COLLAPSE OF THE DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN

I am frank to say that I think that the policies thus far pursued with respect to credits have been too drastic, but whether or not I am right, I am sure that the situation should now be re-viewed in the light of existing conditions.

It was not until the Harding administration came into power that this drastic deflation which squeezed the farmers and pinched the entire industrial body, both labor and employer, was checked.

What we can do we should do at once, and there is a great deal that we can do, provisionally at least. What shipments and credits to facilitate the purchase of our wheat can and will be limited and controlled in such a way as not to raise but rather to lower the price of flour here.

This was a plain promise to force down the prices of farm products. The colossal ruin that descended on agriculture had its beginnings there.

By this time almost everyone admits that the blame for drastic deflation, as well as the blame for undue inflation, belongs to the Wilson administration.

Most everyone, that is to say, except Hitchcock. You see, he embarked on a campaign for a third term determined to make deflation of the farmer his main talking point.

By basing his main campaign on the false issue of deflation, Senator Hitchcock has deflated his already slender chance of re-election.

which arose a system of human government totally at variance with European ideas, the influence of which has changed the course of history.

ITALY UNDER THE FASCISTI

Stormy political skies in Italy may not be entirely cleared by the advent of the fascist government, yet the experiment seems to be well worth trying.

Political conditions in Italy following the war took on the form of a social revolution, in some aspects resembling that of Russia, and to counteract this young men who served with the colors, regardless of creed or politics, formed a society that devoted its energies to combatting the spread of radicalism under any guise.

Fifteen years of strife and warfare has left Italy well nigh exhausted economically. Dr. Mussolini, new premier, has some pronounced views as to what is necessary to be done, and he has sufficient support to ensure a trial for his plans.

Dr. Mussolini's reference to America will get consideration when it takes on a diplomatic aspect. The friendship between the two countries is of long standing, and Italians in America know what those in Italy should know, that the United States is willing to allow the people of any country to settle their home affairs at home.

WILLIS G. SEARS FOR CONGRESS.

Many good reasons may be cited why the Second Nebraska district should continue to be represented by a republican in congress. No good reason is known why it should not be.

Willis G. Sears, the republican nominee for congress, is well known to the citizens of the district, because of his long residence here, and his many public services. His capabilities have been tested and well proved. He had served as county attorney for Burt county before coming to Omaha; he had two terms in the legislature, and was speaker of the house during one; and he has served as judge of the district court in Omaha for years.

Not merely as a good fellow does he seek votes, but as a man of rich experience, who knows Omaha, and who will serve his district and his country well in congress. He has been lawyer, law enforcer, lawmaker and law interpreter, and always a genial, wholesome man, with a kindly smile, a warm heart; ready to watch a horse race or a ball game, to walk with his fellow men and be one of them.

BE CAREFUL ABOUT FIRE.

Fire prevention week has come and gone, and the sequel showed it had about the usual effect, so far as practical results are concerned.

Warm dry weather invited the burning of leaves and grass, but a little watchfulness will render this process harmless. No heating service was required, so the overheated stove or furnace could not be held responsible, nor did the defective stovetop or furnace contribute.

Nebraska's annual share of America's costly bonfire is too great. Only one thing will lessen the loss. People must look more closely to the business of guarding against the breaking out of fire. Until they do watch more closely they will suffer the loss that is entailed by fires that might have been prevented.

AFTER HOUSE CLEANING COMES THE HUNTING SEASON

"From State and Nation" — Editorials from other newspapers

A New Hodgepodge. From the Omaha Journal. The drudgery of housework, fashionable London physicians believe, has brought into existence a new ill of the flesh, "encephalitis lethargica."

The benediction of October. From the Brewer Journal. October's benediction has fallen upon the Transmissorial land. The infinite opportu-nities, more beautiful nor has the world ever revealed itself in a severer spirit than in the past month.

Even the distant universe is in harmony with the spell. The sun, all multitudinous stars of summer have long disappeared behind the western horizon to waste their radiance in the sun's vaster glare.

Only three generations ago the best American homes were without electricity, and the best of them were without running water. Only 50 years ago all American homes were without electricity, and the best of them were without running water.

The "Unburied Dead." From the Iowa City Journal. These "Unburied Dead" were a disease caused by household drudgery and that it would be on its last legs, because of the simplification of the problems of housekeeping and the lightning of tasks.

"THE PEOPLE'S VOICE"

Pride in Nebraska. (Oct. 28.)—To the Editor of The Omaha Bee: Please allow me to express my appreciation of the splendid editorial, "Do You Know Nebraska?" in The Omaha Bee of Saturday, October 21.

From the Labor Viewpoint. (Oct. 28.)—To the Editor of The Omaha Bee: Mid-West Labor News tries to answer my letter of October 17 by saying that the Pressman's union had asked him to keep silence in the fight between the Pressman and Hitchcock, and that just now he has been released from that promise.

To Get Rid of a Bum Nicker. (Nov. 1.)—Somebody passed a counterfeit 40-cent bill a year ago, and he hasn't been able to get rid of it since.

That was the first time Fred had ever stopped his work for a few minutes in mid-afternoon to go out for a cup of Coffee. It was a good investment. He's been doing it regularly ever since.

COFFEE - the universal drink After all, why not a mid-afternoon cup of Coffee? It helps you start the day right. Why not repeat on in along about three-thirty?

The advertisement is part of an extensive campaign conducted by the Coffee Merchants of the United States in co-operation with the National Coffee Association, Inc., Washington, D. C.
