

Market, Financial and Industrial News of the Day

Omaha Grain

Omaha, Nov. 17. All grain markets were steady and with an upward tendency today, the wheat taking the lead. Commission houses were good buyers and there was talk of a good continental European demand for all grains. News was scarce, however, and the market was dull and without feature.

Chicago Grain

By CHARLES D. MICHAELS. Omaha Bee Staff Writer. Chicago, Nov. 17.—While grain values failed to get into new ground for the season, wheat prices equalled the outside figures of the previous day, and the finish on all grains was at the highest of the year, with net gains of 1/4 cent on wheat, unchanged to 1/4 cent higher on corn, 1/4 cent higher on oats and 1/4 cent higher on rye.

Financial

NEW YORK TIMES. Omaha Bee Staff Writer. New York, Nov. 17.—The outstanding movement on today's financial markets was again the recovery of European bonds and European exchange rates.

New York Bonds

New York, Nov. 17.—Strength of foreign government securities, unimpaired in the domestic market and slight depression of United States government bonds were the main developments in today's bond market.
