Novel Christmas Gifts.

Among the gifts received in Council Bluffs this past Christmas, none probably was more appreciated than a little book entitled "The Magic Hour," written by Forrest Rutherford, a former Council Bluffs boy, who is now making Denver his home.

Mr. Rutherford is particularly talented long musical and literary lines and has achieved great success with two clever plays which were produced in the east during the past year.

"The Magic Hour" is a fantasy of the wilderness and to it is added a bit of very impressive music written by his wife, Althea Jewell Rutherford, a pianist of note, who prior to her marriage toured this country as accompanist to Alma Gluck, the celebrated soprano.

Another novel little remembrance received here by the members of the Anna E. Ross party who toured Europe last summer was a Swiss yodeling song, artistically arranged on small music sheets, around which were kodak pictures taken in the Alps.

The people in this party while in Switzerland often sang this little song and Miss Mary McKitterick of Burlington, Ia., sent these to the other members in lieu of Christmas cards.

A Graceful Bearing Adds to the Beauty of Your Costume

The effectiveness of your lovely new suit, those dainty frocks, your smart office togs, that simple little house dress—all depend, in large measure, upon the way you carry yourself.

If your walk is free, buoyant, graceful, your clothes look better on you, no matter what you wear. Many a costume has been improved by a graceful bearing.

A pleasing walk is enviable. But it is possible only in shoes that permit free movement to every muscle of the feet. Correct shoes—shoes with a flexible arch, like that of your own foot—allow the feet to exercise with every step you take. Besides being a comfort and a joy, they lend charm to your clothes.

The Cantilever Shoe is a flexible arch shoe. In it the foot has perfect freedom; is correctly supported; the toes are not cramped. The Cantilever Shoe has natural lines—it fits the foot. There is no pinching here; no unnecessary room there.

Cantilever Shoes have the medium heel which gives poise to the body and keeps the feet from tiring easily. The rounded toe of Cantilevers is now the vogue. Up-to-date women everywhere wear them for all daytime occasions—whether business or social.

All guesswork eliminated! Every shoe is now fitted by X-ray without extra charge to you.
