HIDES.

The feeling among the hide trade is hopeful, although the note is sounded that the price of hides has been forced up too rapidly. Tanners are planning on curtailing their output in an effort to strengthen the leather market by producing less and in that way easing up the pressure in the hide market.

However, the local market is firm and quotations on hides were advanced slightly Saturday. The calf skin market is quiet. Horse hides are quiet at last unchanged prices.

Wool and sheep skins are firm and buyers are interested in both.

The tallow and grease markets are strong and late sales have been at ¼c advance over previous trades. This price, however, is regarded by buyers as extreme and not to be relied upon. That remains to be determined later as local buyers are picking up all that they can get on reasonable terms.

The quotations given below are on the basis of goods delivered Omaha:

Fall Demand for Lots Proves Big

Realtors Find Many Buyers Eager to Acquire Suburban Tracts for Later Building.

Activity in acreage and other sub-division property has been more extensive this fall than it was last spring, according to realtors who keep a close check on the trend of business.

This situation, they say, is unusual, spring being the generally accepted time for activity in all kinds of vacant property.

This movement seems to bear out the prediction made several months ago by Roger Babson and other economists. President Sholes of the Real Estate board said Saturday.

"Babson and others five months ago predicted a strong tendency on the part of city folks to acquire suburban property with the plan of living on it later."

Sholer & Cary, who carried on big development work in West Pacific this year, offered for sale last Thursday the third unit of this development, known as the Ryan tract. The demand for this land was strong from the hour that the sale was opened.

Another indication of the tendency to buy vacant property and build on it was the sale of 16 lots on West Maple street two weeks ago by George F. Jones company. Every lot was sold and one buyer has already started to build.

A short time prior to the Jones sale, Hastings & Heyden sold out an entire addition on North Sixtieth street.

A new sale of lots in Standard Place, an addition west of the Field club, held a week ago, showed a continuing demand for property in this district, according to H. A. Wolf, who controls Standard Place.

Tract Plans Completed.

Roy N. Towl, civil engineer, this week will submit plans to Hastings & Heyden his original blue prints for the development which he proposes to recommend for the 266-acre Langan tract on West Dodge street, purchased a month ago from the Langan Realty company.

This is the largest and most expensive tract of ground acquired by Douglas county for several years for subdivision purposes and the development plans, which will be adopted by Hastings & Heyden, are being watched with interest.

Mr. Towl expects to use trench digging methods employed in the war for straightening the west bank of the Little Papio Creek which runs along the east side of the addition; he plans to move the trees and ground at the same time by the use of dynamite.

Property Worth $200,000 Sold in Suburban Project

By the time today's sale of the Ryan tract on West Pacific closes, considerably more than $200,000 worth of property will have been sold this year in the West Pacific suburban home site development project, according to Shafer & Cary, realtors, who are developing country home sites in this section.

The Ryan tract, which is the third unit of this development project to be marketed, went on sale Thursday afternoon. This property, considered the highest and most slightly in the district, comprises the 20 acres formerly owned by William M. Ryan and on which he had his home.

The Ryan tract has been made a part of Loveland, legally. It has been subdivided into acre and half-acre home sites and has building restrictions of $5,000.

Subdivision Purchased.

A tract of ground comprising 33 lots on the south side of Lake street between Fiftieth and Fifty-first, was purchased last week by the Hansen Investment company from David Philpot and Peter Melchiors. The ground will be subdivided and sold next spring, according to L. C. Sholes, manager of the Hansen real estate department.

This ground is a block from Military avenue and is a short distance southeast from the Country club. It goes south from Lake to Grant street and is one of the high locations in the northwest district.

Building Department Added.

Due to rapid expansion of city real estate business, the Equitable Trust company has added a building and construction department.

It will enable the trust company to build and finance homes in all parts of the city. Seven houses are now under course of construction in the Leavenworth Heights and Minne Lusa districts.

Graham Buys Property.

There was placed on record last week a deed whereby Michael Tuchman sold to W. T. Graham three pieces of property including a house at Forty-third and California, another at Forty-fourth and Cass and some vacant property at Fiftieth and Center streets for $13,250.

D. E. Buck Returns.
