"TO HAVE AND TO HOLD"

With BETTY COMPSON, BERT LYTELL, Supported by THEODORE KOSLOFF
How many words can you make out of the letters in the title?

Each merchant whose ad appears on this page has been provided with a number of passes for "To Have and to Hold" at the Strand Theater which will be awarded on this basis: Clip the ad of any store you wish and take it to that store with a list of all the English words you can form out of the letters appearing in the title "To Have and to Hold." List of 100 words entitles you to one ticket; 150 words, two tickets; 199 words, three tickets. No proper names counted—no colloquial or foreign words. You may use any one letter in any one word, only the number of times it appears in the title, for instance, just one "v," or two "a's." Here you have a chance to play a fascinating game and see one of the finest photoplays of the year. It's easy—try it!
