

Snow Slows Up Organization of Agriculture Meet

Small Crowd Attends First Group Meeting on State College Campus—Farm Basis Discussed.

Lincoln, Jan. 2.—(Special.)—Organized agriculture in session at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture campus was slow in getting underway today, owing to the snow and cold. Only a small attendance was present at the first of five group meetings to be held during the week. There are 13 different sections of organized agriculture, all with programs of special interest to the particular class of agriculturalists represented. At the Crop Growers' association, farm tenancy was discussed from three angles—the tenant, the owner and the land. J. E. Kirkwood, representing the owners, suggested a model lease, providing for alternating crops and feeding of livestock as a means of maintaining fertility. The owner furnishes the livestock and divides evenly with the tenant in providing seed for planting.

Presents View of Tenant.
Presenting the view of the tenant, James Smith of Tekamah suggested that farming operations were much too high at present. He suggested a lease to run one year, with an option of renewal for five years. He proposed the tenant should furnish horses, machinery and labor, and own half the livestock, a five-year program of rotation of crops agreed upon and all crops to be marketed in the form of livestock, if possible. He said the tenant should be charged for pasture, the owner should furnish seed, and divide 50-50 with the tenant on expense of operation and profit.
