Alliance Offers Potash Plant for Potato Drying Alliance, Neb., is interested in the investigation that is being carried on by an Omaha Chamber of Commerce committee into the practicability of establishing a potato dehydrating plant somewhere in Nebraska. A letter from Alliance interests was received by J. M. Gillan of the chamber following the publication in The Omaha Bee of a story concerning the investigation. It suggests that one of the unused potash plants near Alliance might be used for such a plant.

 The potato-drying process became timely again this fall, when it was found difficult to market the enormous Nebraska potato crops.
