

First All-Metal Plane for Navy Use Delivered

New Monoplane So Constructed That It Can Be Launched from Turret of Battleship.

Cleveland, Nov. 18.—An all-metal airplane, the first of its kind to be built for the navy, was turned over to the government bureau of aeronautics yesterday after a series of exhaustive tests.

It is a monoplane and is so constructed that it can be mounted on the turret of a battleship and catapulted into the air. It will land beside the ship on pontoons and be hoisted to the deck.

The plane carries a crew of three. It is built so that no enemy airplane can approach without being observed. The pilot sits directly behind the motor, and a gunner has a cockpit half way between the pilot and the tail plane, with vision on all sides. The observer's seat is directly beneath the wings, where he can look toward the earth.

The fuel capacity of the plane is sufficient for only three hours at full speed, but because of its peculiar construction, it can float along at 50 miles an hour or less and stay in the air from nine to 15 hours.

According to the builders, this type of plane would be used in war to locate enemy ships, report the location by wireless and direct the fire of its parent ship's guns.

County Attorney Asked to Drop Case Against White

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 18.—R. C. B. Griffith, assistant attorney general of Kansas, announced that he had dispatched a letter to Holand Boynton, county attorney at Emporia, Kan., suggesting that the case of the state against William Allen White, charged with violating the Kansas industrial court law by posting a placard expressing sympathy for the striking railroad shopmen during the recent strike, be dismissed. The letter said:

"In reference to your request that this department prosecute the case against William A. White I beg leave to say:

"There is now pending before this department so many matters, many of which you have directed we give our personal attention, that it is impossible for us to properly take care of them all."

War Discontent Aided Democrats McKelvie Says

Nebraska Governor Advises Republicans to Make Promises They Can Fulfill and Avoid Prejudice.

Lincoln, Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Governor McKelvie in a letter to Henry W. Rose, general manager of the Republican National News Service, Detroit, asserted that the contributing cause for democratic gains in the recent election was the general discontent arising out of unsettled conditions incident to the war.

Jealous Man Slays Two Women and Self

Hoquiam, Wash., Nov. 18.—Two women slain by a man who then killed himself, said the verdict of a coroner's jury today, explains three deaths yesterday in a lonely cabin near Copalis, a point on the ocean 25 miles from here.

The dead are: Miss Daisy Bolton, 14, Mrs. Carl Johnson, 35, Hjalmar Anderson, 39.

The jury held the man responsible for the triple tragedy.

John Berg, 60, a logger, gave what he said was the account of an eye witness. He declared that he escaped the fate of the two women only by hiding in timber near the cabin. He testified that Mrs. Johnson had been

Rail Detective Chief Shot Down as Burglar

Cleveland, O., Nov. 18.—Daniel H. Clark, 47, chief of detectives of the Nickel Plate railroad, was shot and probably fatally wounded by a squad of police who entered his home in response to a burglar alarm last night. Before submitting to a blood transfusion operation Clark characterized the affair as "an unfortunate mistake" and exonerated the police.

The police were answering a call sent in by an upstairs neighbor. One of the officers climbed through an unlocked window of the Clark home to open the door for his companions. Clark, awakened by the noise, shot in the darkness. The police returned the fire, wounding the railroad detective.

In the New Wintry Wraps

The Stamp of Distinction Is Individuality of Line

Here you will find them in all their variety, carrying us back to olden days and to the atmosphere of other countries. They may borrow from Russia, Italy, Venice or Persia, but it is your own characteristic style which will determine your choice.

Whether you desire the flare, the straight silhouette or the wrappy model, it will be developed of any one of the deep pile fabrics the wraps are so partial to this season. Then when lovely plain silk crepe linings and luxurious furs add their alluring softness to this attractive feminine garment the result is superb.
