Pleasing Soprano Voice Is Treat to Fans Who Tune to WAAW.

Mrs. Don Adams, soprano, and Miss Edna Taylor, pianist, were the soloists whose work gave radio audiences in Nebraska and Iowa a real treat Thursday evening. They gave The Omaha Bee concert from station WAAW.

Mrs. Adams' first number was Gilbert's "Spring Serenade," a charming love song. Her next was a merry ballad, "Good Morning, Brother Sunshine," written by Liza Lehman. "I Shall Meet You in the Morning," her third selection, had all the swing and feeling of some of the old gospel tunes and she sang an encore, "What an Irishman Means by 'Macree,'" a tender lyric, the words of which were written by an Irish Jesuit, Gartian. Mrs. Adams' voice is clear and full, with a most pleasing quality. She plays her own accompaniment. Miss Taylor closes two of Chopin's works for her numbers, the beautiful "Fantasie Impromptu," and the "Waltz in A Flat," the latter a brilliant composition familiar to many of her hearers. Miss Taylor plays with finish and feeling and put exquisite shading into her work. Her third number was McDowell's "To a Water Lily," a dreamy and rhythmic selection.

Experts to Advise Fans.
At a meeting of the American Radio League last night at the City hall it was reported from numerous sources that the initial program put on at station WNAL by the local members of the league was highly successful.

Numerous calls have been received by the local officers requesting a talk explaining how to make the ordinary broadcast listener's receiver more selective.
In the next program the A. R. R. L. will attempt to follow out these suggestions. A service committee, with Edwin R. Anderson of the Nebraska Power company as chairman, was appointed to visit local listening stations upon request, and give advice where improvements are needed. The members of this committee are experts in radio, and well qualified to help the listener out of difficulties. They may be reached by phone to Mr. Anderson or any local officer of the A. R. R. L.

Lady Astor Is Heckled
by New Labor Members
During Speech in House
London, Nov. 24.—(By A. P.)—The new labor members proved to be a disturbing element in the house of commons last night. They created a scene when Lady Astor was speaking in the debate on the address. All the while she was on her feet the new labor members kept up a rapid fire of shouts and interruptions. On one occasion she said:
"Keep a civil tongue in your head."
Lady Astor alluded to the temperance question, which seemed to annoy these laborites. The older labor leaders, J. Ramsey MacDonald, John Robert Clynes and others, were plainly chagrined and disapproved of this exhibition by their new colleagues.

Banquet Closes
Masonic Reunion
Class of 154 Initiated—322
Degree Conferred at Afternoon Gathering.
Scottish Rite Masons held the closing event of their semi-annual reunion, a banquet with speeches and entertainment, Thursday night, in Scottish Rite cathedral. In points of interest, attendance and the large class of 154 initiated, it was one of the most successful reunions yet held, according to T. McCullough, 334 chancellor of the Nebraska consistory. Charles A. Chappell of Minden, deputy grand master, and the Rev. Fred V. Loos of Kansas City delivered the principal addresses. Rev. J. W. G. East, pastor of the First Methodist church, was class orator. John E. Simpson, venerable master of kadosh, presided, and James R. Cain was toastmaster.

The Masonic quartet, including Dean T. Smith, Hugh T. Wallace, George W. Campbell and Ed W. Williams, gave the music. The Scottish Rite Women's club prepared and served the dinner.
The 32d degree was conferred at a large gathering, Thursday afternoon. E. C. Page was master of ceremonies and F. C. Patton, sovereign grand inspector general, presided over the class. J. E. Simpson, master of kadosh, was in charge and Saul Levy, Rev. C. E. Cobbe and T. W. McCullough gave the work. J. R. Cain delivered the oration to the class.
Near the close of the meeting, the toastmaster paid a tribute to Edward M. Wellman, late grand master of Nebraska, following which the audience stood a few moments in silent tribute to the esteemed Mason.

Members of Nebraska consistory, St. Andrew preceptory, Knights Kadosh, Semper Fidelis chapter, Knights Rose Croix and Mount Moriah Lodge of Perfection participated in the reunion.

RURAL SCHOOL DANGERS.
I have just returned after a short trip to rural sections. Twice on the road I met large motor buses loaded with school children. I was told that the consolidated school is the thing and that there are so many of them that they may almost be said to be the rule rather than the exception.
This article is written to warn the trustees of rural schools, that the consolidated school policy will increase the prevalence of contagion unless some sort of a school inspection is inaugurated.

Something more than 29 pupils are picked up in the morning from almost as many homes. They ride closely packed in a closed bus. At the end of the day they are returned in the same way to their homes.
A good deal of proof has been forthcoming in recent years that the health of the rural districts was not as good as the urban. Wood proved in New York state by figures pertaining to deaths at all ages and to the prevalence of adenoids, enlarged tonsils and other defects in school children.
Bashore, in a study of rural conditions in Pennsylvania, found overcrowding and bad housing conditions and connected these with the poor health of school children.
Surveys made in four Indiana counties, in White county, Illinois, and in Porter county, Indiana, indicated that the health of school children was not up to par.

Clopper found that one of the reasons of school absenteeism in Oklahoma was due to illness.
The reports may be considered as fairly uniform, whether they come from the rural schools of the east, west, north or south.
Many of these shortcomings can be prevented by the use of measures by parents and teachers and without developing any more health machinery than the schools now have. If the teacher would require each pupil to report the forms of contagion he has had, and the kinds of vaccination he has been subjected to, her task would be easier.
Address gives a list of symptoms which should cause the mother to keep her child at home, or should cause the teacher to send the pupil home. These are: nausea, chill, convulsions, dizziness, faintness, all eruptions, fever, running nose, running eyes, red eyes, sore throat, actually swollen glands, cough, failure to eat breakfast, any marked change in appearance or in conduct.
The child having one or more of these symptoms is to be kept at home awaiting diagnosis.

"Do you suppose these germs are in my outer garments?"
If ordinary sulphur ointment does not cure you, and you have applied it thoroughly, send in stamped, addressed envelope, and I will send you recipe for a Danish sulphur ointment that is a more powerful killer than the other kind. It is not likely that the insects are in your outer garments. It is more likely that you did not scrub with soap and hot water long enough, nor hard enough, or that you did not rub in the sulphur ointment thoroughly enough.

REPLY:
It is injurious habitually to take any purgative or laxative.

Baby Is Constipated.
Mrs. L. V. writes: "Have a baby 7 months old that is very constipated. Has been since birth. He is bottle fed. Can you tell me how to feed him to overcome this, or what medicine to give?"
REPLY:
As you give him a more liberal diet, constipation should trouble him less. Give fruit juice, tomato juice, cereal and vegetable soup. At the end of a month, give finely mashed, well cooked vegetables.
