

Mid-Year Senior Class at South High Presents "Seven Keys to Baldpate"

1. Homer Hubbard, 2. Sadie Corenman, 3. Earl Gillette, 4. Fred Garnandt, 5. William Hibbler, 6. Gordon Holler, 7. May Dawson, 8. Henry, 9. Robert Kibbler, 10. Kathryn Parker, 11. Muriel Scheuer, 12. Howard English, 13. Harold Hancock.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, January 23 and 24, at 8 o'clock, the January class of 1923 of South High will present these players in the popular farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," in their school auditorium. The play has been adapted by George Cohan from the novel by Earl Der Bigger and is a tale of mystery. Der Bigger's purpose was to produce a satire on the tendencies of the modern melodrama to indulge in exaggeration and extravagance.

The production has been coached by Miss Marguerite Walker, dramatic instructor at South High school. Music will be furnished by the South High orchestra, under the direction of Mr. P. H. Johnson. The mid-year class includes 49 graduates, who will receive their diplomas on January 26. Miss Mildred Morris, instructor in history, is class sponsor.

The story of the play involves a present-day situation which develops in the dead of winter in the office of Baldpate inn, a summer resort. Magee, a novelist, makes a $5,000 wager that he can write a novel in 24 hours. He fortifies himself against interruption in the storm-bound Baldpate and prepares to construct his story. In the "tensest spot on earth." How the story develops, how safe Magee is from interruption, and just how many keys there are to Baldpate are revelations that follow in the course of the play. Did Magee win the $5,000? The action of the play moves rapidly and the two acts of the production are filled with events of the most intense interest to the spectators.
