

Omaha Schools to Honor Lincoln

The anniversary of Lincoln's birthday will be observed in public schools

Monday through the use of song, story and picture. Each year on February 12, the children are impressed with the fine language and thought contained in Lincoln's Gettysburg address. "The perfect Tribute" is another classic that has been given nationwide favor by teachers. Most Omaha schools have pictures of Lincoln as part of their permanent art collections. Some have statues. "The lives of Lincoln and Roosevelt appeal particularly to the child-mind," said Belle M. Ryan, assistant superintendent. "The children, of course, look with a sort of reverence on the picture of Washington and they think of him as the father of his country, but Lincoln and Roosevelt are their real heroes. And the teachers never grow weary of telling the boys and girls of Lincoln and Roosevelt." A "platypus" an Australian animal that has the bill of a bird and the fur of an animal and lays eggs, yet suckles its young, was recently brought to America alive for the first time.

Scottsbluff Opposes Change in School Laws

Scottsbluff, Neb., Feb. 10.—(Special.)—That the house bills, eliminating domestic science and manual training from high school courses of study and lowering the mill levy limit from 20 to 12, take away from school districts the right to decide what education is best for the children within the district and operate unfairly on different communities was the declaration of the Scottsbluff Rotary club in a letter to Speaker A. N. Mathers. The club had previously telegraphed to him and to Representative Barbour of this district, who introduced the measure, its opposition to them. It would be especially hard for Scottsbluff to suffer the mill levy reduction, because this city has a higher percentage of its population enrolled in the public schools than any other in the state, the letter states. Thirty percent of the total population of Scottsbluff attend the public schools. In the grades the average number of pupils per teacher is 35. With reducing valuations on real estate and a falling off of personal property valuations, the club points out, it would be almost impossible for Scottsbluff to maintain efficient schools.
