

Irreconcilables Plan Protest on Foreign Policy

May Demand That Roland W. Boyden Be Recalled as 'Unofficial Observer' on Reparations Commission.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senate "irreconcilables" are getting ready to stage an impressive demonstration against the administration's foreign policy as exemplified by the activities and utterances of Roland W. Boyden, America's unofficial representative on the reparations commission.

Contending that the administration has entered into a form of participation in European affairs not entirely in keeping with President Harding's campaign pledges, the "irreconcilables" have made up their minds to register an emphatic demand for the immediate recall of Mr. Boyden. Whether this demand will take the form of the parliamentary action remains to be developed by events of the next few days.

The rapidly widening gap between the administration and the powerful "irreconcilable" group came to light at today's meeting of the senate foreign relations committee at which Senator Lodge, Massachusetts, republican leader, presented a letter from Secretary of State Hughes explaining the status of Mr. Boyden. The letter failed to furnish the information which "irreconcilables" have been seeking and the dissatisfaction and irritation which has been growing for months began to find expression in emphatic language.

Call Letter Inadequate. Several "irreconcilable" senators present bluntly declared that the secretary of state was not being "entirely frank" with the committee and that the information furnished was wholly inadequate. The letter, which was not made public, is understood to have supplied certain chronological information of Mr. Boyden's activities and to have stated that Mr. Boyden had no vote in the reparations commission.

The "irreconcilables" asked Mr. Lodge to confer again with the secretary of state and to request more adequate information. They want to know particularly what organization Mr. Boyden has surrounded him as a member of the reparations commission; who pays him and his corps of assistants; what instructions have been given to him by the administration; and generally what is happening in the reparations commission in which the United States is taking part.

Humiliating, Says Johnson. Senator Johnson, republican, California, who has become the chief spokesman of the "irreconcilables" since Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, introduced his resolution for an international economic conference, is understood to have declared to the committee that the attitude of the administration and the activities of Mr. Boyden were both "puzzling and humiliating."

Although the administration contended that Mr. Boyden was merely an unofficial representative without voting power in the reparations commission, foreign powers made no such distinction. Senator Johnson said. They understood that when Mr. Boyden spoke, he said, he was speaking for the United States government, whether he bore the title of unofficial observer or not. He pointed out that Mr. Boyden's most recent utterances and activities had called forth a disavowal by the state department. Such a condition of affairs, he argued, is intolerable and he declared Mr. Boyden should be brought home at once.

Lodge to See Hughes. Senator Lodge promised to comply with the request that he confer again with Secretary Hughes and endeavor to obtain more information. He probably will see Mr. Hughes within the next day or two. The committee will meet again early next week, at which time Mr. Lodge will make his report.

If the information is still considered inadequate, the committee then will decide whether to summon Mr. Hughes to appear and answer such questions as members may wish to ask him concerning the foreign policy.

After that the "irreconcilables" will decide what further steps should be taken by way of protest.

J. F. Crawford, formerly with the Harris-Emery store in Des Moines, has joined the staff of the Burgess-Nash store as manager of the service and adjustments department.

"We want our patrons to feel at home in the store," said Mr. Crawford, "and feel free to consult me regarding any matter in which Burgess-Nash may better serve them."

Miss Gretchen Elbert, assistant to Miss Hope Gale in the sweater department, and Miss Bertha Woolston, assistant to Miss Gale in the corset shop, have been sent to New York and the eastern markets under the new merchandising policy of the Burgess-Nash company, according to T. P. Redmond, vice president.

Matinee Crook Flicks Ash and Tells of Hauls

"Gentleman Burglar" Didn't Stoop to Tools; Sold "Baubles" for Song, He Says.

New York, Jan. 20.—Mr. Thomas F. Belford, "matinee burglar," flicked a speck of dust from an immaculate sleeve and politely stifled a yawn. The prospect of explaining how he had cleaned up $200,000 by casual visits to the homes of choice prospects was boring.

But the youthful specialist is a gentleman and a philosopher. "One does not need to go to a polite school of burglary to be able to jimmy a lock," he said between contented puffs of a cigaret. "The whole procedure is very simple."

Here he meditated upon the trick of fate that landed him in an iron cell instead of in his customary Broadway restaurant. It was all due to the fact that he peached on the preserves of his fellow craftsmen, he explained. When he had confined his activities to sociable afternoon calls he had managed to earn a profitable livelihood, but when for the first time he tired of union hours and tried the night shift he met with disaster. He was caught.

Experts Release. "I never associated with burglars," Belford explained disdainfully. "They are crude and I dislike things crudely done. I never carried any of that formidable array of tools that the common burglar carries. It is unnecessary. All one needs is a good 'front' and a jimmy—and I can jimmy almost any kind of lock," he added with pardonable pride.

"The procedure is simple. I would go up to a fashionable apartment house and ring the bell. If some one answered I inquired for a person, apologized for the mistake and left. If no one answered I simply jimmied the lock and entered."

"Occasionally I found to my extreme annoyance that many reputable persons use cheap trinkets instead of real jewelry."

Mr. Belford is something of a connoisseur in his line and has little tolerance for "pikers." He never went to any but the choicest apartment houses. In Lou Tellegen's apartment, he recollected with an amused smile, he helped himself to a sapphire, besides the jewelry. Mr. Belford has a cultivated taste; the beautiful appeals to him.

"The proceeds were spent rather foolishly," he said reminiscently. "I would step into a pawnbroker's shop, draw a $1,000 ring from off my finger, explain that I was a little short this week and get $50 or $100 on it. I sold off the baubles for a song."

"Out of the $200,000 worth of stuff all that is left is about $1,000 worth. You might draw a moral from this for the benefit of your readers."

Hoboes Sheltered in Jail Smash Windows to Get Air

Tiltonville, O., Jan. 20.—Four hoboes asked to be allowed to sleep in the lockup here overnight. A gas stove was lighted for their comfort. Ventilation, however, was insufficient and one man became ill. Locked in their cells, with no one near the municipal building, the hoboes broke up chairs and hurled pieces of the furniture at the windows, smashing the glass, thereby obtaining the necessary fresh air.
