

New Rumbblings Heard Against Refunding Plan

Final Draft of Proposal Sent to Harding—Early Action in Congress Is Predicted.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The plan for funding Great Britain's wartime debt to the United States was turned over to President Harding by the debt funding commission...

Present indications are for the president to send the settlement plan, together with a brief message concerning it, to congress early next week...

Increasing evidence developed today that house democrats planned to oppose the interest rates contained in the settlement plan on the grounds that they constituted a discrimination...

Members of the funding commission were said to have talked frankly among themselves as to the obstacles that complicated legislation should be avoided and it appeared that the recommendations to the president urged that a complete change of the law be avoided at this time.

Sinclair Plans 2 Oil Stations

Company Buys Local Sites for Consideration Totaling $36,000.

The Sinclair Oil company last week closed deals for two more sites for new oil stations, which it will erect in Omaha this year.

One of these was the southwest corner of Twelfth and Howard streets, one lot improved by a one-story brick building. The oil company paid $30,000 for this property, buying it from the Iler estate.

P. E. Iler, founder of the Iler estate bought this property in 1904 for $18,000. In addition to the selling profit, Mr. Iler and the Iler estate have received every year since 1904 a paying income from the building.

House Action on Muscle Shoals Is a Possibility

If Offer Is Accepted by House It Will Meet Snag in Senate—Heflin Meets Worthy Foeman.

By GEORGE F. AUBIER Washington Correspondent The Omaha Bee. Washington, Feb. 4.—(Special.)—Henry Ford and his offer for Muscle Shoals was scored in the house, where Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee has gone on record favoring acceptance of the proposition.

The situation in the senate offers no chance for consideration, either favorable or otherwise, although advantage may be taken of it to clutter up proceedings to hold up action on ship subsidy.

Editor Talks to Omaha Chemists

Dr. H. E. Howe Says Chemistry Forms Essential Part of Everyday Life.

The Omaha section of the American Chemical society gave a dinner at the University club for Dr. Harrison E. Howe, Washington, editor of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, and treasurer of the Federated American Engineering Societies.

In a short talk to representatives from the Union Pacific, Cudahy Packing company, Omaha Testing laboratory, Creighton university and the medical school of Nebraska university, Dr. Howe made plain the fact that from the time the alarm clock awakens an individual in the morning till that same person retires, and even while sleeping, the body of that person is a chemical laboratory.

The next regular meeting of the Omaha section will be held Tuesday evening at the Nebraska university medical school, where the chemical staff has arranged a program illustrating the work of Louis Pasteur. The meeting will also be the centennial anniversary of the death of the world-famous chemist.

Army Intelligence Bureau Scored by Alabama Democrat

Huddleston Says at Present Rate Congressional Committees Will Soon Be Under Supervision.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Activities of the intelligence department of the army were attacked in the house by Representative Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, who charged that if present methods were continued congressional committees would soon be under surveillance.

Mr. Huddleston read a newspaper article dealing with political and other conditions in the northwest, which is quoted a letter purporting to have been written to sheriffs and other peace officers by Lieut. W. D. Long of Vancouver barracks, Washington.

Conditions in the northwest, Mr. Blanton said, had developed a situation where a man running for office ran either as a "radical" or a "conservative." Lieut. Long, Mr. Blanton contended, should be commended for keeping his eyes open to anything which might threaten the American theory of government.

Declaring the American Federation of Labor and the big four railroad brotherhoods contained some of the most patriotic men in the country, Representative Lindeheimer, republican, California, asked Mr. Blanton if he included them in his remarks.

The society is seeking $40,000 with which to build a new receiving home for the homeless children of Nebraska. Testimonials Come in.

Here are some of the comments received with respect to the campaign: "I am heartily in accord with your work in establishing this new home for the orphan children."—John W. Pfeffer, 2235 South Twentieth street.

"We are very pleased to make this contribution as we feel that this institution in doing very worthy work, and is entitled to the support of every person."—Monsky, Katieman and Grodinsky.

"I take pleasure in giving in behalf of so worthy an undertaking."—E. C. Page.

"We wish to thank you for giving us the opportunity to help and wish to congratulate you on the good work and hope that the campaign will be successful."—Andrew Murphy and Son.

"I take great pleasure in sending you our firm's check. The case is a worthy one."—T. C. Byrne, Byrne-Hammer Co.

"The response has been wonderful," said Frank Bulta, director general of the campaign. "Judge Charles Goss, president of the society, Chairman Emmert, Mayor Dalmann and myself are very thankful because of the generous support being given by the business men. However, we are expecting to hear from many more. We plan to have the larger subscriptions out of the way by the time the campaign starts on February 11."

The Concord club has appointed its special team of workers to join with the other clubs to make this campaign a mammoth success. The team members follow: Newton Clark, captain; Guy Burns, Joe Duffy, Ed Dougherty, Everett Dadds, J. M. Jensen.

Beavers Become Real Pest in Northwestern Nebraska Alliance, Neb., Feb. 4.—Beavers were all but extinct in Nebraska only a few years ago, when the government placed a permanent closed season on the little dam-building fur-bearers.

Propagation has been so rapid that today the beaver is a real "pest" in the northwestern section of Nebraska. Resolutions demanding an open season of one month each year for the killing of beaver have been passed by the western Nebraska Stockgrowers' association and forwarded to the Nebraska delegation in congress.

The Magnificent Adventure

By EMERSON HOUGH. (Continued from Saturday.) An accidental meeting between Meriwether Lewis, secretary to Thomas Jefferson, the sorrow of having come to ask for the hand of Theodosia Burr, one of the daughters of the Louisiana Purchase...

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.) The Great Conspiracy. "Listen, my daughter, that young man is wise—he has no such vain belief in yonder expedition. He is going in desperation, to escape a memory! It is not true! Tell me and believe that I am not blind."

CHAPTER III. The Parting. Meriwether Lewis was taking his leave of Thomas Jefferson at daybreak. "Are your men ready, your supplies gathered together?" asked the president.

CHAPTER IV. Westward. Meriwether Lewis, having put behind him one set of duties now addressed himself to another, and did so with care and thoroughness. A few of his men, a part of his outfit, he found already assembled at Harper's Ferry, on the Potomac.

CHAPTER V. The Journey. Now, too, he had news—good news, fortunate news, joyous news—none less than the long-delayed answer of his friend, Capt. William Clark, to his proposal that he should associate himself as co-leader with the Volunteers for the Discovery of the West.

CHAPTER VI. The Journey. The boy advanced, smiling. "You do not know me, sir. My name is George Shannon. I used to know you when you were stationed here with the army. I was a boy then. I want to go along with you, captain."
