Pepper Supports Norris in Fight for Amendment

Senator From Keystone State in Favor of Having Congress Seated Immediately After Election.

Washington, Dec. 8.—(Special)—Senator Norris of Nebraska, who, with the support of the progressive group in the senate, is supporting the idea of a constitutional amendment which would make it possible to seat a new congress immediately after its election, received a strong reinforcement.

It came from Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania, successor of Boies Penrose, and regarded as a regular republican.

Following the challenge to the idea extended by President Harding, Senator Pepper's support of the Norris idea suggested the possibility that Senator Pepper may be a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1924, should the field be an open one. However, the plan is not monopolized by Senator Norris, but is sponsored also by the American Bar association.

"It is sometimes argued in defense of the present system," Senator Pepper said, "that there is now a cooling off period between the excitement of a campaign and election and the actual beginning of a session or inauguration of a president. To my mind such an argument is without force. If four months is a good cooling off period, perhaps four years would be better. We would then have a congress so well cooled that the topics discussed in the campaign would no longer be fresh in their minds, and they would probably be working on something else. It would be as logical to propose that a jury should be given a cooling off period after hearing the evidence before being called upon to render its verdict.

"While we cannot, perhaps, be guided by English customs and precedents in this country, it is fair to take their experience as illuminating. After a general election in England, the new legislators are brought to Westminster without delay. Their elections are as heated as ours and they have not found it dangerous or conducive to radical action to call parliament immediately into session. Certainly we can trust the American people to send men to the senate and house who will be prepared to do their duty the day after election as well as four months after election."

Fine of Juror Accused of Court Contempt Reduced

Lincoln, Dec. 8.—(Special)—The fine of Russell Rozean was reduced today by the state supreme court from $100 to $25 for contempt of court while a juror in the Lucy Neal murder trial at Auburn, Neb.

Rozean was charged with expressing an opinion of the testimony to neighbors while a member of the murder jury. The act called for a new trial and cost the county several thousands of dollars.

The supreme court held that while Rozean was guilty of the offense as charged, he did it with no malice.

Admiral Jones to Head Entire American Navy

Reorganization of Force Under Title of "United States Fleet" Approved by President.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Navy department announced a general order, approved by President Harding, putting into effect a plan for organization of the navy afloat under one commander in chief.

The fleet is organized under the title "the United States fleet," and is divided into four sections as follows: The battle fleet, the scouting fleet, the control force and the fleet base force.

The present naval policy calls for the various units of the fleets, battle fleet, scouting fleet, control force and fleet base force, meeting annually for three months for drills, maneuvers and gunnery exercises.

Admiral Jones Commander.

This winter the newly organized fleet will meet in Panama bay for that purpose. Admiral H. P. Jones, U. S. N., now commanding the Atlantic fleet, and who would, on the meeting of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, assume supreme command, by the new organization becomes for all purposes the commander in chief of the United States fleet in peace and war, whether the units of the fleets are in juncture or apart.

The particular advantages of the new organization are described by the navy as follows:

It facilitates passing from peace to war conditions, thereby saving time at the beginning of the war when time is vital.

It allows the various units to be trained in peace for the duties which they must perform in war by officers who are in command during war.

All Under One Command.

It places the whole fleet under the command of the officer who is to command it in time of war and gives him and the officers in command of the major units opportunity to gain necessary experience in command and in making plans to carry out their assigned tasks.

It creates an organized fighting force which has only to be expanded in emergency to be ready for any campaign.

The battle fleet which would naturally be opposed to any enemy main fleet in war time will be in command of Vice Admiral J. D. McDonald, U. S. N., with the title of commander-in-chief, battle fleet.

The scouting fleet whose duty in wartime is to locate the enemy main fleet and later to unite with the battle fleet to join in action will be under command of Vice Admiral J. T. McDonald, U. S. N., with the title of commander scouting fleet.

The control force whose duty is to aid in the seizure of bases and to exercise control of the sea once it is gained will be under command of a rear admiral to be assigned as the relief of Rear Admiral N. A. McCully.

made by Kemp and held in jail 12 hours. The arrest, for which he asks $10,000 occurred November 27, according to DeBow, who says it was charged that he aided and abetted George S. Eskin in obtaining lots by misrepresentation. He says the case was dismissed without prejudice by Police Magistrate Wappich.

Man Brings Suit for False Arrest and 12 Hours in Jail
Don E. DeBow brought suit late yesterday against John M. Kemp, 6313 North Thirty-second street, charging that he was arrested on a false charge

U. S. N., just ordered as president of board of inspection and survey with the title of commander control force.

The fleet base force whose duty will be to defend such fleet bases as may be established will be under command of Rear Admiral J. V. Chase, U. S. N., with the title of commander fleet base force.
