

Credit Equal to Other Business Asked for Farmers

Senator Smith Urges Amendment to Reserve Act Providing Wider Range on Agricultural Paper.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Extension to the farmers of the country of the same credit facilities now afforded other business was advocated by Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, during further debate on the Lenroot-Anderson rural credit bill.

Senator Smith said he could understand the hesitancy of congress to put the farmers on the same plane as regards credit facilities as commerce and industry generally, and advised against legislation for credit extension which would be nothing but a "chip" as compared to what the farmers should be given. He urged amendment of the federal reserve act to extend the eligibility for rediscount of agricultural paper from six to 12 months instead of from six to nine months, as provided in the Capper rural credit bill and in the Lenroot-Anderson measure.

The extension to 12 months, coupled with such administration of the federal reserve act as would appreciate fully the farmers' problems would furnish ample relief for agriculture, Senator Smith declared.

Senator King, democrat, Utah, discussing the pending bill, briefly cited the increase in farm mortgages as revealed by the last census and asserted that the country has gone mad on the subject of credit. He added that the farmers needed improved marketing facilities more than additional credit.

Receiver Files Suit for Corliss Cottage

Charges that a $12,000 cottage on the shores of Cedar lake was built with funds of the Waterloo Creamery company, and that Leroy Corliss, former president of the now defunct concern, took title to the cottage without paying any consideration, were filed in federal court Friday by Herbert Daniel, receiver.

Judge Woodruff issued an order commanding Mr. Corliss to appear in court next Friday to show cause, if any, why this property should not be administered for the benefit of creditors and stockholders of the defunct company.

Police Grilling Breaks "Bandit Queen" at Denver

Eva Lewis

Twenty-four-year-old Denver girl who served prison term for bandit gang activities and collapsed after grillings that followed Denver mint robbery probe.

Denver, Jan. 26.—Three years' confinement in the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City, followed by numerous severe grillings by Denver police shortly after her release from that institution, has left Eva Lewis, 24-year-old "bandit queen," a physical wreck. Miss Lewis is a victim of aphasia, and lies pale and emaciated at the home of her mother on the outskirts of Denver.

Despite her physical debility and complete loss of speech, the girl retains much of the charm that caused Denver criminal court attaches four years ago to declare that she was the "prettiest woman who ever was on trial here."

Sentenced to from five to seven years in the state penitentiary for her activities with the famous "Lewis-Jones bandit gang," Miss Lewis was paroled and came to Denver about 10 days before the sensational holdup of a federal reserve bank truck in front of the Denver mint, when $200,000 in currency was stolen and one guard fatally shot.

Immediately police started a search Skidmore, now chief clerk of this district, is demoted to assistant chief clerk at large.

Seven Taken to Pen.
Deputy United States Marshal Lee Weekes left Friday with seven men for the pretty ex-convict, in the belief that she might be able to throw some light on the identity of the participants in the daring robbery.

The former "bandit queen" was subjected to hours of questioning, and her movements were closely watched for several days. She denied all knowledge of the holdup, declaring that it was too deliberately conceived for a woman to take part in it. The grilling by police soon aggravated her already weakened physical condition, and a few days later she suddenly fell unconscious on the floor in her mother's home.

When she was revived it was discovered that the girl had lost all power of speech and apparently was helpless. Doctors declared it was a hysterical stupor resulting from constant worry and fear as the result of the police examinations.

Lying like a graven image, the girl has failed to regain normal sentient faculties, although physicians express the belief that she may eventually recover her voice and with proper care be restored.

under sentences for the United States prison at Leavenworth, Kan. Five of these men were convicted on dope charges and two were found guilty of stealing interstate shipments of freight. Bertillon Officer Anderson went along as guard.
