Extra! Extra! Harry Greb and Bob Roper Are Couple of Fighters Who Got Into Ring and Fought

By FRANK G. MENKE.

COUPLE of fighters got into a ring the other night—and they really fought.

Harry Greb and Bob Roper are exhibits A and B in this quaint fisticuffing case.

A lot of our best folks since then have been insisting that "it was simply disgraceful" the way Harry and Robert acted. But it was nothing of the sort. For those babies really did fight each other—really gave the best that was in them. They weren't in that ring for exhibition purposes—not after the third round, anyway.

It's too bad that other fighters aren't doing the same thing.

The great trouble with the ring game of today is that most of the fights are prearranged affairs. They aren't fights at all. They are simply exhibitions. The boys arrange everything beforehand. They agree not to hurt each other. They agree to make it look like a fierce fight. And they do succeed—except in cases where a double cross occurs.

Tossed Out Politeness.

And the public pay—and pays—and frequently goes into raptures concerning "a thrilling battle," which was just stage stuff performed by a pair of clever ring actors.

Not so long ago a gentleman stepped forward and said:

"Remember that Lew Tendler-Willie Jackson affair in Philadelphia—the one in which Jackson knocked down Tendler twice in the first round? Well, afterward I talked to Tendler and asked him about it. He said to me that it was undertood before the fight that he and Jackson were to go 'eight fast rounds.' Tendler said Jackson pulled a double-cross in the first round, but that after he (Tendler) recovered from the walloping he got in that opening session, he tore into Jackson and gave him a stout beating for trying to do a double-cross."

Isn't that a dainty dish to set before a fistic public which pays out its hardearned cash with the idea that it is seeing two men honestly fighting to the limit of their endeavor?

A Real Fight.

The practice of "saving up" a foeman is being overdone so much in states where official decisions are barred that even the most gullible among the fight fans is beginning to see through the sham of it all. For the boys who are fighters by profession usually aren't greatly gifted with acting ability and though they can get away with the stunt once or twice, they usually overdo it.

For quite a long time there has been the suspicion that Greb and Roper have been playing a brother-in-law game—that they have been mingling in prearranged matches around the country. Their tussle in Pittsburgh started off like "one of those things"—and continued so until the cash customers could stand it no longer and began to howl and jeer—and to yell shrill cries of "fake."

That must have awakened Greb to the fact that hippodroming no longer was worth-while stuff. If there was an agreement before the fight, Greb decided right then and there to bust it. And Roper did likewise. The boys tossed their polite manners right out of the ring and they got busy. What happened afterward was hair-raising.

A Tonic for Game.

No living man ever will dispute the fact that Greb and Roper fought after that third round—fought with every ounce of energy and strength within their bodies; fought to the absolute limit of their power to annihilate the other. It was the fiercest, most cyclonic and certainly the most desperately contested battle that has happened on American soil in years—and yet more years.

Greb and Roper are to be condemned because they slugged the referee whenever he attempted to part them from their savage work in the clinches and between rounds. But Greb and Roper are not to be condemned because they actually fought each other. That's what they agreed to do—that's what they were expected to do—that's what the crowd paid to see.

If they had more fights like Greb and Roper put on for the special benefit of a fortunate Pittsburgh audience, there'd be more honesty within the prize ring, less suspicion among fandom—and less likelihood of a day coming when the crookedness and the rottenness involved in pre-arranged matches will sound the death knell of the game.

Foley Arrives in Omaha for Fight

Harry Foley, Hot Springs, Ark., heavyweight, who is scheduled to swap punches with "Billy" Miske of St. Paul at the Auditorium Friday, arrived in Omaha Sunday, accompanied by his manager, Eddie Barnsback.

Foley will complete his training in Omaha, and will work out every afternoon at 2:30 p. m., beginning today, at the Business Men's gymnasium.

"Soldier Jim" Marples, the St. Louis heavyweight, who will box "Tiny" Herman in a six-round bout Friday, is due to arrive today and will train with Foley.

The "fighting harp" from Hot Springs appears to be in good condition.

Warnie Smith, Morrie Schlaifer, "Tiny" Herman, Erwin Bige and other principals of next Friday's contests worked out before an enthusiastic crowd of nearly 500 boxing fans at the Business Men's gymnasium Sunday.

Two Omahans Win Pin Honors

Mrs. T. R. Jameson and Dave Woodbury defeated Mr. and Mrs. Myron Stunz in a special match for the mixed doubles championship of Omaha and Council Bluffs Sunday in a nine-game series which was rolled off in three sections, one in the Bluffs, at the Omaha alleys, and at the Farnam alleys. Mrs. Jameson and Woodbury took the lead on the first game and were never headed by the Iowa bowlers. The winners led by a margin of 176 pins.

The scores:

				Total
Mrs. Jameson	550	508	524	1582
Woodbury	558	614	504	1678
Mrs. Stunz	480	440	409	1329
Mr. Stunz	528	606	519	1653

In the mixed doubles tourney held at the Omaha alleys last night, the following won: First, Mrs. Otto Ramer and Jerry Hardin, 1091; second, Mrs. T. R. Jameson and A. Newstrom, 1049; third, Mrs. W. Huff and J. Crowder, 1022. L. J. Coupal won the special prize for the highest men's total, and Miss A. Coffey won the women's prize. Coupal's total was 591, and Miss Coffey's, 484.

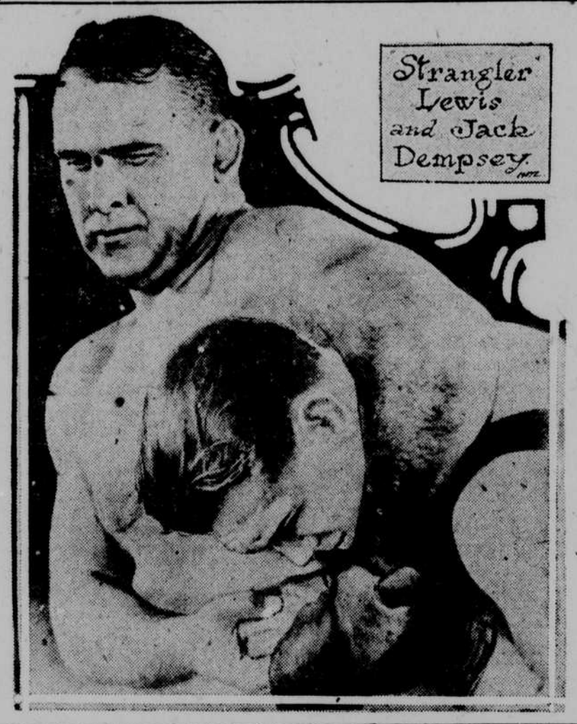
Will This Happen to Jack?

The most mooted question in athletics—can the world's champion fighter beat the world's champion wrestler?—may soon be settled if Jack Dempsey accepts the challenge of Ed (Strangler) Lewis for a match, Dempsey to hit and wrestle, if he can, and Lewis merely to wrestle. This composite photograph shows Dempsey in Lewis' deadly headlock. Wrestlers assert Lewis could dive at Dempsey, clutch him and then overcome him with his great strength. Boxers reply Dempsey could keep out of Lewis' clutches with superior footwork and pound him into a jelly with his fists.



Amateur Trap Shooters After Control of Clay Bird Sport

New York, Jan. 7.—The amateur trap shooters of America today made their first movement toward assuming absolute control of the sport, when incorporation papers were drawn up for a new organization to replace the American Trap Shooting association, the existing governing body. The new organization will be known as the Amateur Trap Shooting Association of America and will be incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

The incorporators are George H. McCarthy of New Field, N. J.; Ralph L. Spotts, chairman of the trapshooting committee of the New York A. C., and Dr. George H. Marlin, a prominent New Yorker sportsman. As soon as the necessary legal steps have been taken, the amateurs will assume formal control.

The American Trapshooting association, which has governed the sports for many years, was sponsored by manufacturers of ammunition and accessories.

Jess Willard Must Show His Stuff Before Rickard Will Listen to Return Match With Jack

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, will arrive here tomorrow afternoon from Kansas City with his manager, Ray Archer. Jess is still in quest of Jack Dempsey but will rest for a brief spell in his chase after the champion, just to take a peek at Bill Brennan and Floyd Johnson pulling their stuff in the garden on Friday night.

The Kansas farmer is going to try his persuasive powers on Tex Rickard. Jess thinks he can convince Rickard that another spill between himself and Mr. Dempsey would be a riot but we happen to know that he is going to have a mighty stiff contract on his hands if he thinks Tex is going to fall so easy. Williard will have to show something before Rickard will consider any thoughts of a bout between the Kansas giant and the champion.

Rickard will doubtless ask Jess to tackle the winner of the Brennan and Johnson wrangle but that is where the rub comes in. It is known that Willard does not want anyone but Dempsey. However, the public wants him to put his stuff right on the line and Rickard knows it. Willard will have to revise his mind about things.

Muscatine Middleweight Is a Versatile Athlete

Tipton, Ia., Jan. 8.—Terry Butt, middleweight boxer of Muscatine, is a versatile athlete to say the least. He was one of the principals in every bout on an athletic card staged here recently.

Not only did he box two four-round exhibition bouts with Johnny Hickey of Tipton and Young Essex of Muscatine, but when Earl Tyler of Cedar Rapids failed to show up for his wrestling match with Young Demetreal of Muscatine, Butt offered himself as an opponent for the Greek star. Demetreal won in straight falls.

Grand Circuit Stewards Discuss Falsifying Time on Small Tracks

Toledo, O., Jan. 8.—Action against alleged falsifying of time on the half mile tracks was discussed by Grand Circuit stewards in annual meeting here today. Speakers on the subject were W. H. Gocher of Hartford, Conn., secretary of the National Trotting association; W. H. Smollinger, Chicago, secretary of the American Trotting association; A. E. Leatherman, Philadelphia, secretary of the Union Trotting association, and E. J. Curtin, Decorah, Ia., president of the Harness Horse association.

It was pointed out in the discussion that it has come to the notice of the stewards that horses have come to the mile tracks with slower records than rightfully belonged to them. No formal action was taken against the alleged practice.

The Devonshire track at Windsor, Ont., and the Michigan State fair at Detroit were the only new applicants for dates today.

Election of officers will be held tomorrow. It was said to be likely that there probably would be no change in the present regime.

High Fives Into Fray This Week

By RALPH WAGNER.

BASKET BALL will receive another boost this week when all the cage quintets that are housed in Omaha get into action.

Coach Schabinger's Creighton university tossers meet the Haskell Indians on the Creighton floor in a two-game series starting Friday night.

The Blue and White flippers opened their season last week, when they lost to the speedy Kansas university five by the score of 29 to 7.

Coach Schabinger will juggle his lineup a little this week in order to try and strengthen the team's defense. In the game against Kansas the Creighton basketeers were weak on guarding and breaking up team play. Their teamwork wasn't up to standard, but is sure to improve within a short time.

Omaha Plays Tarkio.

Coach Ernie Adams' University of Omaha Maroons, who went 50-50 with the Yankton college five in a two-game series here last week, play Tarkio, Mo., college on the latter's court Thursday and Friday.

The Maroon university is represented by another good team this season and is expected to give a good account of itself during the schedule.

Tarkio college holds the Missouri conference championship in basket ball and is reported to have another strong quintet this season.

Coach Adams announced last night that hereafter basket ball games at the Maroon "gym" will start promptly at 8 p. m.

South Meets Benson.

Creighton High won its first game in the city high school basket ball championship race last week when it defeated the South High Packers. Wednesday evening Creighton and Council Bluffs play on Creighton floor. This game should be a close affair as the Iowans are reported to be as strong as Creighton High this winter.

South High meets Benson at South, while Tech plays Sutton in Omaha. Sutton was runnerup in the state tournament at Lincoln last year, but little is known of the strength of Sutton this season.

A Pair of Fighters Who Fought

Oldtimers will easily recognize the principals in the above picture. Terry McGovern (left), perhaps one of the greatest fighters who ever laced on a glove, has long since been counted out by the Supreme Referee. It was 20 years ago that Young Corbett (right) knocked out McGovern at Hartford, Conn., in two furious rounds. Young Corbett is now living at his home in Denver, but keeps in touch with the game he loved so well.

Lincoln High Cancels Game With Central

Lack of Floor Space in Capital City Cause—Links to Drop Contest.

Several important changes have been made in the Central high school basket ball schedule. Word was received yesterday at the Purple school that Lincoln would be unable to meet the Purple cagesters at Lincoln Saturday night. Coach Brown of the capital city quintet is unable to locate an indoor court upon which the contest could be played.

The Central schedule is now open for this date and Coach Hill of the local tossers is trying to arrange a contest with some out state team for this week end.

The Lincolnites wanted to change the date to January 27, but this date has been given to Grand Island.

Central will play a return game with the Council Bluffs five across the river January 26 and the Grand Island cage squad will meet the Purple warriors here January 27. The Islanders meet Tech on the local courts the night before, and the outstate team is reported to be represented by nearly the same cagesters that pulled off the surprise in the state tournament last year when they defeated Lincoln in the first round.

Coach Hill has been asked to play several outstate teams and it is likely that another "trip" for the Central quint will be arranged.

St. Louis Star Tops Missour Valley Tennis Ranking List

Wray Brown, the St. Louis star, who won the singles championship in the Missouri valley sectional tournament here last summer, tops the ranking list in the men's valley singles, according to the official ranking of the United States Lawn Tennis association, released for publication today.

Philip Bagby of Kansas City, who, paired with Walter Newell, his fellow townsman, won the doubles championship, is given second place among the first 10 players. Theodore Drewes of St. Louis was rated third.

Bagby and Newell, by virtue of their victory here, top the doubles ranking list, with Wray Brown and Karl Kamm, St. Louis, second.

The ranking follows:

Men's Singles.

1. Wray Brown, St. Louis, Mo.
2. Philip Bagby, Kansas City, Mo.
3. Theodore Drewes, St. Louis, Mo.

5. Charles Speice and Ben Parks, Kingfisher, Okla.

Basket-Ball Facts You Should Know

By Ed Sharp

Q. Why are glass backboards used on some courts?

A. So the spectators in rear of the backboards will not have their view of the game cut off, also some wooden backboards are livelier than others.

Q. May a player grab the ball from the hands of an opponent?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the size of the official goal?

A. Eighteen inches in diameter, inside measurement, for both the amateur and professional games.

Q. When two players are jumping for ball being tossed up by the referee in the center, what positions are the other players obliged to assume?

A. Amateur rules allow them to take any position as long as they do not interfere with the jumpers. Professional rules restrain the players to keep 15 feet from jumpers until the ball is tossed up by referee.

Q. If a player about to pass the ball jumps and then fails to pass the ball, but still holds it without moving from the spot he has jumped to, is it a foul?

A. You may take one step with one foot in any direction and lift the other foot, but as soon as you place the other foot on the floor and you still hold the ball, it is a foul.

HOW TO PLAY BASKET BALL.

Offense. Against teams of nearly equal ability, plays from center will not work consistently. You must concede that the opponents are likely to be as alert and follow the ball as closely as your own team, and before the ball can be relayed to a position to score, something is very apt to happen, which might spoil the play. However, were scoring from a set play at center a rarity, the effort would still be worth while. At a given signal, all five men are prepared to do a prearranged thing, and this team spirit and mutual help is well worth cultivating in basket ball. All other things being equal, the team that is best prepared will win. All plays should be simple, and as stated before, limited in number. It is well worth remembering that the more hands the ball passes through, the greater the chance for a misplay.

Girl Duped by License.

Elyria, O., Jan. 8.—Rose Lubitsey met a man who told her that a license alone was sufficient evidence of the legality of wedlock. She believed him. The couple were "married" August 12 last and lived together as man and wife until he deserted her October 15, Rose said. Asking the court to set her "marriage" aside, she claimed ignorance of Ohio's marriage laws.

Germans Barter in Kind.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—Paper marks dwindling daily in buying power, several ingenious German business men and organizations have returned to the old method of payment in "naturals." The daily paper of Langensalz, a small middle German town, announces that the monthly subscription price has been fixed at 6 pounds grain or 10 eggs.

Organize New Baseball League

New York, Jan. 8.—Formation of a new six-club baseball circuit known as the Atlantic league, has been completed, it was announced today by Ernest C. Landgraf of New York, vice president and organizer.

The league will be composed of clubs in Trenton, N. J., and five Pennsylvania cities, York, Allentown, Pottsville, Lancaster and Harrisburg, for the coming season, Mr. Landgraf said, but in 1924, it is planned to enlarge the league to eight clubs. Membership in the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues has been granted and the new circuit given a class "B" rating.

McDowell High at Ak-Sar-Ben Traps

Shooting against a strong wind, members of the Omaha Gun club braved the cold Sunday afternoon to stage their weekly shoot at the Ak-Sar-Ben traps. The heavy clouds overhead handicapped the shooters, making it hard to see the clay "birds" as they flew from the traps.

McDowell was high gun of the day, breaking 81 out of 100 chances. Frank Williams was second with 73 hits out of 100 shots. Other scores follow: A. E. Moore, 63 out of 75; F. A. Marshall, 62 out of 75; "Bill" McCaffrey, 61 out of 75; W. B. Riley, 45 out of 50; Christenson, 42 out of 50; H. R. Johanson, 39 out of 50; Mrs. Edmiston, 34 out of 50; B. Haines, 21 out of 25; Shane, 21 out of 25; Campbell, 21 out of 25; Stone, 21 out of 25; F. Swearingen, 19 out of 25; Fred Hayes, 19 out of 25.
