a quiet day, neither more till tomorrow."

She slipped back upon the bed.

Bride to Live Here

Announcement has just been made by Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Helman of the marriage of their daughter, Lillian, to Robert H. Adams on October 7. Mrs. Adams was a Gamma Phi Beta at Northwestern university and Mr. Adams is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity of the University of Nebraska. The young couple plan to make their home in Omaha.

Announcement has just been made by Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Helman of the marriage of their daughter, Lillian, to Robert H. Adams on October 7. Mrs. Adams was a Gamma Phi Beta at Northwestern university and Mr. Adams is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity of the University of Nebraska. The young couple plan to make their home in Omaha.

An Undeserving Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax: A few months ago I met a man whom I deeply loved. I have disappointed him a few times the past two weeks. I met him the other day and, being that he always argues over such a little thing as a disappointment, I left him.

He has asked me to forgive him and give him another chance. I told him I did not care for him. He said, if given the opportunity, he would make me love him as I did at first. Does he deserve another chance?

T. E. A.

He deserves another chance—but I'm not sure that you do. Why should you disappoint a man you love? Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Moody Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a man of 25 and have been going about with a young lady for the past six months and have spoken to her regarding our coming engagement. Often while we are together she seems to be in the lightest of spirits and will suddenly become gloomy, which makes me feel as though I have done something to her about this, thinking that she might have some worry on her mind, but to no purpose.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

An Undeserving Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax: A few months ago I met a man whom I deeply loved. I have disappointed him a few times the past two weeks. I met him the other day and, being that he always argues over such a little thing as a disappointment, I left him.

He has asked me to forgive him and give him another chance. I told him I did not care for him. He said, if given the opportunity, he would make me love him as I did at first. Does he deserve another chance?

T. E. A.

He deserves another chance—but I'm not sure that you do. Why should you disappoint a man you love? Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity. But if you will think of her happiness and try to help her to overcome these gloomy moods, your understanding and sympathy can take care of the situation.

ANXIOUS.

Perhaps the girl has a moody nature. I have an idea that you have nothing to do with her temperamental changes. But if you are going to be sensitive about it and want her to stay on one level of feeling all the time, you might make yourself—and her miserable. Instead of worrying over her variations of mood, why not take them calmly and good naturedly for granted? If you are merely thinking of your own happiness, your love is not unselfish enough to make for comfort and peace and generosity.