WHILE THE VOTES ARE BEING COUNTED.
Many thoughts come flocking into the mind on election day. Foremost of all comes admiration for the spirit in which the people accept the judgment of the majority.

Nebraska is one of the thirty-two states that elect a governor at this time. Throughout the nation an entirely new congress is being chosen.

Our is a representative government, and more fully so with the advent of woman suffrage. The serious manner in which the feminine half of the population is taking its duties is having its effect on the general conduct of these elections.

The people, too, recognize and appreciate these acquaintanceships. The duties of public officials oftentimes tend to keep them apart from their constituents, and some make little effort to maintain as close a touch as is advisable.

TURKS AND THE TREATIES.
A line in a dispatch from Constantinople carries what seems to be the keynote of the situation there. It says the Kemalists will probably climb down from their high horse.

WHAT AK-SAR-BEN'S FAIR MAY BE.
A great many people wonder if the race track and its big pavilion and grandstand is all there is to be of the Ak-Sar-Ben field. These are not aware of the vision that inspires the board of governors.

CORN ON THE HOOF.
Although only 10 per cent of America's corn crop is used directly for human food, yet it is the principal source of the nation's food supply.

OTHERS RIGHTS.
Residents of a little town in the heart of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal field have written themselves down as lawless.

TURKEY TONE COMING.
With approach of Thanksgiving the average American, he of moderate means, begins to consider the turkey question, the probable price being the main thing.

President Harding spent his 57th birthday anniversary working at his desk, the Washington correspondents inform us. His explanation that one stops thinking of birthdays after 50 is a good one.

other mill products of corn, but the quickest and easiest way to cash in on this crop appears to be on four legs.

AMERICAN LIFE IN FICTION.

Now comes a Chicago woman to resent what is supposed to be representations of American life of today in fiction of the hour. A general inclination to agree with her is irresistible.

Consciously or unconsciously, the novelists are prone to exaggerate, one way or the other. Intent on rounding out a paragraph, following the trail of a creative thought, but bending it to conform to the general purpose of the tale, they are apt to shape rather than record events, to elevate or depress the elements with which they deal, that the work they turn out may be symmetrical, whether it is actual or not.

American life is about the most baffling thing a writer can deal with, for it is the most shifting. Certain of the homely virtues are fixed and immutable in our existence, but the surface stirs so continually that the kaleidoscope affords the only simile for its changing aspects.

PROBLEM OF THE PRISONER.

The National Prison Development league is pushing its work on behalf of those who are confined in the penitentiaries of the land. None of our national problems is more difficult of solution, however easy the approach may seem.

Mr. Charles Brandon Booth, president of the society named, is in Omaha, setting out the aims of the organization, which for the present have to do with the employment of prisoners at useful work.

INFLATION OF TIRES.

What degree of inflation tends to safety and economy in pneumatic tires? There are extremes prohibited by common sense: a "soft" tire may creep on uneven roads, suffer abrasion against the rim, or transmit dangerous pressure to the inner tube.

Dancing in Schools.
Whether dancing by students should be indulged in Nebraska secondary institutions is a question which faces educational heads again.

McAdoo Needn't Worry.

Former Secretary McAdoo says he would hate to give up the west for the White House. The democracy was kind enough to him not to ask him to give up New York for Washington two years ago.

"Business is Good."
From the Topeka State Journal.
For the first time in two years, says Amour's monthly business review, it has been possible to write the word "business" is good, unqualifiedly.

It is common knowledge that turkeys are not easily handled, for by nature they are wanderers and they usually give considerable concern to those whose duty it is to keep them on the home premises.

Whether the novel or the drama has exerted more power over the human imagination, resulting in such efforts as the emancipation of our slaves from Mrs. Stowe's novel, or as the emancipation of women in Europe from Ibsen's "Doll House" is a question some critics have been discussing.

Power of Some Pens.

One of them thinks the novel or the drama is but the megaphone, that it merely registers what already was happening, that the literary document is but the attestation, so to speak, as a deed is of a sale, and never the cause of the deed.

No, the power of a book is a force to be reckoned with and often it cannot be dismissed even in America as "wind" or "impractical." It sometimes is terribly "practical," just as it may be in the case of a doctrine, but many fallacies have cut furrows deep and long in human history.

Matrimonially Speaking.

Omaha.—To the Editor of The Omaha Bee: In reading over the article in your paper in which is advocated a matrimonial bureau, I cannot help thinking but that the scheme would be both feasible and practicable, if carried out in the proper way and in a manner which would allow for no publicity.

ready to write you a perfect letter of recommendation. About the time you are sincerely convinced the president is a knave, and the Savior ought to return and clean out, this time at Washington, some fellow with a little sense comes along and to your satisfaction proves that about half the lawmakers are really honest men, and the president is involuntarily in a fix he'd give half his life to be out of.

Welcomes the Friend! Warns the Intruder!
THE brilliant porch light welcomes the friend and warns the intruder. To the friend it shows that the hostess is thoughtful. The guest feels his company really is desired.

To the intruder it is the sign of warning. It notifies him that the piercing eye of light is ready to expose him.

Because of the extremely low electric light rates in Omaha, the cost is insignificant. To burn your porch light for seven hours costs only a penny.

A light all night for a penny and a third.
