

A. G. Wray Urges Progressives to Vote for Howell

Democratic Candidate Should Not Have Vote of Farmer, Laborer or Woman Voter, He Says.

In an open letter to progressive voters, Arthur G. Wray of York, progressive leader, urges the election of L. D. Howell to the United States senate. Mr. Howell was endorsed by the people's bloc as the "most progressive man who could be elected," Mr. Wray says.

No farmer, no laboring man, no woman voter, no person opposed to bringing the liquor question back to Nebraska politics and no progressive of either party should vote for Hitecock, Mr. Wray says in his statement, which follows:

To Progressive Voters: I earnestly urge the election of the people's bloc of candidates endorsed by the farmers and by labor at their Grand Island convention August 25, 1922.

Progressives of all parties should learn to vote together. Progressive groups in all parties should not fight each other. As soon as they cooperate, we shall get results, and results are what the people want.

The people's bloc endorsed certain progressive candidates in each party who could be elected. It gave all three parties representation on the ticket, and was fair to all.

I urge the election of Mr. Howell for senator as the most progressive man who can be elected. He is a progressive as the majority of the people of Nebraska care to go at this time.

Hitecock Reactionary. The record of his opponent, Hitecock, is clearly reactionary, and bad.

No man opposed to the Fordney tariff bill should vote for Hitecock.

He was not in the senate to vote for the people's side when the tariff schedules were being formed. He missed 154 roll calls on the tariff bill.

No farmer should vote for Hitecock. When the packer regulation bill reached its crisis in the senate, Hitecock left the senate five minutes before the roll call was taken, and did not vote, and the senate packer bill lost by only three votes.

He voted for the Esch-Cummins law with its railroad guaranty on water stock and its resulting high freight rates.

No laboring man should vote for Hitecock. His vote for the vicious anti-labor provision of the Esch-Cummins law should forever condemn him in the eyes of labor.

No woman voter should vote for Hitecock. Let her remember when she goes into the booth to vote that Hitecock did everything in his power to prevent her exercising the right of franchise. He opposed both state and national suffrage. His whole vote in the senate denied American women the right to vote for several years. He has not admitted that his former position was wrong. Anyone who attempted to disfranchise one-half of our citizens as he did, is not a democrat.

Misrepresented Nebraska. No person who is opposed to bringing the liquor question back to Nebraska politics should vote for Hitecock. Hitecock misrepresented Nebraska sentiment on state and national prohibition. He now straddles the issue. He attempts to carry water on one shoulder and beer and wine on the other. Neither the water nor the brew want a straddler on this question.

No progressive of any party should vote for Hitecock. He voted to center the federal reserve system into one New York reserve bank. In 1917 he voted against adding $800,000,000 to the income taxes of the millionaires of this country. He favored the nomination of Governor Harmon, the Wall street candidate, for president.

He now attempts to attach his reactionary candidacy to the progressive record of Charles W. Bryan, who has been endorsed by the people's bloc for governor. Mr. Bryan has served the common people well through his municipal career. His record is good. No one should permit the reactionary Hitecock to be carried into office on the progressive record of Charles W. Bryan. Hitecock richly deserves defeat.

Endorses Republican. The people's bloc has endorsed a progressive republican for senator as the most progressive man who can be elected. It has endorsed a progressive democrat for governor as the most progressive man who can be elected to that office. It has also endorsed Mayor Ellsberry of Grand Island, a third party progressive, for lieutenant governor, and I urge the progressives of all parties to get back of the candidacy of Mayor Ellsberry, and if we do, he, too, can be elected, as well as certain administrative state officers and members of congress.

The people's bloc was fair to all three political parties. We should recognize some authority to organize a people's bloc and get the progressives of all parties to voting together. This was done by the farmers and labor at Grand Island, August 25, and I for one urge that we get back of their program and win a victory at the polls on November 7.

League of Women Hears Candidates

Discussion Over Code Bill Arises When Democrat Omits Facts.

More than 150 men and women attended the League of Women Voters' luncheon Thursday at the Y. W. C. A. when candidates for the state senate and legislature addressed the meeting.

Discussion arose over the code bill when E. F. Howell, democratic candidate for state senator, tried to bring the increase in taxes onto the bill.

Mr. Howell, however, failed to mention that much of this money was appropriated for our soldiers during the war, for the new state capitol and the improvement of roads, as was pointed out by John W. Cooper and Charles Saunders, republican candidates for reelection to the senate.

Other speakers were Mrs. Blanche McKelvie, democratic candidate for the legislature; John W. Robbins, republican candidate for reelection to the state senate; H. Malcolm Baldrige, candidate for state representative; George Collins, democratic candidate for representative; Robert Strahlow, Herman C. Timme and Charles A. Reed, also candidates for the legislature.

Mrs. H. J. Bailey, chairman of the league, presided.

Economic Change in U. S. Necessary, Borah Declares

Idaho Senator Predicts Third Party Movement in 1924 Unless Present Conditions Are Altered.

Spokane, Nov. 2.—United States Senator William F. Borah of Idaho, while in this city today, enroute to Idaho county for a campaign speech, declared he hopes the republican party will bring about a change in the economic conditions of the country. He said if the republican party does not another party will.

"What little influence I have is being exerted in that direction," said Senator Borah, expressing his hope that the republican party will bring about a change. He said a third party will sweep the country in 1924 unless there is a complete change of program by the republican party by the adoption of a liberal and constructive policy.

Senator Borah was asked if he expected to be a presidential candidate in 1924, either in the republican national convention or on a third party ticket.

"Candidly, I haven't considered either the question of the presidency or the question of being a candidate upon a third party ticket," he replied. "I have not supposed for a moment that the geographical or political situation necessitated or justified the consideration of this matter, but aside from any personal outlook, I think that unless there is a complete change of program upon the part of the republican party there will be a formidable third party movement in 1924."

"The situation in this country at present is quite different from what it was in 1912," he said. "The movement at that time was largely a personal movement, led by a man of tremendous personality, but the movement now is a people's movement. It is a mass movement. It is not unakin to the ground swell which took place from 1892 to 1896, so it's just a question of whether the republican party will recognize and lead, direct and control, or let some other party do it."

Common Sense

Are You Considerate of the "Old Employee" at Your Side.

Do you make sport of the nervous, subdued old man who works in the same place of employment with you—the man who has just been laid aside to an unimportant job because he can no longer keep the pace of a more active position?

He was a good man in his active years, perhaps more competent than you will be ever. He has remained an employe as you are likely to do.

The old man has worn out because of many years of hard toil. You may reach that stage some day.

The gibes you give this man he tries to take good-naturedly. But the hurt and the sting of your words and looks takes the joy out of life.

He cannot be left in peace to do this lighter job because you make him so uncomfortable, and it hurts his self respect.

The "old man," as you call him, is not more than you, but he has lost speed. He feels that he should have a certain amount of respect; you owe it to him.

He is not to blame that old age creeps on each day and perhaps the fact that he has not enough to support himself and those dependent on him is not his fault at all.

That he has ambition and courage to work is commendable. (Copyright, 1922.)

The cornerstone of the new Humane Society building, at Twenty-first and Izard streets, was laid yesterday afternoon with prominent Omahans, school organization, boys scouts and camp fire girls taking part.

The Nebraska society began in 1875. Among the records were copies of Omaha newspapers and humane journals.

The stone was accepted by J. W. Welch, president of the Nebraska Humane society. He gave a short review of the development of the society from the early days of the city period.

Acceptance talks also were made by representatives of the schools of the city, boy scouts and camp fire girls. Kellon school had 1,000 representatives in body at the ceremonies. Music was furnished by Central High school band, under the direction of Edward Ballentine.

Rev. Edward Hart Jenks pronounced the invocation. W. C. Ramsey, who was master of ceremonies, was assisted by a committee composed of Mayor Dahlman, Mrs. George Joslyn, Rev. Mr. Jenks, Mr. Welch, Dr. Fred Martin, George B. Prinz and Henry Nelson.
